Saugerties-for-College Is Getting Opposition

Former 8th Ward Supervisor Insists City Is Place; Ellenville Board Would Have It North of Village

Communications opposing the selection of a site in the Town of Saugerties for the proposed Ulster County Community College, were received today by The Freeman—one from the Board of Trustees of the Village of Ellenville, the other from a former Kingston Eighth Ward Democratic supervisor.

Former Supervisor Francis G. Clarke said in a letter to The Freeman relating to a site for the proposed college "That any place other than Kingston would be a drastic mistake." He contended it can not be denied that Kingston is the focal point of the county.

Resolution Passed

The Ellenville Village Board of Trustees at a recent meeting unanimously passed a resolution calling for the County Board of Supervisors "to overrule and reject" the Town of Saugerties site for the college proposed by the Site Committee and select a site somewhere in the area south to southwest of Kingston and north of Ellenville.

The resolution urges the Board of Supervisors and individually all fair minded local municipal officials to "encourage" the establishment of full time college educational services where none exist and the strengthening of existing educational services and to cooperate with State agencies in securing the community college.

Want the College

The Ellenville officials told the Board of Supervisors they strongly endorse the establishment of a community college and commended the board for progressive and positive action.

The location of the proposed college must not become a political football, the Ellenville board noted in the communication. The officials stated in the letter to the Board of Supervisors that fair play and honest conscience dictates the supervisors to select a site for the college which will adequately serve the entire county, being located closer to the population and geographical center of the county, namely somewhere in the vicinity and area south to southwest of Kingston and north of Ellenville.

Cite Long Distance

The Ellenville officials admonished the Board of Supervisors not to place a million dollar county college in the Town of Saugerties and force residents of the Towns of Wawarsing, Rochester, Denning, Olive, Plattekill, Shawangunk, Shandaken, Marlboro and others to drive more than an hour and a half one way to attend classes. The village officials noted the population of the 13 towns south of Kingston is 26,000 more than that of the six towns to the north and west.

The Ellenville officials pledged their assistance to the Board of Supervisors in every possible way to make the proposed college a reality.

The Ellenville resolution noted that the New York State Department of Education reports that the proposed institution, which is basic to the promotion of better education, will generally increase the county's scientific knowledge through an estimated enrollment of at least 500 students.

Stresses Kingston Locale

Stating that Kingston is the focal point of Ulster County, former supervisor Clarke said he fails to see why students in outlying districts should be forced to travel an unnecessary additional 10 miles if a suitable location can be found on the periphery of Kingston.

Noting that there have been offers to donate land, Clarke said that should not be a determining factor. He said that

Police Residency Will Be Voted On by People

Mayor to Propose Local Option Poll Following Signing of State Measure

Mayor Edwin F. Radel said today he will propose enactment of required local option legislation on a state measure obtaining the right of smaller municipalities to fix residency as a stipulation in appointment of police department personnel.

An Albany bill which virtually re-establishes the practice of cities the size of Kingston in making police department appointments from civil service eligibility lists was among those recently signed by Gov. Rockefeller.

Affects 200-Man Forces

The bill authorizes communities with police forces of less than 200 men to require the members to live within the community or within a specified distance. It will apply to men entering departments from July 1 onward. In communities with larger forces, the members may live anywhere within their own or an adjacent county.

Mayor Radel is a member of the legislative committee of the New York State Conference of Mayors, which supported the Albany bill. It was one of three submitted and gives the municipality the right to cite conditions under which a non-resident appointment could be made.

Exams Pending

The local police department has examinations pending for establishing eligibility lists, both open competitive and promotional. The latter is slated for May 13 and the date of the other is to be fixed.

Mayor Radel said he will propose that the police board request required local legislation giving the city the right name its residency requirement in making police department appointments. One provision could provide for ultimate residency of a non-resident appointee.

Finishes Signing

Gov. Rockefeller's bill-signing chores were completed today, the Associated Press said, and he was off to one of his favorite public governmental activities—international affairs.

Plan Calls for $1.1 Billion

Agency Would Build 465 Ports, Fix 2,834

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Federal Aviation Agency has announced a $1.1-bllion five year plan for building 465 new airports and improving 2,834 existing fields.

The plan includes construction of 34 airports and 18 heliports in New York State, and improvements at 79.

In a report to Congress Monday, N.E. Halaby, FAA administrator, said the 230-page national airport plan outlined needs "which should be satisfied during the next five years to keep pace with the growth of aviation."

For most airport construction, the federal government and the state or city share the cost.

Halaby said the listing did not mean that either the local community or the federal government agreed on or was committed to improvements suggested in the report.

New Ones for N.Y.

The new airports in New York State for use by scheduled airlines would be at Auburn, Far Rockaway, Farmingdale, Freeport, Garden City, Great Neck, Hicksville, Liberty, Long Beach, Mamaroneck, Mount Vernon, New Rochelle, Oneonta, Ossining, Peekskill, Pleasantville, Rockville Centre, Rye, Scarsdale, Tarrytown and Yonkers.

The airports proposed for general aviation, or use by other than scheduled airlines, would be at Canandaigua, Catskill, Corning, Geneva, Hamburg, Hempstead, Herkimer, Hudson, Huntington, Indian Lake, Kingston, Lockport and Old Forge.

The heliports would be at Far Rockaway, Farmingdale, Freeport, Garden City, Great Neck, Hicksville, Long Beach, Mamaroneck, Mount Vernon, New Rochelle, Ossining, Peekskill, Pleasantville, Rockville Centre, Rye, Scarsdale, Tarrytown and Yonkers.

The fields where improvements were proposed were at Albany, Alexandria Bay, Amityville, Ballston Spa, Barker, Batavia, Binghamton, Buffalo (Greater Buffalo International and Buffalo Air Park). Canastota, Cicero, Cooperstown, Cortland, Dansville, Deer Park, Duanesburg, Dunkirk, East Hampton, Ellenville, Elmira, Endicott, Fishers Island, Fort Plain, Fulton, Glens Falls, Gouverneur and Greene.

Also, Henrietta, Hilton, Hornell, Islip, Ithaca, Jamestown, Johnstown, Lake Placid, Livingston Manor, Malone, Massena, Mattituck, Middletown, Montauk, Montgomery, Moriches, New York (Flushing, La Guardia, International and Staten Island), Niagara Falls, Norwich, Ogdensburg, Olean, Peekskill, Penn Yan, Plattsburgh, Potsdam, Poughkeepsie, Rochester, Salamanca and Saranac Lake.

Denial Made That 'Big V' Market Abandons Locale

A report that the "Big V" market had abandoned its lease to open a store in the shopping center on the former Airport Inn premises on Saugerties Road just north of Kingston, was denied today by William Rosenberg.

Rosenberg, who operates super-markets at Vails Gate and Florida, N. Y., told a Freeman reporter today that work was in progress at the site and he expected the local "Big V" would be open "late this summer or early fall."

The "Big V" market is one of several stores which will occupy the new shopping center which is to be erected by the Airport Realty.

Rosenberg said work was now in progress at the site and "footings" were now being dug. Because of the nature of the soil, there had been a delay in starting to dig footings for the center, he said.

2 Firemen Escape Injury as Truck Hit by Lightning

Two Stone Ridge firemen escaped injury Monday night when lightning struck the two-way radio antenna on the fire truck as they were returning to the station after answering an alarm on Route 209, which grew out of lightning striking a high tension line.

The Rev. Edward Arnold, chief and John Thornton, assistant chief were returning the truck to the station when the freak accident happened. Apparently a bolt of lightning bounced off and struck the antenna, burning out the two-way radio on the truck. Both men escaped injury and the truck was not damaged.

At the time the firemen were returning from a call on Route 209 where a high tension line of Central Hudson Gas and Electric Corporation had been struck. The high tension line dropped over secondary wires which caused insulation to burn. The matter was reported to the sheriff's office and Central Hudson by members of the Gazlay family who reside nearby.

150 Without Power

Central Hudson reported five cases of difficulty from lightning, Stone Ridge, Vly area where approximately 100 customers had interruption of service. The main trouble in Kingston was on West O'Reilly Street where approximately 50 customers were without power for a time when lightening struck a power line.

A fire at The Chalet, Rosendale, may also have been caused by the storm, Arthur Mulligan, assistant chief of the Rosendale Fire Department reported today.

Laos Regime Accepts Call for Cease-Fire

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP)—The government today formally accepted a joint British-Soviet call for a cease-fire in Laos. A spokesman expressed hope fighting could end by noon Wednesday.

Shortly thereafter, Peiping radio said Prince Souvanna Phouma, backed by the Communist bloc as the legal ruler of the Asian kingdom, "welcomed" the cease-fire proposal. It did not elaborate.

Urges Saturday Meeting

The broadcast said the neutralist ex-premier, stopping over in Communist North Viet Nam after a visit to Moscow and Peiping, called for a peace meeting of all factions Saturday.

The site proposed was Xieng Khouang, stronghold of the pro-Communist Pathet Lao on Laos' central Plaine des Jarres.

A British spokesman in London said he understood the Soviet government "is taking action as far as the Pathet Lao is concerned."

Britain and the Soviet Union were sending out invitations for a 14-nation conference to work out arrangements for a neutral, independent Laos. The invitations said the conference would open May 12 in Geneva.

The Laotian government announced its commander in chief is "ready to establish contact at any moment with the responsible head of the opposing forces" to fix the "day and hour of an effective cease-fire."

Rocket Blows Up In Unmanned Try For Orbit Shot

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—An attempt to hurl an unmanned project Mercury space capsule into an orbit about the earth failed today when the Atlas booster rocket exploded in flight about 30 seconds after launch.

The 1½-ton capsule was pulled free by an escape mechanism and parachuted toward the Atlantic Ocean just off the Cape.

The Atlas was to have hurled the bell-shaped capsule into a single orbit 100 miles above the earth. An attempt was to have been made to recover it from orbit after it completed the 110-minute run around the globe.

The 77-foot Atlas with the capsule perched on its nose rose smoothly from its pad at 11:15 a.m. EST and appeared to be flying a true course.

But 30 seconds after lift-off the Atlas lurched violently in the sky and suddenly blew apart with a brilliant flash that left a huge fog of fire and smoke hanging in the sky several seconds.

The test was a crucial one in the program intended to put an American into space for a relatively short ride next week and achieve manned orbital flight perhaps late this year.

There was no immediate word here on what effect the failure would have on that schedule.

Algeria Has Blockade, More Reservists Called

Rebels Heading Nation Toward Civil War, Debre Tells National Assembly

PARIS (AP) — Forces loyal to President Charles de Gaulle repulsed an attempt by mutinous paratroopers to seize a naval base near the rebel stronghold at Oran today in the first big setback to militarist insurrection in Algeria.

The French president recalled French tanks and soldiers from NATO duty in West Germany, called up more reservists and imposed a tight economic blockade on the vast North African territory.

Fleet Leaves Toulon

In a show of confidence, De Gaulle sent a message to the National Assembly as it reconvened declaring it should carry on as usual despite his assumption of full powers to deal with the insurrection.

Premier Michel Debre in a speech to the Assembly warned the leaders of the Algiers military junta that they were heading the nation toward bloodshed and civil war. He referred to this morning's attack near Oran, when junta paratroopers tried to capture the big French naval base of Mers-el-Kebir, just outside Oran. They fell back under warning shots from a cruiser in the harbor.

Navy Shows Support

The first shots fired since the uprising broke early Saturday emphasized that the navy stands firmly with De Gaulle. At least some of the air force also was loyal. In addition to 11 planes which escaped to France Monday, six flew in today. Two others landed at Gibraltar.

But the quartet of retired generals who seek to overthrow De Gaulle and reverse his Algerian peace policies held control of the main cities of Algeria with the vociferous support of much of the excitable European population.

French Information Minister Louis Terrenoire, claimed four-fifths of the army in Algiers is loyal to De Gaulle.

De Gaulle's government said it was still in contact with, and presumably held the allegiance of, civil and military authorities of Tlemcen, Mostaganem and Saida in western Algeria; Orleansville in central Algeria, and Setif, Philippeville, Batna and Djidjelli in eastern Algeria.

Bone Situation Confusing

Philippeville and Djidjelli are ports. The government was also said to control the port of Bougie, terminal for the pipeline carrying Sahara's oil from the desert to the coast.

Officials in Paris conceded that the situation in Bone, another port in eastern Algeria, was confused.

De Gaulle was bolstered by near-unanimous support of the population of France. People went about their jobs calmly for the most part. French houswives, remembering wartime shortages, stocked up on staples.

About 10,000 reservists have been called back to military service and the callup is continuing, the government said.

The number of troops brought back from the 50,000-man French force in West Germany was not disclosed.

Troops Sorely Needed

Two nights ago Debre warned that the mutineers in North Africa might try to seize Paris or Other centers in metropolitan France wih a paratroop invasion. Citizens were called to the alert and told to rush into the streets if they heard sirens indicating an attack was under way.

The combat troops from Germany were sorely needed to bolster the power of the army at home, where most of the 250,000 troops are in training and service units.

Large stockpiles of food, fuel and military supplies were on hand in the North African territory, but the rebellious generals

6 Candidates Talk to 150 Last Night

Six candidates for the Kingston Board of Education (Consolidated) were deluged with questions Monday evening at a panel discussion in the George Washington School—questions on progressive education, loyalty oaths, religious affiliations, federal aid to education, board public relations, budget "frills," and the relationship between the Board and the State Education Department.

As lightning forked outside, and thunder rolled, some 150 persons listened closely to brief statements by each of the candidates.

50 Questions Submitted

Moderator Charles Ellis then called a brief recess and invited the audience to write questions for the candidates on slips of paper. At least 50 questions were submitted.

Candidates participating in the discussion last night were, Mrs. Edith Case Murphy and Robert Stedge, supported by the non-partisan nominating committee; Hugh Greer, a member of the Kingston Fire Department; Howard Mansfield, of Tillson, and an employe of IBM; Bernie Singer, North Front Street businessman; and Robert MacKinnon, Kingston attorney.

Mrs. Ruth Clair, of Kingston, was not present.

Some Answers

One question directed to all candidates asked if each would abide by group decisions of the Board of Education or publicize their personal views.

Mansfield said he felt that differences of a major kind should be exposed to public knowledge; Singer that they should be brought to public attention if

Rocket Blows Up In Unmanned Try For Orbit Shot

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—An attempt to hurl an unmanned project Mercury space capsule into an orbit about the earth failed today when the Atlas booster rocket exploded in flight about 30 seconds after launch.

The 1½-ton capsule was pulled free by an escape mechanism and parachuted toward the Atlantic Ocean just off the Cape.

The Atlas was to have hurled the bell-shaped capsule into a single orbit 100 miles above the earth. An attempt was to have been made to recover it from orbit after it completed the 110-minute run around the globe.

The 77-foot Atlas with the capsule perched on its nose rose smoothly from its pad at 11:15 a.m. EST and appeared to be flying a true course.

But 30 seconds after lift-off the Atlas lurched violently in the sky and suddenly blew apart with a brilliant flash that left a huge fog of fire and smoke hanging in the sky several seconds.

The test was a crucial one in the program intended to put an American into space for a relatively short ride next week and achieve manned orbital flight perhaps late this year.

There was no immediate word here on what effect the failure would have on that schedule.

READY TO MOVE — Heavy tanks line a Paris street April 24. President Charles de Gaulle began bolstering the defense of France with special army reserves in the face of the spreading military revolt in Algeria. De Gaulle, invested with dictatorial powers, started mobilizing the reserves after the country had gone through a six-hour invasion alert April 24. The alarm was canceled but France remained tense though outwardly normal. (NEA Radio-Telephoto)

Algeria Has Blockade, More Reservists Called

Rebels Heading Nation Toward Civil War, Debre Tells National Assembly

PARIS (AP) — Forces loyal to President Charles de Gaulle repulsed an attempt by mutinous paratroopers to seize a naval base near the rebel stronghold at Oran today in the first big setback to militarist insurrection in Algeria.

The French president recalled French tanks and soldiers from NATO duty in West Germany, called up more reservists and imposed a tight economic blockade on the vast North African territory.

Fleet Leaves Toulon

In a show of confidence, De Gaulle sent a message to the National Assembly as it reconvened declaring it should carry on as usual despite his assumption of full powers to deal with the insurrection.

Premier Michel Debre in a speech to the Assembly warned the leaders of the Algiers military junta that they were heading the nation toward bloodshed and civil war. He referred to this morning's attack near Oran, when junta paratroopers tried to capture the big French naval base of Mers-el-Kebir, just outside Oran. They fell back under warning shots from a cruiser in the harbor.

Navy Shows Support

The first shots fired since the uprising broke early Saturday emphasized that the navy stands firmly with De Gaulle. At least some of the air force also was loyal. In addition to 11 planes which escaped to France Monday, six flew in today. Two others landed at Gibraltar.

But the quartet of retired generals who seek to overthrow De Gaulle and reverse his Algerian peace policies held control of the main cities of Algeria with the vociferous support of much of the excitable European population.

French Information Minister Louis Terrenoire, claimed four-fifths of the army in Algiers is loyal to De Gaulle.

De Gaulle's government said it was still in contact with, and presumably held the allegiance of, civil and military authorities of Tlemcen, Mostaganem and Saida in western Algeria; Orleansville in central Algeria, and Setif, Philippeville, Batna and Djidjelli in eastern Algeria.

Bone Situation Confusing

Philippeville and Djidjelli are ports. The government was also said to control the port of Bougie, terminal for the pipeline carrying Sahara's oil from the desert to the coast.

Officials in Paris conceded that the situation in Bone, another port in eastern Algeria, was confused.

De Gaulle was bolstered by near-unanimous support of the population of France. People went about their jobs calmly for the most part. French housewives, remembering wartime shortages, stocked up on staples.

About 10,000 reservists have been called back to military service and the callup is continuing, the government said.

The number of troops brought back from the 50,000-man French force in West Germany was not disclosed.

Troops Sorely Needed

Two nights ago Debre warned that the mutineers in North Africa might try to seize Paris or Other centers in metropolitan France wih a paratroop invasion. Citizens were called to the alert and told to rush into the streets if they heard sirens indicating an attack was under way.

The combat troops from Germany were sorely needed to bolster the power of the army at home, where most of the 250,000 troops are in training and service units.

Large stockpiles of food, fuel and military supplies were on hand in the North African territory, but the rebellious generals

6 Candidates Talk to 150 Last Night

Six candidates for the Kingston Board of Education (Consolidated) were deluged with questions Monday evening at a panel discussion in the George Washington School—questions on progressive education, loyalty oaths, religious affiliations, federal aid to education, board public relations, budget "frills," and the relationship between the Board and the State Education Department.

As lightning forked outside, and thunder rolled, some 150 persons listened closely to brief statements by each of the candidates.

50 Questions Submitted

Moderator Charles Ellis then called a brief recess and invited the audience to write questions for the candidates on slips of paper. At least 50 questions were submitted.

Candidates participating in the discussion last night were, Mrs. Edith Case Murphy and Robert Stedge, supported by the non-partisan nominating committee; Hugh Greer, a member of the Kingston Fire Department; Howard Mansfield, of Tillson, and an employe of IBM; Bernie Singer, North Front Street businessman; and Robert MacKinnon, Kingston attorney.

Mrs. Ruth Clair, of Kingston, was not present.

Some Answers

One question directed to all candidates asked if each would abide by group decisions of the Board of Education or publicize their personal views.

Mansfield said he felt that differences of a major kind should be exposed to public knowledge; Singer that they should be brought to public attention if

Eichmann Trial Hears Report of Nazi Barbarism

JERUSALEM (AP) — A wispy, bearded little man wearing a black skullcap recounted a Nazi nightmare today and testified in the trial of Adolf Eichmann, "It was the first time I ever saw the wild barbarism of the Germans."

The witness was Zinder Grynszpan, father of a Jewish boy who killed a Nazi official in Paris in 1938.

Deported to Poland

Grynszpan and members of his family were taken from their home in Germany on Oct. 27, 1938 and deported to Poland. A few days later, in a rage against the Nazi harassment of Jews, Hershel Grynszpan, 17, assassinated Ernst Vom Rath, Nazi councillor of the German embassy in Paris.

This touched off the first concerted Nazi wave of anti-Jewish pogroms, starting with the "crystal night" of Nov. 10, 1938—so called because of the shattering glass from thousands of Jewish homes, shops and synagogues broken into by German mobs. Some Jews were also killed in the riots.

The elder Grynszpan was a thin frail little figure of 75 as he testified in Yiddish.

Even after 23 years, his voice shrilled and he trembled as he recounted the events of the night of Oct. 27, 1938, in Hannover, Germany.

"About 8 o'clock at night," he said, "a policeman came to our home. He told us we were all to come with him that we should take our passports but nothing else.

"He took us to a concert hall. There were about 600 people already there. They kept us for 25 hours until Friday night.

Streets Black With People

"The next day—on the Sabbath—they took us to the railway station. The streets were black with people, shouting 'Jews out to Palestine' and 'sign, sign,' apparently a reference to the signatures exacted of the Jews on their own deportation warrants.

Grynszpan said they were taken by train to a point near the Polish border. Trains were arriving from many other points in Germany, and he estimated about 12,000 Jews finally assembled on the border.

The SS guards allowed each person to keep only 10 reichmarks.

The guards told them: "You didn't bring more than 10 marks when you came into this country, and you can't take any more out."

The guards marched the Jews about a mile and a half to the border.

"They were whipping us," Grynszpan went on. "There was blood on the road.

"It was the first time I ever saw the wild barbarism of the Germans."

Hit, Falls Into Ditch

Grynszpan said he received a blow in the face and fell into a ditch. One of his sons helped him out and said, "Run, father, run, or you'll die."

Some people did die, he said. "They died of heart attacks."

The Jews were herded across the border into Poland. The Poles put them in a military camp. Two days later, on Sunday, the first food arrived—a truckload of bread for the 12,000.

"Some were lucky," Grynszpan said. "They got some bread. Others were not."

He said he wrote a letter to his son in Paris.

"And this son," assistant attorney general Ya'akov Bar'or said dramatically, "was Hershel Grynszpan?"

"Yes," said the father.

This was the last question. Eichmann's lawyer, Dr. Robert Servatius, did not cross-examine the witness.

Local Resident To Aid National Jewish Appeal

Joseph E. Honig of 430 Pearl Street, prominent civic and communal leader, has been chosen to serve on the National Cash Committee of the nationwide United Jewish Appeal now conducting a midyear drive for many millions of dollars in cash, it has been announced by Israel D. Fink, of Minneapolis, National Cash Chairman of the UJA.

The UJA National Cash Committee will be composed of 50 nationally known community leaders, who will direct and coordinate the cash campaigns of hundreds of American Jewish communities throughout the nation which are now conducting special cash drives to secure payment of pledges made to their 1961 community campaigns.

Funds raised in the midyear cash drive will be reported at the UJA Midyear Leadership Conference to be held in Israel on June 13-14 as part of the UJA celebration of Israel's Bar Mitzvah Anniversary. The Conference is the second such to be held in Israel. The first took place in Jerusalem in 1958 as part of the Israel Tenth Anniversary Celebration.

Honig will help direct a cash campaign which has been described as "one of the most intensive in UJA history." Communities throughout the nation are expected to conduct "all-out" cash drives in response to Fink's call for intensive cash campaigning as a "ringing affirmation of support for Israel's people and for the United Jewish Appeal."

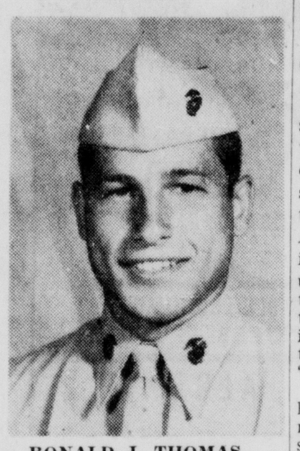

Special impetus is being provided by the fact that this year sees Israel's thirteenth — Bar Mitzvah — Independence Anniversary, celebrations of which coincide with the cash campaign period.

The $36,370,000 midyear cash goal of the UJA is sought to make possible newcomer aid programs of the United Israel Appeal, carried out by the Jewish Agency for Israel; the Joint Distribution Committee, which aids aged and handicapped newcomers in Israel and distressed Jews in 26 other countries, and the New York Association for New Americans, which assists Jewish refugees to the United States. The United Hias Service, which helps Jewish immigrants to countries other than Israel, also benefits from UJA fund-raising efforts.

Karp Is Speaker For Historical Group of Ulster

Benjamin Karp was guest speaker at the April meeting of the Ulster County Historical Society Saturday. Dr. Karp, a sculptor who received part of his training under the eminent American sculptor Jo Davidson, is currently professor of art education at the College of Education, New Paltz and is the author of numerous articles including one for The American Heritage on his special interest "Sawn Sculpture."

Attracted by the wooden houses of the 19th Century ornamented by sawn decoration he soon noted that designs differed with different builders and often with each house. Sawn by hand or by power saw which was developed early in the century the wooden ornaments were called "rainy day work" by the artist carpenters. Some of these as in New England had been ship carpenters or cabinet makers but each showed originality as an artist.

Deploring the modern tendency toward uniformity the speaker contrasted it with the originality of the dynamic age of Andrew Jackson when the United States was developing its own personality along all lines. He closed with a plea for the saving of these American Gothic houses known locally as Hudson River Bracketed as worthy of preservation as "a rich expression of the human spirit" important in the remembrances of what man has done. The Avery Library of Columbia University maintains a file on Dr. Karp's findings on Sawn Sculpture.

Mr. Plank of Highland, chairman for Ulster County of the Civil War Centennial Celebration, spoke briefly of his plans. Capt. Andrew S. Hickey of Kingston told of the Senate House plans for a Civil War museum.

JFK Bears Full Responsibility Of Cuban Events

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy has again made it clear that he takes full responsibility for whatever part the United States played in the ill-starred Cuban invasion.

The White House issued a statement Monday night which said:

"President Kennedy has stated from the beginning that as president he bears sole responsibility for the events of the past few days. He has stated it on all occasions and he restated it now so that it will be understood by all.

Prompted by Reaction

"The President is strongly opposed to anyone within or without the administration attempting to shift the responsibility."

There was no elaboration to the White House statement but it apparently was prompted by sharp Republican reaction to a remark by Secretary of the Interior Stewart L. Udall tying in former President Dwight D. Eisenhower with early planning of last week's rebel landings in Cuba.

Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York and former President Harry Truman were to be filled in today on Kennedy's Cuban policy.

Kennedy invited the Republican governor to the White House for a mid-afternoon briefing on the invasion and the problems of combatting pro-Communist Fidel Castro's Cuban regime.

He assigned Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson to fly to Missouri for a similar talk with Truman.

Late last week Kennedy discussed the situation with Eisenhower, former Vice President Richard M. Nixon and Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz.

Exchange of Views

While the effect of these discussions may be to lay the groundwork for bipartisan support for any future moves by Kennedy against the Castro regime, informants said this was not the President's purpose.

The briefings were described as an exchange of views on what has happened.

(The New York Times said today the Kennedy administration is considering application of a total embargo on United States trade with Cuba.

(The question was taken up in the National Security Council Saturday as part of a search for a new policy on Cuba, but no decision was reached, a Washington dispatch to the Times added. The story noted that exports to Cuba already have been heavily curbed and now consist largely of foodstuffs and medicines.

With his statement reaffirming his responsibility, Kennedy sought to stamp out any party row over the Cuban invasion and its failure.

The statement came after Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois protested a remark by Udall that the invasion had been conceived during the Eisenhower administration.

Before the President's statement, Udall had issued an apology which said: "The President and his administration have taken full responsibility in regard to our relations with Cuba. If my remarks on television gave any other impression, I deeply regret it."

Another high Kennedy official said that while the plan had been drawn up while Eisenhower was in office, Kennedy had ample opportunity to review it and choose alternatives before giving the go-ahead.

CIA Criticized

In more backwash of the Cuban invasion, the U.S. intelligence system drew more criticism.

An administration official said the Central Intelligence Agency not only grossly underestimated the Castro military force and power to prevent an uprising, but also gave no advance warning on the French army insurrection in Algeria.

Eichmann Trial Hears Report of Nazi Barbarism

JERUSALEM (AP) — A wispy, bearded little man wearing a black skullcap recounted a Nazi nightmare today and testified in the trial of Adolf Eichmann, "It was the first time I ever saw the wild barbarism of the Germans."

The witness was Zinder Grynszpan, father of a Jewish boy who killed a Nazi official in Paris in 1938.

Deported to Poland

Grynszpan and members of his family were taken from their home in Germany on Oct. 27, 1938 and deported to Poland. A few days later, in a rage against the Nazi harassment of Jews, Hershel Grynszpan, 17, assassinated Ernst Vom Rath, Nazi councillor of the German embassy in Paris.

This touched off the first concerted Nazi wave of anti-Jewish pogroms, starting with the "crystal night" of Nov. 10, 1938—so called because of the shattering glass from thousands of Jewish homes, shops and synagogues broken into by German mobs. Some Jews were also killed in the riots.

The elder Grynszpan was a thin frail little figure of 75 as he testified in Yiddish.

Even after 23 years, his voice shrilled and he trembled as he recounted the events of the night of Oct. 27, 1938, in Hannover, Germany.

"About 8 o'clock at night," he said, "a policeman came to our home. He told us we were all to come with him that we should take our passports but nothing else.

"He took us to a concert hall. There were about 600 people already there. They kept us for 25 hours until Friday night.

Streets Black With People

"The next day—on the Sabbath—they took us to the railway station. The streets were black with people, shouting 'Jews out to Palestine' and 'sign, sign,' apparently a reference to the signatures exacted of the Jews on their own deportation warrants.

Grynszpan said they were taken by train to a point near the Polish border. Trains were arriving from many other points in Germany, and he estimated about 12,000 Jews finally assembled on the border.

The SS guards allowed each person to keep only 10 reichmarks.

The guards told them: "You didn't bring more than 10 marks when you came into this country, and you can't take any more out."

The guards marched the Jews about a mile and a half to the border.

"They were whipping us," Grynszpan went on. "There was blood on the road.

"It was the first time I ever saw the wild barbarism of the Germans."

Hit, Falls Into Ditch

Grynszpan said he received a blow in the face and fell into a ditch. One of his sons helped him out and said, "Run, father, run, or you'll die."

Some people did die, he said. "They died of heart attacks."

The Jews were herded across the border into Poland. The Poles put them in a military camp. Two days later, on Sunday, the first food arrived—a truckload of bread for the 12,000.

"Some were lucky," Grynszpan said. "They got some bread. Others were not."

He said he wrote a letter to his son in Paris.

"And this son," assistant attorney general Ya'akov Bar'or said dramatically, "was Hershel Grynszpan?"

"Yes," said the father.

Local Resident To Aid National Jewish Appeal

Joseph E. Honig of 430 Pearl Street, prominent civic and communal leader, has been chosen to serve on the National Cash Committee of the nationwide United Jewish Appeal now conducting a midyear drive for many millions of dollars in cash, it has been announced by Israel D. Fink, of Minneapolis, National Cash Chairman of the UJA.

The UJA National Cash Committee will be composed of 50 nationally known community leaders, who will direct and coordinate the cash campaigns of hundreds of American Jewish communities throughout the nation which are now conducting special cash drives to secure payment of pledges made to their 1961 community campaigns.

Funds raised in the midyear cash drive will be reported at the UJA Midyear Leadership Conference to be held in Israel on June 13-14 as part of the UJA celebration of Israel's Bar Mitzvah Anniversary. The Conference is the second such to be held in Israel. The first took place in Jerusalem in 1958 as part of the Israel Tenth Anniversary Celebration.

Honig will help direct a cash campaign which has been described as "one of the most intensive in UJA history." Communities throughout the nation are expected to conduct "all-out" cash drives in response to Fink's call for intensive cash campaigning as a "ringing affirmation of support for Israel's people and for the United Jewish Appeal."

Special impetus is being provided by the fact that this year sees Israel's thirteenth — Bar Mitzvah — Independence Anniversary, celebrations of which coincide with the cash campaign period.

The $36,370,000 midyear cash goal of the UJA is sought to make possible newcomer aid programs of the United Israel Appeal, carried out by the Jewish Agency for Israel; the Joint Distribution Committee, which aids aged and handicapped newcomers in Israel and distressed Jews in 26 other countries, and the New York Association for New Americans, which assists Jewish refugees to the United States. The United Hias Service, which helps Jewish immigrants to countries other than Israel, also benefits from UJA fundraising efforts.

Karp Is Speaker For Historical Group of Ulster

Benjamin Karp was guest speaker at the April meeting of the Ulster County Historical Society Saturday. Dr. Karp, a sculptor who received part of his training under the eminent American sculptor Jo Davidson, is currently professor of art education at the College of Education, New Paltz and is the author of numerous articles including one for The American Heritage on his special interest "Sawn Sculpture."

Attracted by the wooden houses of the 19th Century ornamented by sawn decoration he soon noted that designs differed with different builders and often with each house. Sawn by hand or by power saw which was developed early in the century the wooden ornaments were called "rainy day work" by the artist carpenters. Some of these as in New England had been ship carpenters or cabinet makers but each showed originality as an artist.

Deploring the modern tendency toward uniformity the speaker contrasted it with the originality of the dynamic age of Andrew Jackson when the United States was developing its own personality along all lines. He closed with a plea for the saving of these American Gothic houses known locally as Hudson River Bracketed as worthy of preservation as "a rich expression of the human spirit" important in the remembrances of what man has done. The Avery Library of Columbia University maintains a file on Dr. Karp's findings on Sawn Sculpture.

Mr. Plank of Highland, chairman for Ulster County of the Civil War Centennial Celebration, spoke briefly of his plans. Capt. Andrew S. Hickey of Kingston told of the Senate House plans for a Civil War museum.

Miss Hazel Bloom and Miss Jane Austin, both of Kingston, presided at the tea table. Mrs. Herbert Small, Kerhonkson, chairman of the refreshment committee, was in charge of the tea assisted by Mrs. Edward DeWitt and Mrs. Hollis Burhans, Kingston and Mrs. Kilduff of Kerhonkson.

JFK Bears Full Responsibility Of Cuban Events

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy has again made it clear that he takes full responsibility for whatever part the United States played in the ill-starred Cuban invasion.

The White House issued a statement Monday night which said:

"President Kennedy has stated from the beginning that as president he bears sole responsibility for the events of the past few days. He has stated it on all occasions and he restated it now so that it will be understood by all.

Prompted by Reaction

"The President is strongly opposed to anyone within or without the administration attempting to shift the responsibility."

There was no elaboration to the White House statement but it apparently was prompted by sharp Republican reaction to a remark by Secretary of the Interior Stewart L. Udall tying in former President Dwight D. Eisenhower with early planning of last week's rebel landings in Cuba.

Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York and former President Harry Truman were to be filled in today on Kennedy's Cuban policy.

Kennedy invited the Republican governor to the White House for a mid-afternoon briefing on the invasion and the problems of combatting pro-Communist Fidel Castro's Cuban regime.

He assigned Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson to fly to Missouri for a similar talk with Truman.

Late last week Kennedy discussed the situation with Eisenhower, former Vice President Richard M. Nixon and Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz.

Exchange of Views

While the effect of these discussions may be to lay the groundwork for bipartisan support for any future moves by Kennedy against the Castro regime, informants said this was not the President's purpose.

The briefings were described as an exchange of views on what has happened.

(The New York Times said today the Kennedy administration is considering application of a total embargo on United States trade with Cuba.

(The question was taken up in the National Security Council Saturday as part of a search for a new policy on Cuba, but no decision was reached, a Washington dispatch to the Times added. The story noted that exports to Cuba already have been heavily curbed and now consist largely of foodstuffs and medicines.

With his statement reaffirming his responsibility, Kennedy sought to stamp out any party row over the Cuban invasion and its failure.

The statement came after Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois protested a remark by Udall that the invasion had been conceived during the Eisenhower administration.

Before the President's statement, Udall had issued an apology which said: "The President and his administration have taken full responsibility in regard to our relations with Cuba. If my remarks on television gave any other impression, I deeply regret it."

Another high Kennedy official said that while the plan had been drawn up while Eisenhower was in office, Kennedy had ample opportunity to review it and choose alternatives before giving the go-ahead.

CIA Criticized

In more backwash of the Cuban invasion, the U.S. intelligence system drew more criticism.

An administration official said the Central Intelligence Agency not only grossly underestimated the Castro military force and power to prevent an uprising, but also gave no advance warning on the French army insurrection in Algeria.

Salamanca Next To Draw Power At Niagara Site

ARCADE, N.Y. (AP)—The Niagara Power Project had two new customers today — this Wyoming County village of 2,000 and the city of Salamanca 40 miles south.

Arcade became the giant project's first municipal customer Monday and village officials predicted annual savings of more than $23,000 for their consumers.

Salamanca was scheduled to draw its first power today from the huge generators on the Niagara River.

Nine cooperative or municipalities will be served by the state-operated project, which will be the western world's biggest producer of hydroelectric power when work on it is completed next year. Power companies and industry will also share the power.

The project delivered its first power Feb. 10 to the Niagara Mohawk Power Co. and three of its 13 generators are now turning out 450,000 kilowatts. It will eventually produce 2,190,000 kilowatts.

Berserk Elephant Kills Man, Hurts Trainer at Center

SAN ANGELO, Tex. (AP)—An elephant suddenly went berserk Monday and trampled to death an elderly man and injured its trainer as hundreds of bystanders stood by in helpless horror.

The 40-year-old elephant, named Henrietta, had spent the morning pulling children in a wagon around a shopping center parking lot. At the time of the accident she was tethered near a truck.

"I don't know what happened, she must have gotten scared," said Earl Tillman 20, of Lagrange, Tex., the trainer.

Tillman said he saw James John Orr, 67, walking around the elephant and the animal suddenly swing at Orr.

Orr started to run. Before he got five feet the elephant knocked him down.

"I started to run over to him and before I got there she had her foot on him." He said, "I don't remember anything after that."

Orr died a few minutes after being trampled.

Witnesses said the elephant grabbed the trainer by the arm and tossed him over her back. Tillman suffered a broken arm and bruises.

After the accident the elephant was locked in the truck and placed under guard.

The elephant formerly was owned by the James Christy Circus and is now owned by Marlin Plunkett of La Grange.

The initials of Prudential's NORTHEASTERN HOME OFFICE — NEHO — are spelled out above to emphasize this fact: Since NEHO offers a broad range of insurance plans, thousands of residents of New England and upper New York State gratefully associate NEHO, in Boston, with quick financial help "that time I was sick and couldn't work."

Prudential's health insurance programs serve policyholders in several ways: first, there's Prudential's major-medical expense plan, which helps pay those staggering BIG BILLS that hardly anyone can afford when prolonged sickness or serious injury strikes: In a year almost a half million families will face hospital and medical bills greater than their total annual income.

Prudential also offers income protection plans that help replace the missing paychecks during an enforced absence from work due to sickness or injury. And there are hospital and surgical expense plans to help pay the bills from the hospital and surgeon.

These are just some of the coverages your NEHO Prudential agent can offer you. He lives in your neighborhood . . . understands your problems . . . is at hand when you need him. Welcome him when he calls.

Salamanca Next To Draw Power At Niagara Site

ARCADE, N.Y. (AP)—The Niagara Power Project had two new customers today — this Wyoming County village of 2,000 and the city of Salamanca 40 miles south.

Arcade became the giant project's first municipal customer Monday and village officials predicted annual savings of more than $23,000 for their consumers.

Salamanca was scheduled to draw its first power today from the huge generators on the Niagara River.

Nine cooperative or municipalities will be served by the state-operated project, which will be the western world's biggest producer of hydroelectric power when work on it is completed next year. Power companies and industry will also share the power.

The project delivered its first power Feb. 10 to the Niagara Mohawk Power Co. and three of its 13 generators are now turning out 450,000 kilowatts. It will eventually produce 2,190,000 kilowatts.

KINGSTON, NEW YORK, APRIL 25, 1961

CATHOLIC CHARITIES

For the 42nd consecutive year New York Catholic Charities is conducting a fund appeal to continue its multiple welfare services to dependent, neglected, handicapped and delinquent children; to the physically and mentally ill, the aged, the helpless and the homeless, to children and young people needing constructive leisure time activities, and to families unable to cope with their own problems. The goal is $3,325,740.

When Catholic Charities started its ministry of mercy in 1919, most families were able to provide for their own sick and aged, and neighbors assisted each other. But in today's complex and troubled world and with the advances made in the social and medical sciences, there are many problems beyond the ability of families or neighbors to solve; problems that require skilled counseling, specialized services, a thorough knowledge of public and private resources, and financial assistance.

The services of New York Catholic Charities and its 192 affiliated welfare agencies and institutions, last year reached almost 600,000 men, women and children of all ages—from the smallest of human beings, the infant born prematurely, to aged men and women chronically ill and incapacitated.

Actual assistance to most of these people would have been beyond the ability of kind hearted and charitable neighbors, but they supplied the needed skills and services through generous support of New York Catholic Charities fund appeal. They are now being asked for a continuance of that support by volunteers who are making a house-to-house canvass of Catholic families in the 401 parishes of the New York Archdiocese, which includes Ulster County.

SPACE DECISION NEEDED

The United States had better decide whether the competition for primacy in the development of space travel is important enough to warrant an all-out effort. Despite our considerable successes, this country has not yet fully committed itself to such a decision and the course of action that would follow.

If our answer is no, we will have to adjust to the realization that the Soviet Union probably will go on scoring firsts. If our answer is yes, then we had better go at the matter hammer and tongs.

The question posed above is not an idle one. It has been argued rather persuasively that we should stop worrying about space and devote more energy and wealth to the problems of mankind here on earth. Still, when all considerations—including the vital need to maintain our prestige in the eyes of uncommitted peoples— are weighed the balance comes down strongly for a space program second to none.

Such a program means firmly coordinated effort bolstered by the highest priorities and enough money to do the job. It also means an increase in the amount of work done on various projects. More than one critic of our space program has been impressed by this aspect of the situation.

Rep. Joseph E. Karth, a member of the House Space Committee, has just expressed the view that the United States could be first to the moon if the number of man hours devoted to certain key rocket projects were doubled. He noted that at the Huntsville, Ala., Saturn installation there was only one five-day-a-week shift.

More man hours may not be the entire answer. But there is inescapable logic in the idea that the harder we work at our space program, the better our chances of surpassing the Soviet Union will be.

It's a vicious circle. Dirksen and Halleck needle the Democrats, liberal Republicans needle Dirksen and Halleck—and the Internal Revenue Service needles everyone.

Most newlyweds have eyes only for each other—and therefore don't see the bill collectors lurking just around the corner.

'These Days'

A POSITIVE CUBA POLICY

President Kennedy, in asserting a positive Cuba policy, has given hope to the peoples of the world who seek freedom. He said that Cuba would not be abandoned to Communism. Now this policy needs to be implemented. Just saying something is not sufficient; we need to be willing and able to back our position by whatever force is required. Otherwise, we shall be in a worse position than ever. The United States dares not let Khrushchev call our bluff; it must, in fact, not be a bluff.

The Cuban situation requires review. For months, the Senate Internal Security Sub-committee has been holding executive session hearings on various aspects of the Cuban problem. These hearings are held sub rosa for reasons which, to me, do not appear very sensible. Before this Committee have already appeared two of our Ambassadors to Cuba, Arthur Gardner and Earl E. T. Smith; an American Ambassador to Mexico, Robert Hill and a former Ambassador to Brazil, Edward Pawley. Their testimony clearly pronounced Fidel Castro a Communist and an enemy of the United States.

Some of the testimony indicated that full evidence was available prior to Castro's revolution and during its early days which indicated beyond a doubt that this is a Communist movement and always was. There has been testimony to show that the evaluation of data by so-called experts on the Fourth Floor of the State Department was very, very wrong when it reached the Fifth Floor of the State Department where the great men sit, and that it was even more incorrect when it reached the White House.

Certainly, it is the business of the CIA to engage in espionage. This Agency should have known all about Castro, his brother, his organization, his association with Soviet Russia, etc. What the CIA reported to the State Department and to President Eisenhower, I do not know. But it is obvious from the position adopted by the Eisenhower Administration as regards Batista and Castro, that neither the President nor the Secretary of State could have been adequately and accurately informed. The present failure in Cuba requires a study of CIA methods.

President Kennedy came upon this situation during the Presidential campaign. His attitude was straight-forward and correct but it was very widely criticized and unfortunately he moved away from his positive position by avoiding the subject. His reference to Cuba in his Inaugural Address was correct from the standpoint of every event that has since occurred.

However, during his first months as President, he was obviously diverted from an original purpose by so-called experts and specialists who advised and still advise that the United States must subordinate itself to the Organization of American States, a body which has been trembling lest Soviet Russia bomb some places. To this cowardice, President Kennedy has now replied:

"Should it ever appear that the inter-American doctrine of non-interference merely conceals or excuses a policy of non-action; if the nations of this hemisphere should fail to meet their commitments against outside Communist penetration, then I want it clearly understood that this Government will not hesitate in meeting its primary obligations, which are the security of our nation."

This is a clarifying statement. If the OAS is to shake and tremble before Khrushchev's threats, the Organization might as well die and very quickly. At any rate, the statement quoted above is a challenge, as strong and as pertinent as the Monroe Doctrine.

Now, something needs to be done. Words have no value unless they are backed by deeds. If Castro has MIGs, we should give the rebels everything they need. But even more important, it is necessary for the United States to blockade Cuba. It is ridiculous for this country to supply Castro with beef and medicines. Patriotic Cubans will pull in their belts and eat less if they can be sure that Castro's troops will go hungry too. Why is it necessary for the United States to feed its enemies? Every day, from Miami and Palm Beach, the ferries jammed with meat and other supplies go to Cuba. Why?

President Kennedy will be forced at some time during his Administration to take a stand against Soviet Russia. In effect, Presidents Truman and Eisenhower have postponed the inevitable day which now faces President Kennedy. He has too little time because history does not wait for human decision. Its chain of circumstances can only be broken by violence.

Nursing Is Ideal Career, Training for Marriage

By HAROLD T. HYMAN, M.D.
Written for Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Are you a high school girl or the parent of one? If so you may be interested in a pamphlet entitled "Your Nursing Services Today and Tomorrow" which has been issued by the National League for Nursing and the Public Affairs Committee.

As the husband and father of registered nurses, I am surely a prejudiced commentator. But it is my sober opinion that nursing is the ideal profession for the career girl and the best possible training for marriage, child bearing and child rearing.

Perhaps this statement was not always valid. It was not so long ago that nurse's training was "like a two or three year hazing," to borrow a phrase.

Freshmen rarely had a day off. They were not allowed to engage in social conversation or to date internes. Curfew was 9 or 10 P. M. with maybe an occasional midnight pass.

Between ward work and lessons, the girls put in a 12 to 14-hour day. They were exploited in the wards where most of their time was spent performing menial tasks. And at graduation those who continued their careers usually had few alternatives other than to do institutional nursing for which they were paid meager salaries.

Today all that is changed. Girls who have had two years of college training can get their bachelor degrees as well as their nursing registrations (R.N.) at the end of three years.

They are encouraged to pursue outside interests for broad cultural training after their official eight-hour day is completed. The curfew most often is midnight so that there's not the need there used to be to dash back before the end of a dance or a movie. Most training schools have gymnasiums, swimming pools, recreation halls and even "beau" rooms to which girls may invite their dates. Social contacts with medical students, internes and other visitors are encouraged.

Notice has truly been taken of the emancipation of women!

Ward work, dispensary duties and visiting nursing activities concentrate on patient orientation. And after graduation a wide field emerges in public health nursing, nursing education, industrial nursing, visiting nursing, social service work, physiotherapy, rehabilitation, airline hostessing and enlistment as officers in the several branches of the armed services. And, in most instances, the pay is higher per week than many nurses once received each month.

One last hosanna in this hymn of praise. The cost of the nursing education is a fraction of the cost of a college education. And many scholarships are available for eager, worthy girls.

A tip to all young swains. Nurses make very fine wives and mothers, but don't think I'm running a matrimonial agency.

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — Securities and Exchange Commission here is keeping a close watch on the battle of financial giants for management of the Alleghany Corp. that controls over $7.5 billion in railroad and other investments.

This battle comes to a head May 1 at Alleghany's annual stockholders meeting at Lord Baltimore Hotel, Baltimore, Md.

THE "GENERAL" ON ONE SIDE OF THIS WAR is Allan P. Kirby, 68-year-old Eastern financier worth around $200 million. He is a son of one of the six founders of Woolworth's and is today its largest single stockholder. He is also largest single stockholder in New York Central and Alleghany Corp. itself.

Leaders of the opposing forces for control of Alleghany are the Murchison brothers — John D., 39, and Clint W. Jr., 37 — reportedly worth about $150 million. They are the sons of Clint W. Murchison Sr., old and ailing Texas oilman, one of the richest men in America.

Securities and Exchange Commission's responsibility in a battle of this kind is to see that stockholders whose votes are solicited by warring factions are given accurate information in compliance with SEC proxy rules.

They provide that there can be no false or misleading statements by either side "which directly or indirectly impugn character, integrity or personal reputation or make changes concerning improper, illegal or immoral conduct or associations, without factual foundation."

SEC itself can't order corrections. But it can seek court injunctions against the use of such material. And this weapon acts as a strong deterrent on unethical operators. In the Alleghany battle, there have been a number of charges by both sides.

THE INTEREST IN THIS CASE is far wider than that, however. In addition to the 23,000 holders of Alleghany's 10 million shares of common, owners of stock in its principal subsidiaries have a stake in this war. Alleghany controls the $2.5 billion New York Central, the $1.5 billion Missouri Pacific and the $3.5 billion Investors Diversified Services — IDS — which manages eight investment companies with over 660,000 shareholders.

Recently, Alleghany has also bought into Transamerica Corp., West Coast insurance holding company, and B&O railroad to support it and NYC in their effort to control C&O.

Alleghany Chairman Kirby and his former associate, the late railroad tycoon Robert R. Young, were originally allied with Clint Murchison Sr. when they bought into New York Central.

Later, Young sold the Murchison brothers a block of stock in Investors Diversified Services. But when Robert Young committed suicide in 1958, the Muchisons bought his Alleghany holdings from his widow. Then they began a fight to take over control of IDS. They lost and their representatives were ousted from IDS management.

Last September the Murchisons filed statements with SEC announcing their intent to challenge Alleghany management. They charged Kirby with "negative management" of Alleghany's investment policy and with "part-time management."

The young Murchison brothers had come to New York from Dallas 10 years ago after their father had set up a personal holding company for them, and they had done all right. They may have thought Kirby, at his age, would not fight. What they did not reckon with was his pride.

ALLEGHANY HAD A DEFICIT of $89 million when Kirby was made its president in 1939. In 1949 its stock sold for from $2 to $4 a share. In 1959 it range was $9 to $15. Though it has never paid a dividend on its common stock, this year Kirby claimed its equity was $92 million in the black — an improvement of $181 million in 22 years.

In February, Kirby and his associates owned 12 per cent of Alleghany's common, preferred and stock warrants, estimated worth $17 million. The Murchisons owned 10 per cent, worth $14 million. Both sides began to buy heavily.

When the books closed April 14, the Kirby forces claimed ownership of 34 per cent of the shares and warrants and were claiming victory. The Murchisons claimed ownership of 27 per cent and were counting heavily on independent stockholders who own 40 per cent of the shares to play the determing role at the coming May Day meeting.

A Time for Looking Ahead, Not Back, on Cuban Crisis

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — Maybe it's time to urge the petty politicians to lay off each other and recognize the seriousnes of the Cuban situation. For it's serious in more respects than one.

It's not important to look back just to assess blame, political or other wise. It is more important to learn from the past and then go ahead decisively.

To understand what's been going on here, it is necessary to say that President Eisenhower and his advisers felt more than a year ago that it was desirable to encourage the Cuban exiles who wanted to liberate their homeland. Vice President Nixon and others participated in those discussions. Some people in the State Department dragged their feet and kept urging all the reasons why no help should be given. Division of opinion was responsible for many months of delay. Meanwhile, the Communists intensified their help to Castro.

When the Presidential campaign got under way, it became necessary for President Eisenhower to take Sen. Kennedy into his confidence and tell him what was taking place. There was no dissent by Mr. Kennedy but an eagerness to find out what was being developed to hasten the exit of Fidel Castro from the scene. Discussion of dangers and pitfalls became prolonged at various levels of government here and caused Vice-President Nixon, for instance, to become impatient as he urged that the plan be carried out promptly. But it proved to be a bigger undertaking than any one had foreseen. Also, the political campaign itself acted as an inevitable roadblock to action.

Kennedy Backed Plans

When President Kennedy came into office, he could have stopped the whole enterprise. He was urged to do so by some of his inexperienced advisers who said a lot about "prestige" in Europe, Asia and Africa, and expressed fears about Latin-American opinion and over what Mr. Khrushchev might do. President Kennedy rose above the bickerings of his advisers and decided to stay with the original plan. He is being wholeheartedly commended for this by Vice-President Nixon.

Now, it so happens that Secretary Udall of the Interior Department made a comment on television last Sunday which aroused the ire of Senate Republican leader Dirksen and others. Mr. Udall was asked if the American people today support "this kind of American involvement in an atack on Castro." The Secretary replied:

"Well, I don't think there is any doubt but that they do. The fascinating thing about this particular business is that here was a plan conceived by one Administration—this, from all I can find out, began over a year ago and President Eisenhower directed it. And here the actual plan was carried out under a successor Administration. I certainly think the attitude of the former President, of Mr. Nixon, and of these other people is indicative of the fact that we do stand together as a people and that whether we did what was right or wrong, that there is national unity on questions like these."

Interpreted as Criticism

Perhaps Mr. Udall was trying to bolster national unity, but his off-the-cuff remarks came to be construed as critical of the preceding Administration. He expressed regret afterward that this had happened.

Actually, one good purpose is served by examining in retrospect what did happen. For obviously there were some weaknesses revealed. It's no secret that the United States hasn't been equipped to carry on guerrilla warfare. Also, it is well known that Vice-President Nixon has been recommending right along that the Central Intelligence Agency confine itself to information-gathering and that it be relieved of any responsibility for guiding guerrilla operations. For this is largely a military problem. One result of the discussions has been a determination by President Kennedy to strengthen America's facilities for helping guerrilla operations on our side, especially since the Soviets specialize in that sort of thing nowadays. He has asked Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor to study the problem and recommend a plan of operations for the future.

An Inevitable Lag

A lack of co-ordination is inevitable when one Administration goes out and another comes in. Theoretical discussions about the "transition period" are helpful, but they cannot become a substitute for actual experience. The United States "changed horses in mid-stream" and is today paying the penalty for it. Next time a Presidential election comes up, some serious thought will have to be given to a system that will preserve the continuity of operations on the world front irrespective of who is the victor in the contest for electoral votes.

One thing is clear. Mr. Castro will make the mistake of his life if he thinks the so-called "failure of the invaders last week will gain him anything in the long run. Mass executions will only intensify the drive to undermine his regime, and it could possibly involve the use of American military forces soon if the present Havana government continues to maltreat Americans and seize their properties. The days of Castro are numbered. In the not-far-distant future, the sequel to the "invasion" will come, and there will be a different story to tell.

DO YOU REMEMBER

By SOPHIE MILLER

As far as Kingston is concerned I guess our Day Line boat days are over. Back in 1913 they put out a fine little Hudson River Day Line souvenir magazine which listed Kingston Point. In those days the "Flying White Fleet," as this line was sometimes called could carry some 20,000 passengers at one time, and many got on and off at our Kingston Point Park.

They have an article on Bannerman's Island Arsenal, At the time they were talking about the state's proposal to build a "roadway around Storm King Mountain. The face of the living rock to be cut away at a height of 18 feet above the river and a broad roadway built on the mountain side, at which vantage point travelers may pause and glimpse the unique panorama." That was written back in 1913, many things have come to pass since.

It was further written in 1913: "On the eastern bank it is proposed to build a road above the railroad tracks, around the face of Break Neck Mountain.

The beauties of the Hudson at this point have been measurably opened to the traveler's eye where the Hudson River Railroad is building a four-track system, has shaved away many headlands which formerly cut off the view."

"Polopel's Island, lying at the foot of Storm King, strongly suggests an old Scottish castle of feudal days. It towers are so set on this rocky island and its gun so trained on the water approaches that it seems to be safe against attacks which might have come before the advent of modern artillery. General Washington and his officers frequently visited this spot during the construction of the Polopel's Island obstruction and fortifications, and on the opposite shore lay in camp the patriot army."

According to this 1913 Hudson River Day Line souvenir magazine, "Polopel's Island is owned by Francis Bannerman, 501 Broadway, New York City, and used as a military arsenal for the storage of government auction goods. The cannons mounted on the fortifications have seen service in the Civil War. At the northeast battery is placed a nine-inch smooth bore weighing over 9,000 pounds and this is the cannon shown in action in the famous painting, "An August Morning With Farragut at the Battle of Mobile Bay."

This is all new to me, although I have always wondered about that castle on an island like out of a fairy tale. It seems that in 1913 Bannerman was known as the foremost authority in the world on old arms, which he bought and sold them for over a half a century. His store in New York was packed with military weapons, a museum salesroom collection of ancient and modern arms covering every country and age since the Crusades.

At the time he put out an illustrated catalog of some 420 pages, 9 by 11 inches, and it was supposed to be a masterpiece of its kind, and highly prized by those interested in the art military. One could receive it by mail for only 25 cents. Perhaps some of the readers have one of these books.

His store, of more than one floor, so it seems, was open to visitors who could just look around and was known then as one of the show places in New York. Museums throughout the country used to find rare and ancient specimens for their collections. With all the trips I made on the Day Line, I wonder why I never saw these booklets, now they fall into my hands.

CATHOLIC CHARITIES

For the 42nd consecutive year New York Catholic Charities is conducting a fund appeal to continue its multiple welfare services to dependent, neglected, handicapped and delinquent children; to the physically and mentally ill, the aged, the helpless and the homeless, to children and young people needing constructive leisure time activities, and to families unable to cope with their own problems. The goal is $3,325,740.

When Catholic Charities started its ministry of mercy in 1919, most families were able to provide for their own sick and aged, and neighbors assisted each other. But in today's complex and troubled world and with the advances made in the social and medical sciences, there are many problems beyond the ability of families or neighbors to solve; problems that require skilled counseling, specialized services, a thorough knowledge of public and private resources, and financial assistance.

The services of New York Catholic Charities and its 192 affiliated welfare agencies and institutions, last year reached almost 600,000 men, women and children of all ages—from the smallest of human beings, the infant born prematurely, to aged men and women chronically ill and incapacitated.

Actual assistance to most of these people would have been beyond the ability of kind hearted and charitable neighbors, but they supplied the needed skills and services through generous support of New York Catholic Charities fund appeal. They are now being asked for a continuance of that support by volunteers who are making a house-to-house canvass of Catholic families in the 401 parishes of the New York Archdiocese, which includes Ulster County.

SPACE DECISION NEEDED

The United States had better decide whether the competition for primacy in the development of space travel is important enough to warrant an all-out effort. Despite our considerable successes, this country has not yet fully committed itself to such a decision and the course of action that would follow.

If our answer is no, we will have to adjust to the realization that the Soviet Union probably will go on scoring firsts. If our answer is yes, then we had better go at the matter hammer and tongs.

The question posed above is not an idle one. It has been argued rather persuasively that we should stop worrying about space and devote more energy and wealth to the problems of mankind here on earth. Still, when all considerations—including the vital need to maintain our prestige in the eyes of uncommitted peoples— are weighed the balance comes down strongly for a space program second to none.

Such a program means firmly coordinated effort bolstered by the highest priorities and enough money to do the job. It also means an increase in the amount of work done on various projects. More than one critic of our space program has been impressed by this aspect of the situation.

Rep. Joseph E. Karth, a member of the House Space Committee, has just expressed the view that the United States could be first to the moon if the number of man hours devoted to certain key rocket projects were doubled. He noted that at the Huntsville, Ala., Saturn installation there was only one five-day-a-week shift.

More man hours may not be the entire answer. But there is inescapable logic in the idea that the harder we work at our space program, the better our chances of surpassing the Soviet Union will be.

It's a vicious circle. Dirksen and Halleck needle the Democrats, liberal Republicans needle Dirksen and Halleck—and the Internal Revenue Service needles everyone.

Most newlyweds have eyes only for each other—and therefore don't see the bill collectors lurking just around the corner.

A POSITIVE CUBA POLICY

President Kennedy, in asserting a positive Cuba policy, has given hope to the peoples of the world who seek freedom. He said that Cuba would not be abandoned to Communism. Now this policy needs to be implemented. Just saying something is not sufficient; we need to be willing and able to back our position by whatever force is required. Otherwise, we shall be in a worse position than ever. The United States dares not let Khrushchev call our bluff; it must, in fact, not be a bluff.

The Cuban situation requires review. For months, the Senate Internal Security Sub-committee has been holding executive session hearings on various aspects of the Cuban problem. Alleghany controls the $2.5 billion New York Central, the $1.5 billion Missouri Pacific and the $3.5 billion Investors Diversified Services — IDS — which manages eight investment companies with over 660,000 shareholders.

Recently, Alleghany has also bought into Transamerica Corp., West Coast insurance holding company, and B&O railroad to support it and NYC in their effort to control C&O.

Alleghany Chairman Kirby and his former associate, the late railroad tycoon Robert R. Young, were originally allied with Clint Murchison Sr. when they bought into New York Central.

Later, Young sold the Murchison brothers a block of stock in Investors Diversified Services. But when Robert Young committed suicide in 1958, the Muchisons bought his Alleghany holdings from his widow. Then they began a fight to take over control of IDS. They lost and their representatives were ousted from IDS management.

Last September the Murchisons filed statements with SEC announcing their intent to challenge Alleghany management. They charged Kirby with "negative management" of Alleghany's investment policy and with "part-time management."

The young Murchison brothers had come to New York from Dallas 10 years ago after their father had set up a personal holding company for them, and they had done all right. They may have thought Kirby, at his age, would not fight. What they did not reckon with was his pride.

ALLEGHANY HAD A DEFICIT of $89 million when Kirby was made its president in 1939. In 1949 its stock sold for from $2 to $4 a share. In 1959 it range was $9 to $15. Though it has never paid a dividend on its common stock, this year Kirby claimed its equity was $92 million in the black — an improvement of $181 million in 22 years.

In February, Kirby and his associates owned 12 per cent of Alleghany's common, preferred and stock warrants, estimated worth $17 million. The Murchisons owned 10 per cent, worth $14 million. Both sides began to buy heavily.

When the books closed April 14, the Kirby forces claimed ownership of 34 per cent of the shares and warrants and were claiming victory. The Murchisons claimed ownership of 27 per cent and were counting heavily on independent stockholders who own 40 per cent of the shares to play the determing role at the coming May Day meeting.

A Time for Looking Ahead, Not Back, on Cuban Crisis

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — Maybe it's time to urge the petty politicians to lay off each other and recognize the seriousnes of the Cuban situation. For it's serious in more respects than one.

It's not important to look back just to assess blame, political or other wise. It is more important to learn from the past and then go ahead decisively.

To understand what's been going on here, it is necessary to say that President Eisenhower and his advisers felt more than a year ago that it was desirable to encourage the Cuban exiles who wanted to liberate their homeland. Vice President Nixon and others participated in those discussions. Some people in the State Department dragged their feet and kept urging all the reasons why no help should be given. Division of opinion was responsible for many months of delay. Meanwhile, the Communists intensified their help to Castro.

When the Presidential campaign got under way, it became necessary for President Eisenhower to take Sen. Kennedy into his confidence and tell him what was taking place. There was no dissent by Mr. Kennedy but an eagerness to find out what was being developed to hasten the exit of Fidel Castro from the scene. Discussion of dangers and pitfalls became prolonged at various levels of government here and caused Vice-President Nixon, for instance, to become impatient as he urged that the plan be carried out promptly. But it proved to be a bigger undertaking than any one had foreseen. Also, the political campaign itself acted as an inevitable roadblock to action.

Kennedy Backed Plans

When President Kennedy came into office, he could have stopped the whole enterprise. He was urged to do so by some of his inexperienced advisers who said a lot about "prestige" in Europe, Asia and Africa, and expressed fears about Latin-American opinion and over what Mr. Khrushchev might do. President Kennedy rose above the bickerings of his advisers and decided to stay with the original plan. He is being wholeheartedly commended for this by Vice-President Nixon.

Now, it so happens that Secretary Udall of the Interior Department made a comment on television last Sunday which aroused the ire of Senate Republican leader Dirksen and others. Mr. Udall was asked if the American people today support "this kind of American involvement in an atack on Castro." The Secretary replied:

"Well, I don't think there is any doubt but that they do. The fascinating thing about this particular business is that here was a plan conceived by one Administration—this, from all I can find out, began over a year ago and President Eisenhower directed it. And here the actual plan was carried out under a successor Administration. I certainly think the attitude of the former President, of Mr. Nixon, and of these other people is indicative of the fact that we do stand together as a people and that whether we did what was right or wrong, that there is national unity on questions like these."

Interpreted as Criticism

Perhaps Mr. Udall was trying to bolster national unity, but his off-the-cuff remarks came to be construed as critical of the preceding Administration. He expressed regret afterward that this had happened.

Actually, one good purpose is served by examining in retrospect what did happen. For obviously there were some weaknesses revealed. It's no secret that the United States hasn't been equipped to carry on guerrilla warfare. Also, it is well known that Vice-President Nixon has been recommending right along that the Central Intelligence Agency confine itself to information-gathering and that it be relieved of any responsibility for guiding guerrilla operations. For this is largely a military problem. One result of the discussions has been a determination by President Kennedy to strengthen America's facilities for helping guerrilla operations on our side, especially since the Soviets specialize in that sort of thing nowadays. He has asked Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor to study the problem and recommend a plan of operations for the future.

An Inevitable Lag

A lack of co-ordination is inevitable when one Administration goes out and another comes in. Theoretical discussions about the "transition period" are helpful, but they cannot become a substitute for actual experience. The United States "changed horses in mid-stream" and is today paying the penalty for it. Next time a Presidential election comes up, some serious thought will have to be given to a system that will preserve the continuity of operations on the world front irrespective of who is the victor in the contest for electoral votes.

One thing is clear. Mr. Castro will make the mistake of his life if he thinks the so-called "failure of the invaders last week will gain him anything in the long run. Mass executions will only intensify the drive to undermine his regime, and it could possibly involve the use of American military forces soon if the present Havana government continues to maltreat Americans and seize their properties. The days of Castro are numbered. In the not-far-distant future, the sequel to the "invasion" will come, and there will be a different story to tell.

DO YOU REMEMBER

By SOPHIE MILLER

As far as Kingston is concerned I guess our Day Line boat days are over. Back in 1913 they put out a fine little Hudson River Day Line souvenir magazine which listed Kingston Point. In those days the "Flying White Fleet," as this line was sometimes called could carry some 20,000 passengers at one time, and many got on and off at our Kingston Point Park.

They have an article on Bannerman's Island Arsenal. At the time they were talking about the state's proposal to build a "roadway around Storm King Mountain. The face of the living rock to be cut away at a height of 18 feet above the river and a broad roadway built on the mountain side, at which vantage point travelers may pause and glimpse the unique panorama." That was written back in 1913, many things have come to pass since.

It was further written in 1913: "On the eastern bank it is proposed to build a road above the railroad tracks, around the face of Break Neck Mountain.

The beauties of the Hudson at this point have been measurably opened to the traveler's eye where the Hudson River Railroad is building a four-track system, has shaved away many headlands which formerly cut off the view."

"Polopel's Island, lying at the foot of Storm King, strongly suggests an old Scottish castle of feudal days. It towers are so set on this rocky island and its gun so trained on the water approaches that it seems to be safe against attacks which might have come before the advent of modern artillery. General Washington and his officers frequently visited this spot during the construction of the Polopel's Island obstruction and fortifications, and on the opposite shore lay in camp the patriot army."

According to this 1913 Hudson River Day Line souvenir magazine, "Polopel's Island is owned by Francis Bannerman, 501 Broadway, New York City, and used as a military arsenal for the storage of government auction goods. The cannons mounted on the fortifications have seen service in the Civil War. At the northeast battery is placed a nine-inch smooth bore weighing over 9,000 pounds and this is the cannon shown in action in the famous painting, "An August Morning With Farragut at the Battle of Mobile Bay."

This is all new to me, although I have always wondered about that castle on an island like out of a fairy tale. It seems that in 1913 Bannerman was known as the foremost authority in the world on old arms, which he bought and sold them for over a half a century. His store in New York was packed with military weapons, a museum salesroom collection of ancient and modern arms covering every country and age since the Crusades.

At the time he put out an illustrated catalog of some 420 pages, 9 by 11 inches, and it was supposed to be a masterpiece of its kind, and highly prized by those interested in the art military. One could receive it by mail for only 25 cents. Perhaps some of the readers have one of these books.

His store, of more than one floor, so it seems, was open to visitors who could just look around and was known then as one of the show places in New York. Museums throughout the country used to find rare and ancient specimens for their collections. With all the trips I made on the Day Line, I wonder why I never saw these booklets, now they fall into my hands.

So They Say..

Glancing Over TV Bill of Fare

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP TV-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—"You never know when you'll be on television," said the representative from the 4th District of the state of Washington. "So I go to the hairdresser's twice a week.

"I always dress very conservatively, and am particularly careful about the collar lines. I wear non-glittery jewelry—no big pins that won't come off in a hurry. I never go out without a hat or a pair of spotless white gloves. And because I'm never sure there's not a camera around somewhere I've broken myself of such comfortable habits as slouching, and dangling a pump off one toe."

The representative is Catherine May, but it is safe to say that all of our representatives, male and female, are forced to pay close attention these days to the way they look and act.

Mrs. May went to Congress better equipped to cope with TV problems than most. A Yakima housewife and mother, she had a commercial radio show of her own. Then, during six years in the Washington Legislature she continued to report weekly to her constituents by radio. After winning the Republican congressional primary in 1958, she moved on to television.

"I did some of my campaigning by television," she said. "I found that five minutes was the most effective amount of time. I wrote my own scripts, never launched more than two ideas at a time — one was better — and looked straight into the camera as I talked."

Mrs. May's family and friends served as her severest critics, and still do. They reported that the porcelain fillings in her teeth photographed black. Like just about every TV star in the business, she will have them capped. She was instructed to smile more, stop fiddling with a paperclip or pencil, never to wear that dress with the picture collar again because it made her shoulders look too broad, to stop "doing something funny with your mouth."

"All this," she sighed, "has certainly added another dimension to the life of a congresswoman—or congressman."

South Forgot to Duck Lead

Here is another hand that illustrates the hard luck that dogs certain players.

South went up with dummy's king of spades at trick one and led a club. East hopped up with the ace and led his last spade. South ducked, but West overtook and cleared up the spade suit. Then when West got in with the king of clubs he cashed his last two spades and set the contract.

South did have hard luck. Spades could have broken 4-3 instead of 5-2, or East might have played a low club the first time the suit was led, but all this hard luck was South's own fault.

All South had to do to make his contrct was to have ducked the first spade lead. He would have taken the second spade lead and gone after the clubs as he actually did.

If East rose with his ace he would not have had a spade to lead; if East let the trick go around to West's king, West could clear the spade suit, but would never be able to get the lead again.

Of course, the cards could be set up so that the duck play would do South no good at all. Give West five spades and both the ace and king of clubs and South would have been doomed to defeat from the start and that would have really been tough luck.

NEW YORK (AP)—Wall Street is thinking big these days—about how it should look as well as about how high is up for stock prices.

But planning how the famed financial district can be saved from decay, made more useful and more glamorous is one thing. Getting it done is another.

Men backing the big rejuvenation of Manhattan Island's lower tip say the plan is really moving now.

Two Years of Progress

"We've made good progress in two years of trying," says David Rockefeller, chairman of the Downtown-Lower Manhattan Association. "It may take 10 years to get everything done. But the chances look good now, both of getting official approval and of raising the money."

The younger brother of New York's Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller is president of the Chase Manhattan Bank, which is moving into the new 60-story building in the area it thinks should continue to be the world's financial capital.

"The association's plan for the area is to the interest of all concerned," David Rockefeller said in an interview. "Beating back encroaching decay will benefit those already here. The planned new buildings will bring together allied public and private groups now scattered.

Big Tax Benefits

"And the local government, which must approve the changes, will benefit from getting big tax returns from areas where decay has reduced receipts almost to nothing."

The association's plans have all the modern trappings—the latest in architecture, such as a circular building for the new home of the New York Stock Exchange; a $355 - million building cluster to bring together all the activities of the great harbor that make it a world trade center; a hotel for out-of-town tycoons and lesser lights having business in Wall Street; and middle-income housing in walking distance of Wall Street jobs.

The powerful Port of New York Authority, an agency of the states of New York and New Jersey, has come out as sponsor for the $355-million world trade center. The New York Legislature has approved the plan. The authority now awaits similar action by the New Jersey lawmakers. Then it can draw up detailed plans and arrange financing.

Sees No Difficulties

The authority's record of financing bridges and tunnels and making them pay and pay and pay has given its security offerings top rating. Rockefeller foresees no financing difficulties if the authority gets the official go ahead.

Still to be decided is whether the authority will sell some of its completed projects, or lease them. The New York Stock exchange, say, might rent the proposed new trading quarters instead of owning them outright.

Housing developments, apart from the world trade center, require federal and city approval. But Rockefeller insists that this should be forthcoming and that real estate interests are ready to go ahead at once under Title I for slum clearance.

Naturally, since people over 65 often need more frequent and intensive care, the rates for these new subscribers must be higher.

Watch for handy application form to appear in this newspaper

Beginning May 1, simplified application forms will appear in this and other newspapers. Be sure to watch for them! And remember, applications for this Non-Group Enrollment will be accepted only from May 1 through May 13. So plan now to act promptly!

Hospital and doctor bill protection pioneered by BLUE CROSS and BLUE SHIELD

Today's announcement of special Open Non-Group Enrollment is just the latest step in the Blue Cross and Blue Shield tradition of making better and better health protection available to more and more people at the lowest possible cost! Here are other examples of how these non-profit community services have pioneered this protection for persons in the Greater New York area:

- First to offer both hospital and doctor bill coverage to the community at large.
- Made it possible for more people to enjoy this protection through low-cost group enrollment.
- Provided coverage for smaller and smaller groups—until today, groups as small as three are eligible!
- Pioneered in covering many who could not obtain such protection elsewhere.
- Made it possible for subscribers to convert memberships when family or employment circumstances change.
- Enabled persons who retire to retain their protection . . . with no limit on age or reduction in basic benefits.
- Offered continuous coverage regardless of age or frequency of use.

Governor Vetoes Superhighway in Watertown Locale

ALBANY, N. Y. (AP) — Gov. Rockefeller has vetoed a bill calling for a superhighway from a point near Watertown across Northern New York to Plattsburgh.

The legislation called on the state to relinquish its claim for federal aid.

New York has been allotted 1,200 miles of highways under a federal program in which the national government pays 90 per cent of the cost of building highways and the state pays 10 per cent.

The state has earmarked approximately half of this mileage for the State Thruway, now completed. The federal government, however, has refused to pay the 90 per cent for toll roads built before the national highway program was launched.

Nevertheless, New York has continued to press for either funds or an additional 550 miles to compensate for the Thruway, which is part of the interstate network.

The bill on the Northern New York highway called for relinquishing a claim on enough Thruway mileage to allow construction of the new route.

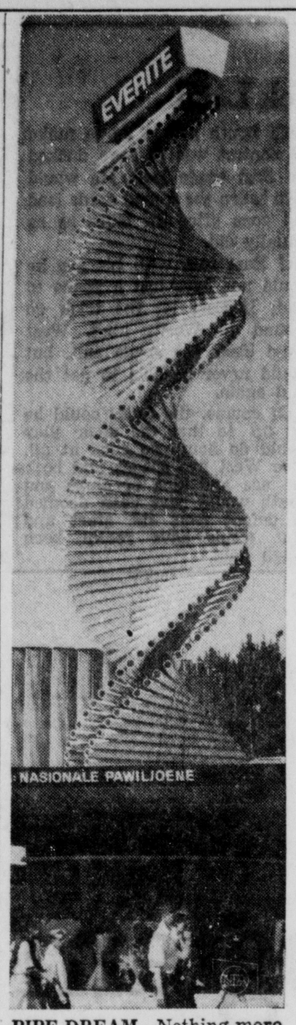

The governor said in his veto message, released today, that the bill "would not only fail to achieve its objective but would seriously jeopardize the entire, interstate highway program within the state."

He said designation of a new, interstate route, such as the proposed northern road would be "entirely ineffectual without the approval of the federal government."

While built only in New York, the proposed new route would have connected the North-South Expressway through Central New York, and the Northway, between Albany and Canada. The North-South route will extend to Pennsylvania.

The governor said that, under the bill, New York would have lost $76 million in interstate funds.

"The deletion of major portions of the Thruway from the interstate system would defeat the efforts being made by the state to obtain equitable reimbursement from the federal government for the cost of constructing the Thruway," Rockefeller said.

Raise in Pay Is Signed by Rocky For Legislators

By ROBERT T. GRAY

ALBANY, N. Y. (AP) — Gov. Rockefeller has approved a 50 per cent increase in state legislators' pay, raising it to $12,500 a year by 1963.

The legislative leaders will receive $29,000 annually.

Rockefeller signed the pay-raise bill without comment as he completed his 1961 bill-signing chores Monday night. His action on the bill was announced by his office today.

The Republican governor left Albany early today to meet with President Kennedy, who invited Rockefeller to the White House for a briefing on the Cuban situation.

New York's legislators, already the highest-paid state lawmakers in the nation, had been paid $7,500 in salary and $1,000 in expenses. The expense allowance was raised during the 1961 legislative session, to $2,500, effective immediately. The bill Rockefeller signed Monday night raises the base salary to $10,000, effective Jan. 1, 1963.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market recovered vigorously today from Monday's sharp selloff. Trading slackened early this afternoon.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was up 1.00 at 240.60 with industrials up 1.80, rails up .30 and utilities up .40.

Key stocks recouped from fractions to more than a point of losses taken in Monday's decline, the sharpest in seven months. Some of the "growth" stocks which were clipped so badly in profit taking recouped 5 or 6 points.

American Photocopy recouped about 8 points of Monday's loss of 11¼. Polaroid recovered all but a point of its 7¼-point decline. American Machine & Foundry won back about 5 points of its 9¼ loss.

Zenith came back more than 5 points, Varian Associates and Foxboro about 3 apiece, GM about 2.

Steels, motors, oils, aircraft-missiles, drugs, building materials, electronics, most chemicals and tobaccos were among the gainers. Airlines and rails showed scant change as the session wore on.

The Dow Jones industrial average at noon was up 6.56 at 679.22.

Corporate bonds were irregularly lower. U.S. government bonds were firm.

Goes to Highland Honor Student

Upright Is Selected For C-H Scholarship

Arthur R. Upright, a senior honor student at Highland Central School, has been selected from 31 high school candidates throughout the Mid-Hudson Valley area to receive Central Hudson Gas and Electric Corporation's annual engineering scholarship to Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute.

During an assembly at the Highland school, the Utility's Poughkeepsie resident manager, William E. VanWagenen, briefly reviewed the history of the scholarship program and announced that the Highland student was the 1961 winner.

Frederick W. Snyder, Central Hudson division manager, presented the scholarship certificate to young Upright.

Upright, who is the 13th recipient of the Utility's four-year scholarship, will enter the Troy college this fall where he will study electrical engineering.

The Highland student competed for the scholarship with 30 other high school candidates who were nominated by their respective schools. During their junior year, the candidates, including Upright, participated in a two-week summer course covering all phases of Central Hudson's gas and electric operations.

The scholarship award was based on academic standing, personality, leadership qualities and aptitude for an engineering career.

Upright, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Upright, New Paltz Road, was co-editor of the school yearbook and a staff member of the student newspaper. He is also a member of the National Honor Society and Quill and Scroll, a journalism society.

The Highland student is a member of the basketball and baseball teams and he has been selected salutatorian of his class. He has also received a New York State Regents scholarship.

Upright is the second Highland student to win the Central Hudson scholarship. Edward P. Walsh received the award in 1952.

Police Residency

proval of a $15 million state theatre, a major revision of the state's law governing business corporations and two new judges for the state court of claims.

When he finished the bills, Rockefeller left immediately for New York City.

The dedication of a new plant of the International Business Machines Corp. at Yorktown Heights, Westchester County, was on his schedule before his flight to Washington.

Could Be Opponents

The conference in the national capitol will bring together two men who may oppose each other for the presidency in 1964. Rockefeller is considered among the potential GOP candidates to oppose Kennedy.

In winding up his bill-signing job Monday, the governor chided the Legislature for not taking more extensive action to overhaul and update rules governing courtroom practice.

In approving a bill designed to speed handling of a limited number of civil cases, the governor said it was "a source of deep concern to me that there is not before me for executive action a bill to effect a general modernization and simplification of the practice and procedure in the courts."

Measure Killed

A broad bill to revise the Civil Practice Act was introduced in the 1960 Legislature for study, in the 1961 Legislature for final action. The measure was killed, however, in a dispute over provisions that would shift from the courts to the Legislature the power to make rules for court procedures.

Rockefeller also approved legislation providing for the first general revision in nearly 40 years of the state's corporation laws. The revision, a voluminous, technical affair, will take effect April 1, 1963.

Tammany His Target

Tammany Hall also was a target of the governor in the closing phase of the bill-signing period.

He announced he had signed a bill permitting the state to purchase a $15-million theatre at Lincoln Center for the Performing Arts. The Center management will construct the building and the state then will buy it.

The governor noted that New York City's plan to build a library-museum in the center was lagging because of political problems. He blamed these on Tammany Hall, "an institution not noted for its devotion to culture."

The governor took this action on other bills:

Motor Vehicles — Vetoed bills that would have made it illegal to leave ignition keys in a motor vehicle unless they were hidden, permitted issuance of limited licenses, for work only to persons whose regular licenses had been revoked for speeding or persistent traffic violations; excluded some farm vehicles from requirements that trucks be equipped with mud flaps or stone deflectors to protect vehicles travelling behind them.

Firemen—Approved a measure specifying that fire departments will be legally responsible if their vehicles or men are engaged in any accident while responding to a call for assistance from outside their own districts.

Mrs. Brinkman was sent to Matteawan State Hospital for the Criminal Insane and was recently discharged as being mentally able now to stand trial. Sherwood E. Davis appeared for defendant. Sentence will be pronounced Thursday at 2 p. m.

Doyle Sentenced

Arthur Percy Doyle, Saugerties, charged with burglary, unlawful entry and petit larceny, entered a plea of guilty to burglary, third degree, and was sentenced to 1½ to 3 years in Clinton State Prison. He was given credit for time served in jail. The other counts of the indictment were dismissed. G. Thomas Rea appeared for Doyle. He was charged with entering the Edward Mertz place, Saugerties, Sept. 8, last.

Andrew M. VanDemark charged with third degree assault, entered a plea of guilty. He will be sentenced May 1, at 10 a. m. Charles Sacoman appeared for defendant. Bail was continued.

Murray Markoff entered a plea of guilty to a violation of the Vehicle and Traffic Law, failing to keep to the right and was fined $100. He had been indicted for driving while intoxicated.

Pleads Innocent

Michael Christofora, 23, Broadway, Kingston, charged with third degree burglary, unlawful entry, entered a plea of innocent. His case was adjourned to May 8 at 2 p. m. on request of his counsel, Francis Martocci. He was remanded to jail.

Moses Harrel, 25, 57 Van Buren Street, was arraigned on a burglary and unlawful entry charge. He entered a plea of innocent and was given 10 days to make motions. Charles Saccoman appeared for defendant. Bail was fixed at $1,000 cash. He was remanded to jail.

ROK Arrests General

SEOUL, South Korea (AP)—The South Korean army provost marshal's office today arrested a general accused of circulating a statement slandering his seniors.

Brig. Gen. Lee Kyu-kwang was alleged by army investigators to be author of a document accusing several top military leaders of committing injustices under the administration of ex-President Syngman Rhee.

6 Candidates

"particularly objectionable." It was Stedge's opinion that if the candidate felt strongly about an issue he should make his feelings known to the general public. Greer said he felt he would be remiss in not bringing the matter to public attention. MacKinnon argued similarly pointing out that this might help restore public faith in the board. Mrs. Murphy said she believed that after the board made a decision it should attempt to present a solid front.

All but Stedge felt there was no particular objection to the loyalty oath required of teachers prior to employment. Stedge made the point that the oath really has no meaning, that those who don't believe would not hesitate to take such an oath, thus rendering it essentially futile.

Replies on Religion

In reply to a question on religious affiliations and activities, MacKinnon said he is a member of the Old Dutch Church and served two years on its consistory; Greer, St. John's Episcopal Church; Stedge, Lutheran Church of the Redeemer; Mrs. Murphy, who described herself as a Protestant married to a Catholic, has attended both services; Singer, a participant in religious activities; Mansfield, a member of the Church of the Nazarene.

There was general suspicion of federal aid to education among most of the candidates, although Mrs. Murphy pointed out that there is a tendency to confuse federal aid with federal control and that, actually, education is already receiving extensive federal aid of various types, such as aid to veterans, the National Defense Act which provides funds for purchase of educational equipment, certain salary aid for teachers, etc.

The third and last panel discussion sponsored by the Kingston Parent-Teacher Association Council will be held at the Lake Katrine School at 8 p. m. Thursday.

Mansfield today said he was approached after last night's meeting by people who complained that their questions went unanswered. Having been invited to ask questions these people were entitled to answers, the candidate from Tillson said. He knew some of them were addressed to him, he said, and commented, "I don't think I'm getting a fair shake."

Believes This Is a Good Time to Buy Strong Stocks

Q) "As I read the market quotations, it seems that most stocks are at an all-time high. Is this the time to buy? I feel that we cannot go on postponing buying indefinitely, thinking perhaps tomorrow will be better." M. H.

A) Yours is a question often asked today, and I am glad to have the opportunity to reply.

To begin with, most stocks are not really at their all-time highs. Many issues in groups such as cements, machine tools, oils, construction, textiles, distillers, aluminums, and railroads are now selling at prices considerably below former high levels.

A lot of stocks have had strong advances recently. The spectacular performers have, of course, been the so-called fast growth companies such as Avon products, Beckman Instruments, American Photocopy, and Bobbie Brooks.

You ask, is this the time to buy? Let me answer this way. Our economy seems to be coming out of its relatively shallow recession, and the corporate earnings picture should begin to improve. Moderate inflation is expected to result from the Federal government's deficit spending programs. These two factors should continue to support the stock list as a whole.

As a general rule, I suggest that you avoid both the heavily touted high-flying issues and the tempting low-priced speculations. Purchase, instead, stocks with strong intrinsic value and rising earnings, and be prepared to hold them for a reasonable period of time. Look for a good product, good management, and effective merchandising policies.

Specifically, I might mention such stocks as Burry Biscuit (ASE) and Green Shoe (NYSE).

Yes, I believe you should invest today, within the framework that I have suggested. There is no reason for believing that tomorrow will bring better buying opportunities.

Q) "What is your opinion of Emerson Electric?" R. P.

A) This is a fine growth situation. The shares have one of the strongest long-term chart patterns among a total of 1,000 which my office follows constantly. I like it and would buy it.

DeGaullists . . .

Counter Rebellion Possible

Information Minister Louis Terrenoire announced that all movement of goods and money from France to Algeria was prohibited. Many of the 500,000 French troops in Algeria are conscripts. It seemed likely that the first payless payday would result in considerable counter-rebellion among those whose officers had thrown in with the rebellious generals.

A prolonged blockade would bring tremendous hardships to Algeria. The territory's farms produce mainly citrus fruit, vegetables and wine. Algeria must import most of its meat and many food staples, raw materials for its industries and all petroleum products.

Capital reserves already are low in the territory. Investors have been withdrawing their funds for months, anticipating Algeria's eventual independence.

As De Gaulle's campaign against the mutiny gathered steam, Frenchmen were startled to learn that the government today carried out its fourth atomic test explosion at Reggane, in the Sahara Desert 600 miles south of the mutineers' strongholds in Algiers, Oran and Constantine.

The announcement of a tower shot of a "weak" atomic device struck a strange "business as usual" note amid government warnings that the insurgent military leaders in Algeria might try to launch an attack against France itself.

Second Night on Guard

It seemed unlikely that De Gaulle, in going ahead with the atomic test, was trying to impress the mutineers. Instead it demonstrated his stubborn determination to raise France's status in the Western alliance and in the world power competition by developing her own atomic arsenal.

France spent its second night on guard against an invasion from Algeria that did not come. All airfields were closed for the night, their runways blocked with trucks and jeeps. Interceptor squadrons of jet fighters were on a constant alert. Tanks and thousands of security troops ringed Paris.

De Gaulle ordered insurgent Gen. Maurice Challe and his co-conspirators stricken from the rolls of the French army. Formal steps were taken to charge them with crimes against the state, with death as the ultimate penalty.

Saugerties for

even though the county may have to purchase land, it will be reimbursed by the State.

Clarke said he believes it is reasonable to assume that the majority of students, in all probability, would reside in Kingston, and accessability should certainly be one of the prime considerations.

"I can readily understand the Town of Saugerties' desire to have the college located there, and I agree that it would benefit the town of Saugerties, as it would also benefit the remaining land should the 50-acre tract be accepted," Clarke said.

The former supervisor said that IBM's offer of donating the tract near Whittier is certainly appreciated, and he questioned the location as to accessability. Clarke said the community college is not, and should not, be a "money making scheme" for the County.

Sees Benefit for Greene

Clarke said at best, the Saugerties location would only, from the standpoint of accessability, benefit the neighboring County of Greene to the north. While students from that county would be most welcome, the supervisor continued, Ulster county's prime consideration should be the city and towns of the county.

In conclusion, Clarke strongly urged the Site Committee, the Board of Supervisors, the Mayor of Kingston, to bear in mind the best interests of the students and seek a location which would be most beneficial to the children of Ulster County.

2 Firemen Escape

bowlers in the bowling alleys of The Chalet reported to Eugene Mulligan and his wife, owners, they smelled smoke.

An investigation disclosed a fire burning in the front portion of the building under the roof. The Rosendale firemen were summoned and through Mutual Aid the Tillson, Binnewater, Cottekill and Bloomington Departments were alerted.

Alleys Covered

The fire, through quick response of the firemen and good work by the volunteers, was confined to the roof and attic portion of the building where roof timbers were charred. Bowling alleys in the rear escaped fire damage and there was little damage from water which seeped through the roof. The alleys were covered with tarps by the firemen to protect them from water damage.

Deputy Sheriff Joseph Feraca reported the fire to the sheriff's office.

Thinks Lightning Did It

Assistant Chief Mulligan, a brother of Eugene Mulligan, owner of The Chalet, said the fire had aparenptly been caused by electric wiring and that the fire may have been started through a bolt of lightning entering the premises, although no one in the place observed the building being struck.

The fire was reported at approximately 10:15 p. m. and was under control at 11:50 p. m.

Tire Blew

Authorities said she was driving her car toward Kingston at about 12:45 p. m., when the left front tire blew out causing the vehicle to swerve sharply across the highway and plunge into the icy waters of Rondout Creek in the village of Rosendale.

It was reported at the time that Mrs. Starr was pulled from the partly submerged vehicle by Trooper William Brennan of Kingston state police and Sgt. George Bockelman, of the Rosendale police department.

Coroner Francis J. McCardle said Mrs. Starr was underneath the dashboard on the driver's side of the car when she was removed from the vehicle. McCardle said she died of asphyxia due to submersion.

Starr has two daughters, Johanna and Suzzanne.

A gap of about 10 miles reportedly separated the front lines in the Vang Vieng area, but no fighting was reported there today.

Clashes were reported, however, in south-central Laos, where the rebels have also gained much ground recently.

British Ambassador John Addis warned that even after the fighting is ordered stopped by both sides, there will be at least a series of small clashes before the real peace comes.

Governor Vetoes Superhighway in Watertown Locale

ALBANY, N. Y. (AP) — Gov. Rockefeller has vetoed a bill calling for a superhighway from a point near Watertown across Northern New York to Plattsburgh.

The legislation called on the state to relinquish its claim for federal aid.

New York has been allotted 1,200 miles of highways under a federal program in which the national government pays 90 per cent of the cost of building highways and the state pays 10 per cent.

The state has earmarked approximately half of this mileage for the State Thruway, now completed. The federal government, however, has refused to pay the 90 per cent for toll roads built before the national highway program was launched.

Nevertheless, New York has continued to press for either funds or an additional 550 miles to compensate for the Thruway, which is part of the interstate network.

The bill on the Northern New York highway called for relinquishing a claim on enough Thruway mileage to allow construction of the new route.

The governor said in his veto message, released today, that the bill "would not only fail to achieve its objective but would seriously jeopardize the entire, interstate highway program within the state."

He said designation of a new, interstate route, such as the proposed northern road would be "entirely ineffectual without the approval of the federal government."

While built only in New York, the proposed new route would have connected the North-South Expressway through Central New York, and the Northway, between Albany and Canada. The North-South route will extend to Pennsylvania.

The governor said that, under the bill, New York would have lost $76 million in interstate funds.

"The deletion of major portions of the Thruway from the interstate system would defeat the efforts being made by the state to obtain equitable reimbursement from the federal government for the cost of constructing the Thruway," Rockefeller said.

Raise in Pay Is Signed by Rocky For Legislators

By ROBERT T. GRAY

ALBANY, N. Y. (AP) — Gov. Rockefeller has approved a 50 per cent increase in state legislators' pay, raising it to $12,500 a year by 1963.

The legislative leaders will receive $29,000 annually.

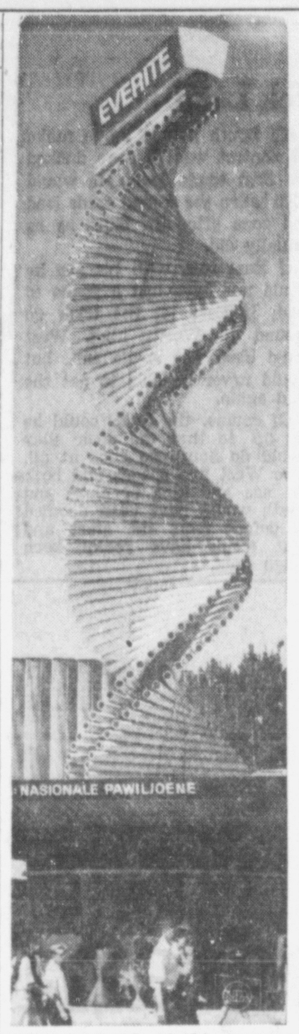

Rockefeller signed the pay-raise bill without comment as he completed his 1961 bill-signing chores Monday night. His action on the bill was announced by his office today.

The Republican governor left Albany early today to meet with President Kennedy, who invited Rockefeller to the White House for a briefing on the Cuban situation.

New York's legislators, already the highest-paid state lawmakers in the nation, had been paid $7,500 in salary and $1,000 in expenses. The expense allowance was raised during the 1961 legislative session, to $2,500, effective immediately. The bill Rockefeller signed Monday night raises the base salary to $10,000, effective Jan. 1, 1963.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market recovered vigorously today from Monday's sharp selloff. Trading slackened early this afternoon.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was up 1.00 at 240.60 with industrials up 1.80, rails up .30 and utilities up .40.

Key stocks recouped from fractions to more than a point of losses taken in Monday's decline, the sharpest in seven months. Some of the "growth" stocks which were clipped so badly in profit taking recouped 5 or 6 points.

American Photocopy recouped about 8 points of Monday's loss of 11¼. Polaroid recovered all but a point of its 7¼-point decline. American Machine & Foundry won back about 5 points of its 9¼ loss.

Zenith came back more than 5 points, Varian Associates and Foxboro about 3 apiece, GM about 2.

Steels, motors, oils, aircraft-missiles, drugs, building materials, electronics, most chemicals and tobaccos were among the gainers. Airlines and rails showed scant change as the session wore on.

The Dow Jones industrial average at noon was up 6.56 at 679.22.

Corporate bonds were irregularly lower. U.S. government bonds were firm.

Goes to Highland Honor Student

Upright Is Selected For C-H Scholarship

Arthur R. Upright, a senior honor student at Highland Central School, has been selected from 31 high school candidates throughout the Mid-Hudson Valley area to receive Central Hudson Gas and Electric Corporation's annual engineering scholarship to Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute.

During an assembly at the Highland school, the Utility's Poughkeepsie resident manager, William E. VanWagenen, briefly reviewed the history of the scholarship program and announced that the Highland student was the 1961 winner.

Frederick W. Snyder, Central Hudson division manager, presented the scholarship certificate to young Upright.

Upright, who is the 13th recipient of the Utility's four-year scholarship, will enter the Troy college this fall where he will study electrical engineering.

The Highland student competed for the scholarship with 30 other high school candidates who were nominated by their respective schools. During their junior year, the candidates, including Upright, participated in a two-week summer course covering all phases of Central Hudson's gas and electric operations.

The scholarship award was based on academic standing, personality, leadership qualities and aptitude for an engineering career.

Upright, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Upright, New Paltz Road, was co-editor of the school yearbook and a staff member of the student newspaper. He is also a member of the National Honor Society and Quill and Scroll, a journalism society.

The Highland student is a member of the basketball and baseball teams and he has been selected salutatorian of his class. He has also received a New York State Regents scholarship.

Upright is the second Highland student to win the Central Hudson scholarship. Edward P. Walsh received the award in 1952.

Police Residency

proval of a $15 million state theatre, a major revision of the state's law governing business corporations and two new judges for the state court of claims.

When he finished the bills, Rockefeller left immediately for New York City.

The dedication of a new plant of the International Business Machines Corp. at Yorktown Heights, Westchester County, was on his schedule before his flight to Washington.

Could Be Opponents

The conference in the national capitol will bring together two men who may oppose each other for the presidency in 1964. Rockefeller is considered among the potential GOP candidates to oppose Kennedy.

In winding up his bill-signing job Monday, the governor chided the Legislature for not taking more extensive action to overhaul and update rules governing courtroom practice.

In approving a bill designed to speed handling of a limited number of civil cases, the governor said it was "a source of deep concern to me that there is not before me for executive action a bill to effect a general modernization and simplification of the practice and procedure in the courts."

Measure Killed

A broad bill to revise the Civil Practice Act was introduced in the 1960 Legislature for study, in the 1961 Legislature for final action. The measure was killed, however, in a dispute over provisions that would shift from the courts to the Legislature the power to make rules for court procedures.

Rockefeller also approved legislation providing for the first general revision in nearly 40 years of the state's corporation laws. The revision, a voluminous, technical affair, will take effect April 1, 1963.

Tammany His Target

Tammany Hall also was a target of the governor in the closing phase of the bill-signing period.

He announced he had signed a bill permitting the state to purchase a $15-million theatre at Lincoln Center for the Performing Arts. The Center management will construct the building and the state then will buy it.

The governor noted that New York City's plan to build a library-museum in the center was lagging because of political problems. He blamed these on Tammany Hall, "an institution not noted for its devotion to culture."

The governor took this action on other bills:

Motor Vehicles — Vetoed bills that would have made it illegal to leave ignition keys in a motor vehicle unless they were hidden, permitted issuance of limited licenses, for work only to persons whose regular licenses had been revoked for speeding or persistent traffic violations; excluded some farm vehicles from requirements that trucks be equipped with mud flaps or stone deflectors to protect vehicles travelling behind them.

Firemen—Approved a measure specifying that fire departments will be legally responsible if their vehicles or men are engaged in any accident while responding to a call for assistance from outside their own districts.

Hendrickson Case

former Chichester resident, entered a plea of guilty to first degree manslaughter arising out of the death of her infant daughter in 1958. In a fit of anger she allegedly struck the child's head against the wall.

Mrs. Brinkman was sent to Matteawan State Hospital for the Criminal Insane and was recently discharged as being mentally able now to stand trial. Sherwood E. Davis appeared for defendant. Sentence will be pronounced Thursday at 2 p. m.

Doyle Sentenced

Arthur Percy Doyle, Saugerties, charged with burglary, unlawful entry and petit larceny, entered a plea of guilty to burglary, third degree, and was sentenced to 1½ to 3 years in Clinton State Prison. He was given credit for time served in jail. The other counts of the indictment were dismissed. G. Thomas Rea appeared for Doyle. He was charged with entering the Edward Mertz place, Saugerties, Sept. 8, last.

Andrew M. VanDemark charged with third degree assault, entered a plea of guilty. He will be sentenced May 1, at 10 a. m. Charles Sacoman appeared for defendant. Bail was continued.

Murray Markoff entered a plea of guilty to a violation of the Vehicle and Traffic Law, failing to keep to the right and was fined $100. He had been indicted for driving while intoxicated.

Pleads Innocent

Michael Christofora, 23, Broadway, Kingston, charged with third degree burglary, unlawful entry, entered a plea of innocent. His case was adjourned to May 8 at 2 p. m. on request of his counsel, Francis Martocci. He was remanded to jail.

Moses Harrel, 25, 57 Van Buren Street, was arraigned on a burglary and unlawful entry charge. He entered a plea of innocent and was given 10 days to make motions. Charles Saccoman appeared for defendant. Bail was fixed at $1,000 cash. He was remanded to jail.

ROK Arrests General

SEOUL, South Korea (AP)—The South Korean army provost marshal's office today arrested a general accused of circulating a statement slandering his seniors.

Brig. Gen. Lee Kyu-kwang was alleged by army investigators to be author of a document accusing several top military leaders of committing injustices under the administration of ex-President Syngman Rhee.

6 Candidates

"particularly objectionable." It was Stedge's opinion that if the candidate felt strongly about an issue he should make his feelings known to the general public. Greer said he felt he would be remiss in not bringing the matter to public attention. MacKinnon argued similarly pointing out that this might help restore public faith in the board. Mrs. Murphy said she believed that after the board made a decision it should attempt to present a solid front.

All but Stedge felt there was no particular objection to the loyalty oath required of teachers prior to employment. Stedge made the point that the oath really has no meaning, that those who don't believe would not hesitate to take such an oath, thus rendering it essentially futile.

Replies on Religion

In reply to a question on religious affiliations and activities, MacKinnon said he is a member of the Old Dutch Church and served two years on its consistory; Greer, St. John's Episcopal Church; Stedge, Lutheran Church of the Redeemer; Mrs. Murphy, who described herself as a Protestant married to a Catholic, has attended both services; Singer, a participant in religious activities; Mansfield, a member of the Church of the Nazarene.

There was general suspicion of federal aid to education among most of the candidates, although Mrs. Murphy pointed out that there is a tendency to confuse federal aid with federal control and that, actually, education is already receiving extensive federal aid of various types, such as aid to veterans, the National Defense Act which provides funds for purchase of educational equipment, certain salary aid for teachers, etc.

The third and last panel discussion sponsored by the Kingston Parent-Teacher Association Council will be held at the Lake Katrine School at 8 p. m. Thursday.

Mansfield today said he was approached after last night's meeting by people who complained that their questions went unanswered. Having been invited to ask questions these people were entitled to answers, the candidate from Tillson said. He knew some of them were addressed to him, he said, and commented, "I don't think I'm getting a fair shake."

ROGER E. SPEAR

Q) "As I read the market quotations, it seems that most stocks are at an all-time high. Is this the time to buy? I feel that we cannot go on postponing buying indefinitely, thinking perhaps tomorrow will be better." M. H.

A) Yours is a question often asked today, and I am glad to have the opportunity to reply.

To begin with, most stocks are not really at their all-time highs. Many issues in groups such as cements, machine tools, oils, construction, textiles, distillers, aluminums, and railroads are now selling at prices considerably below former high levels.

A lot of stocks have had strong advances recently. The spectacular performers have, of course, been the so-called fast growth companies such as Avon products, Beckman Instruments, American Photocopy, and Bobbie Brooks.

You ask, is this the time to buy? Let me answer this way. Our economy seems to be coming out of its relatively shallow recession, and the corporate earnings picture should begin to improve. Moderate inflation is expected to result from the Federal government's deficit spending programs. These two factors should continue to support the stock list as a whole.

As a general rule, I suggest that you avoid both the heavily touted high-flying issues and the tempting low-priced speculations. Purchase, instead, stocks with strong intrinsic value and rising earnings, and be prepared to hold them for a reasonable period of time. Look for a good product, good management, and effective merchandising policies.

Specifically, I might mention such stocks as Burry Biscuit (ASE) and Green Shoe (NYSE).

Yes, I believe you should invest today, within the framework that I have suggested. There is no reason for believing that tomorrow will bring better buying opportunities.

Q) "What is your opinion of Emerson Electric?" R. P.

A) This is a fine growth situation. The shares have one of the strongest long-term chart patterns among a total of 1,000 which my office follows constantly. I like it and would buy it.

DeGaullists . . .

Counter Rebellion Possible

Information Minister Louis Terrenoire announced that all movement of goods and money from France to Algeria was prohibited. Many of the 500,000 French troops in Algeria are conscripts. It seemed likely that the first payless payday would result in considerable counter-rebellion among those whose officers had thrown in with the rebellious generals.

A prolonged blockade would bring tremendous hardships to Algeria. The territory's farms produce mainly citrus fruit, vegetables and wine. Algeria must import most of its meat and many food staples, raw materials for its industries and all petroleum products.

Capital reserves already are low in the territory. Investors have been withdrawing their funds for months, anticipating Algeria's eventual independence.

As De Gaulle's campaign against the mutiny gathered steam, Frenchmen were startled to learn that the government today carried out its fourth atomic test explosion at Reggane, in the Sahara Desert 600 miles south of the mutineers' strongholds in Algiers, Oran and Constantine.

The announcement of a tower shot of a "weak" atomic device struck a strange "business as usual" note amid government warnings that the insurgent military leaders in Algeria might try to launch an attack against France itself.

Second Night on Guard

It seemed unlikely that De Gaulle, in going ahead with the atomic test, was trying to impress the mutineers. Instead it demonstrated his stubborn determination to raise France's status in the Western alliance and in the world power competition by developing her own atomic arsenal.

France spent its second night on guard against an invasion from Algeria that did not come. All airfields were closed for the night, their runways blocked with trucks and jeeps. Interceptor squadrons of jet fighters were on a constant alert. Tanks and thousands of security troops ringed Paris.

De Gaulle ordered insurgent Gen. Maurice Challe and his co-conspirators stricken from the rolls of the French army. Formal steps were taken to charge them with crimes against the state, with death as the ultimate penalty.

Saugerties for even though the county may have to purchase land, it will be reimbursed by the State.

Clarke said he believes it is reasonable to assume that the majority of students, in all probability, would reside in Kingston, and accessability should certainly be one of the prime considerations.

"I can readily understand the Town of Saugerties' desire to have the college located there, and I agree that it would benefit the town of Saugerties, as it would also benefit the remaining land should the 50-acre tract be accepted," Clarke said.

The former supervisor said that IBM's offer of donating the tract near Whittier is certainly appreciated, and he questioned the location as to accessability. Clarke said the community college is not, and should not, be a "money making scheme" for the County.

Sees Benefit for Greene

Clarke said at best, the Saugerties location would only, from the standpoint of accessability, benefit the neighboring County of Greene to the north. While students from that county would be most welcome, the supervisor continued, Ulster county's prime consideration should be the city and towns of the county.

In conclusion, Clarke strongly urged the Site Committee, the Board of Supervisors, the Mayor of Kingston, to bear in mind the best interests of the students and seek a location which would be most beneficial to the children of Ulster County.

2 Firemen Escape

bowlers in the bowling alleys of The Chalet reported to Eugene Mulligan and his wife, owners, they smelled smoke.

An investigation disclosed a fire burning in the front portion of the building under the roof. The Rosendale firemen were summoned and through Mutual Aid the Tillson, Binnewater, Cottekill and Bloomington Departments were alerted.

Alleys Covered

The fire, through quick response of the firemen and good work by the volunteers, was confined to the roof and attic portion of the building where roof timbers were charred. Bowling alleys in the rear escaped fire damage and there was little damage from water which seeped through the roof. The alleys were covered with tarps by the firemen to protect them from water damage.

Deputy Sheriff Joseph Feraca reported the fire to the sheriff's office.

Thinks Lightning Did It

Assistant Chief Mulligan, a brother of Eugene Mulligan, owner of The Chalet, said the fire had aparenptly been caused by electric wiring and that the fire may have been started through a bolt of lightning entering the premises, although no one in the place observed the building being struck.

The fire was reported at approximately 10:15 p. m. and was under control at 11:50 p. m.

Tillson Man

"fairly good" at the hospital. The car was reportedly wrecked.

Starr's wife, the former Helen Platt, 48, died last Feb. 17. She was a former Army nurse.

Tire Blew

Authorities said she was driving her car toward Kingston at about 12:45 p. m., when the left front tire blew out causing the vehicle to swerve sharply across the highway and plunge into the icy waters of Rondout Creek in the village of Rosendale.

It was reported at the time that Mrs. Starr was pulled from the partly submerged vehicle by Trooper William Brennan of Kingston state police and Sgt. George Bockelman, of the Rosendale police department.

Coroner Francis J. McCardle said Mrs. Starr was underneath the dashboard on the driver's side of the car when she was removed from the vehicle. McCardle said she died of asphyxia due to submersion.

Starr has two daughters, Johanna and Suzzanne.

Laos Regime . . .

Clashes Elsewhere

A gap of about 10 miles reportedly separated the front lines in the Vang Vieng area, but no fighting was reported there today.

Clashes were reported, however, in south-central Laos, where the rebels have also gained much ground recently.

British Ambassador John Addis warned that even after the fighting is ordered stopped by both sides, there will be at least a series of small clashes before the real peace comes.

Each year more families are hit by fast-mounting hospital bills. Ambulance, X-rays, laboratory tests, surgery, transfusions, therapeutic equipment and medication — added to daily hospital care — can quickly wipe out savings . . . create a debt it will take years to pay.

Some Ask Death . . . Mercy

Cuba Shows Off Invaders on TV

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP) — Invaders reportedly captured by Fidel Castro's troops demanded death, showed indifference or begged for mercy in a television show from Cuba today.

A priest, a man who claimed he won the U.S. Medal of Honor and a pre-Castro police corporal accused of brutalities were among the captives interrogated in a running propaganda series aimed at convincing the Cuban people that the United States engineered the ill-fated invasion.

The telecast, monitored in this Florida city, lasted more than four hours.

The prisoners, who indicated they were aware of the firing squad threat pronounced by Castro, agreed with interrogators that they were duped into thinking the Cuban people would join their cause.

A man who claimed to be Manuel Perez Garcia and claimed he killed 83 Japanese and won the Medal of Honor in World War II, jumped up and shouted, "If this nation loves Fidel Castro, let it shoot me."

In Washington, the Pentagon said Manuel Perez Garcia died in battle and received the Medal of Honor posthumously.

Segundo de las Heras Cabo, who said he is a Spanish-born priest who formerdy served in Cuba and parachuted with the invaders, said he was sorry and "would like to make amends."

Rare Old Coins Are on Exhibit

Local observances of National Coin Week, April 23 through 30, include a display of ancient coins at the Ulster County Savings Institution, 280 Wall Street, sponsored by the Mid-Hudson Numismatics Club.

There are coins of every century since 500 BC on display. In keeping with this year's theme, Coins of Yesteryear, coins of ancient Greece, Rome, Egypt and the Near East are on exhibit.

Relatively more recent coins include those of the early Colonial days. Two rare half pennies struck at Machin's mint, Newburgh, along with other Colonial coins circulated in Connecticut, New Jersey, Masssachusetts, Pennsylvania and New York are shown.

Coins dated 1437 from the Palatinate section of Germany, coins struck in Mexico City about 1556 and Spanish American crude silver cab pieces make up another tray in the exhibit.

The local club, for numismatists in Kingston, Saugerties and surrounding areas, meets the first and third Thursday of the month at the Holiday Country Inn, Saugerties - Woodstock Road.

Tshombe Walks Out, Hits Pact With UN

COQUILHATVILLE, the Congo (AP) — President Moise Tshombe of Katanga walked out on the rest of the Congo's anti-Communist political leaders today after accusing President Joseph Kasavubu of the Leopoldville central government of selling out the Congolese people to the United Nations.

With sarcastic and stinging insults, Tshombe refused further cooperation and discussion with the central government unless Kasavubu denounced the accord he recently concluded with the U.N. Command, an accord Tshombe said "humiliated all the people on the Congo."

Tshombe's walkout ended — at least temporarily—hopes for the confederation of Congolese states which all factions except Antoine agreed on in principle last month at the Tananarive round table conference.

Tshombe's chief objection to the Kasavubu-U.N. agreement obviously was its call for immediate withdrawal of all foreign advisers not engaged under Kasavubu's authority. This was clearly aimed at Tshombe's large contingent of Belgian advisers and the foreign mercenary officers of his Katanga army.

Self-confident and unyielding, Tshombe mocked the promises of financial aid from the United Nations to the Kasavubu government.

"I wonder how the United Nations is going to afford this when they have their own financial troubles," he scoffed.

SCHOOL 8 WINNERS — George Bishop and Fred Cole show exhibit of How Sound Works which won them first place for the fifth grade in School 8 science fair competition.

Boys Take Honors In School No. 8 Science Contest

The seventh article in the current series on the local Science Fair winners will review the successful competitors from School 8 in Kingston. School 7, previously mentioned in the series, in having all boy representatives. School 4, subject of a later article in the series, will be represented by an all girl team in the third annual Mid-Hudson competition at New Paltz next month.

School 8 winners in the recent judging were Barry Present, son of Mr. and Mrs. Solly Present; Charles Buboltz, son of Mrs. John Halwick; George Bishop, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Bishop, Sr.; Fred Cole, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lahl; and George Greenidge, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Nelting.

George Bishop and Fred Cole collaborated to win the fifth grade blue ribbon. The pair set up a series of displays to show how sound works. The youths both gave credit for the winning exhibit to an elementary science book they happened to read in connection with classroom work in science. The boys also agreed that the material necessary for their project was easily obtained from the classroom and from around their houses.

Another successful duo captured the honors in the fourth grade. Charles Buboltz and George Greenidge put their heads together and came up with an award winning exhibit of a telegraph. The idea for the telegraph came from an elementary science book that the boys read in connection with school work.

Barry Present received the sixth grade blue ribbon for a display of the human arm. He too, states that the idea for the display came from one of the elementary science books he happened to read. The material for the display was found around his neighborhood.

The five boys from School 8 will meet with the boy contingent from School 7 and then join the rest of the intermediate grade winners at the New Paltz Fair. In total, 51 fourth, fifth and sixth grade boys and girls will carry the banner of the Kingston (Consolidated) District into the third annual fair in New Paltz, Friday, May 12.

The eighth article in the series will report on the winners from School 4 in Kingston.

Firemen Quell Two Alarm Blaze At Poughkeepsie

Poughkeepsie firemen battled a two-alarm fire Monday afternoon which heavily damaged a 90-foot loading shed and two moving vans at the North Side Properties Inc., 133-137 North Hamilton Street.

Heat of the flames set off sprinklers inside the main building where furniture is stored by Roe Movers, according to Fire Chief Irving Merrick.

The chief said fire started in the loading platform on the rear of the brick building in which furniture is stored. Merrick said the origin of the fire was not known. He added that the damage would have been more extensive if the sprinkler system had not functioned.

An automatic alarm system was heard by employes who vacated the building.

No official estimate of damage was reported by owners of the property or fire officials, but the land and buildings have an assessed valuation of $45,000.

Adult Education Group Will Exhibit Projects

The 1960-1961 Saugerties Central Schools adult education program will present an exhibit in the gymnasium of the high school Friday evening, May 5, from 7-9 p. m., during open house at the high school, Washington Avenue.

The public may view the many displays of adult education classes. Included will be projects and samples of work completed in the various classes.

Adult courses in this year's program include high school equivalency course, English for foreign-born adults, conversational Russian, electronics, typewriting, office practice, stenoscript shorthand, refresher Gregg shorthand, civil defense first aid, Red Cross first aid, beginning and intermediate sewing, drawing and sketching, oil painting, reupholstering, welding, automobile mechanics, and driver education.

Research Center Dedicated by IBM

YORKTOWN — The world's largest research center for the study of computer science — the Thomas J. Watson Research Center — was dedicated here today during the annual stockholders meeting of the International Business Machines Corporation, the first to be held by the company outside New York City.

Several thousand stockholders rode special trains, buses, and private cars to the new Center, in suburban Westchester County 40 miles north of New York City, to meet on stockholder business and to inspect the sparkling new facility.

Some 1,500 scientists and supporting personnel will work in the building on the fundamental research which must precede the development and production of new products. Many ideas formulated at the Center will flow into IBM development laboratories. In other cases, contributions to human knowledge will find their way into college textbooks.

As a contrast to the sweeping rural view out front, the rear of the Center opens to a sunken Japanese-style garden with grass-covered islands in a lagoon of chipped limestone. More than 1,000 evergreens and sugar and red maple trees have been planted on the 240-acre site.

The building was designed by Eero Saarinen, the Finnish-born architect best known for his work on the U. S. Embassy in London.

Among other facilities in the building are an auditorium, a number of classrooms and a computing center with three electronic data processing machines including an IBM 7090, one of the company's most powerful computers.

Parking space for 1,000 cars is provided on the south side of the Center. A visitors' parking area is located opposite the cantilever-roofed main entrance in front.

Ground for the Center was broken in October, 1958.

Terror . . . . Crackdown on Religion

Arrivals From Cuba Tell Of Added Castro Support

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A crackdown on religion. Terror. Jails overcrowded to the point that private homes are used as prisons. Terror. Increased support for Fidel Castro.

This is Cuba as pictured by persons who saw it only Monday. They were the first to arrive aboard Cubana Airlines planes in New York and Mexico City since the abortive invasion of the island last week.

Many of the 38 who flew into Mexico City were hesitant to discuss what they had seen. Many, like most of the 62 who arrived in New York, insisted on anonymity.

A foreigner, who told a Mexico City newsman he feared reprisals if his name was used, said there had been a sharp increase in arrests of priests and other religious leaders since the invasion.

He said about 20 leaders of a Protestant school were rounded up and taken away by Castro authorities. Another passenger interjected that priests were being arrested along with politicians.

"Estimates run from 50,000 to a million prisoners arrested in the past few days," the second man said. "Jails and penitentiaries are so crowded Castroites are taking over large homes to house them."

An arrival in New York said "there is nothing but an atmosphere of terror in Cuba."

Despite the talk of terror, there were some who felt Castro has gained strength since his Soviet-armed forces threw back the rebel invasion.

"Before the invasion, 50 per cent of the people were for Castro," said Harry Dolansky of Montreal. "After the invasion, the country was unified behind him."

Dolansky and Henry Marvin, both of the Allied Cigar Corp., said they were treated well in Havana and even were able to get telephone calls to and from Montreal.

State Summons Bingo Witnesses

NEW YORK (AP) — The State Investigation Commission called in witnesses today for the start of a five-day hearing into violations of the state bingo law.

Jacob Grumet, commissioner chairman, promised that evidence would show many serious abuses of the law.

Bingo is now legal in 650 communities that have given approval through referendums.

The commission disclosed last January that it was delving into the bingo situation. Thomas J. Dorr, chief investigator for the State Lottery Control Commission, resigned at that time.

The commission is in charge of supervising bingo playing.

Minor Flooding Upstate Caused By Heavy Rain

BUFFALO, N. Y. (AP)—Heavy rain caused minor flooding in several sections today and at least five families have been forced to flee their homes.

The Allegany River at Salamanca was at flood stage but did not overflow its banks. Streets were flooded for a short time Monday night, however, after a sudden, heavy downpour, and several residents reported flooded cellars.

A rain-swollen creek at Erin, near Elmira, went over its banks and five families fled their homes.

A 24-hour rainfall of 1.05 inches was reported in Buffalo, setting a record April precipitation of 5.04 inches. It broke a mark of 4.86 inches set in 1957.

In Hornell, lightning struck the steeple of a Methodist church but caused only minor damage.

Some Ask Death . . . Mercy

Cuba Shows Off Invaders on TV

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP) — Invaders reportedly captured by Fidel Castro's troops demanded death, showed indifference or begged for mercy in a television show from Cuba today.

A priest, a man who claimed he won the U.S. Medal of Honor and a pre-Castro police corporal accused of brutalities were among the captives interrogated in a running propaganda series aimed at convincing the Cuban people that the United States engineered the ill-fated invasion.

The telecast, monitored in this Florida city, lasted more than four hours.

The prisoners, who indicated they were aware of the firing squad threat pronounced by Castro, agreed with interrogators that they were duped into thinking the Cuban people would join their cause.

A man who claimed to be Manuel Perez Garcia and claimed he killed 83 Japanese and won the Medal of Honor in World War II, jumped up and shouted, "If this nation loves Fidel Castro, let it shoot me."

In Washington, the Pentagon said Manuel Perez Garcia died in battle and received the Medal of Honor posthumously.

Segundo de las Heras Cabo, who said he is a Spanish-born priest who formerly served in Cuba and parachuted with the invaders, said he was sorry and "would like to make amends."

Rare Old Coins Are on Exhibit

Local observances of National Coin Week, April 23 through 30, include a display of ancient coins at the Ulster County Savings Institution, 280 Wall Street, sponsored by the Mid-Hudson Numismatics Club.

There are coins of every century since 500 BC on display. In keeping with this year's theme, Coins of Yesteryear, coins of ancient Greece, Rome, Egypt and the Near East are on exhibit.

Relatively more recent coins include those of the early Colonial days. Two rare half pennies struck at Machin's mint, Newburgh, along with other Colonial coins circulated in Connecticut, New Jersey, Masssachusetts, Pennsylvania and New York are shown.

Coins dated 1437 from the Palatinate section of Germany, coins struck in Mexico City about 1556 and Spanish American crude silver cab pieces make up another tray in the exhibit.

The local club, for numismatists in Kingston, Saugerties and surrounding areas, meets the first and third Thursday of the month at the Holiday Country Inn, Saugerties - Woodstock Road.

Tshombe Walks Out, Hits Pact With UN

COQUILHATVILLE, the Congo (AP) — President Moise Tshombe of Katanga walked out on the rest of the Congo's anti-Communist political leaders today after accusing President Joseph Kasavubu of the Leopoldville central government of selling out the Congolese people to the United Nations.

With sarcastic and stinging insults, Tshombe refused further cooperation and discussion with the central government unless Kasavubu denounced the accord he recently concluded with the U.N. Command, an accord Tshombe said "humiliated all the people on the Congo."

Tshombe's walkout ended — at least temporarily—hopes for the confederation of Congolese states which all factions except Antoine agreed on in principle last month at the Tananarive round table conference.

Tshombe's chief objection to the Kasavubu-U.N. agreement obviously was its call for immediate withdrawal of all foreign advisers not engaged under Kasavubu's authority. This was clearly aimed at Tshombe's large contingent of Belgian advisers and the foreign mercenary officers of his Katanga army.

Self-confident and unyielding, Tshombe mocked the promises of financial aid from the United Nations to the Kasavubu government.

"I wonder how the United Nations is going to afford this when they have their own financial troubles," he scoffed.

SCHOOL 8 WINNERS — George Bishop and Fred Cole show exhibit of How Sound Works which won them first place for the fifth grade in School 8 science fair competition.

Boys Take Honors In School No. 8 Science Contest

The seventh article in the current series on the local Science Fair winners will review the successful competitors from School 8 in Kingston. School 7, previously mentioned in the series, in having all boy representatives. School 4, subject of a later article in the series, will be represented by an all girl team in the third annual Mid-Hudson competition at New Paltz next month.

School 8 winners in the recent judging were Barry Present, son of Mr. and Mrs. Solly Present; Charles Buboltz, son of Mrs. John Halwick; George Bishop, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Bishop, Sr.; Fred Cole, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lahl; and George Greenidge, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Nelting.

George Bishop and Fred Cole collaborated to win the fifth grade blue ribbon. The pair set up a series of displays to show how sound works. IF YOU'RE CONCERNED ABOUT RISING FAMILY EXPENSES CONSIDER THESE FACTS ABOUT COMMON STOCK

1. Owning common stock makes you part owner of a company. You share in its ups and downs. If it doesn't make a profit, it probably won't pay dividends. But if it prospers you can share in its profits through dividends—and share in any growth through the possible increase of both the size of your dividends and the value of your stock.

2. Most of America's 12½ million shareowners have modest incomes. More than half earn less than $10,000 a year. Many get started for as little as $40 every three months with a Monthly Investment Plan. In this way they can systematically build both income and investments to help take care of family needs.

3. It's easy to get help with your first investment. Call on a Member Firm of the New York Stock Exchange. A Partner or Registered Representative there will be happy to talk over your objectives with you. It's part of his job to help new investors. Every Registered Representative at a Member Firm has had to meet the Exchange's requirements for knowledge of investing.

4. Ask for facts. There's always some risk when you invest. You can reduce the risk, however, if you check up on a company before buying stock in it. Never rely on a tip. Ask for facts from your Member Firm broker. He can also explain the advantages of owning bonds or preferred stocks.

5. Send for "INVESTMENT FACTS," a helpful guide for the new investor. It lists some 375 stocks that have paid dividends every three months for 20 years or more. It also explains how you can acquire stock through the convenient Monthly Investment Plan.

Before investing provide for regular expenses and emergencies. Then if you have some money you'd like to put to work, you owe it to yourself to consider owning your share of American business. Investing can help you meet rising family expenses.

IF YOU'RE CONCERNED ABOUT RISING FAMILY EXPENSES CONSIDER THESE FACTS ABOUT COMMON STOCK

1. Owning common stock makes you part owner of a company. You share in its ups and downs. If it doesn't make a profit, it probably won't pay dividends. But if it prospers you can share in its profits through dividends—and share in any growth through the possible increase of both the size of your dividends and the value of your stock.

2. Most of America's 12½ million shareowners have modest incomes. More than half earn less than $10,000 a year. Many get started for as little as $40 every three months with a Monthly Investment Plan. In this way they can systematically build both income and investments to help take care of family needs.

3. It's easy to get help with your first investment. Call on a Member Firm of the New York Stock Exchange. A Partner or Registered Representative there will be happy to talk over your objectives with you. It's part of his job to help new investors. Every Registered Representative at a Member Firm has had to meet the Exchange's requirements for knowledge of investing.

4. Ask for facts. There's always some risk when you invest. You can reduce the risk, however, if you check up on a company before buying stock in it. Never rely on a tip. Ask for facts from your Member Firm broker. He can also explain the advantages of owning bonds or preferred stocks.

5. Send for "INVESTMENT FACTS," a helpful guide for the new investor. It lists some 375 stocks that have paid dividends every three months for 20 years or more. It also explains how you can acquire stock through the convenient Monthly Investment Plan.

Before investing provide for regular expenses and emergencies. Then if you have some money you'd like to put to work, you owe it to yourself to consider owning your share of American business. Investing can help you meet rising family expenses.

Ham and Chicken in a Spring Salad

APPETIZING cubes of deviled ham, with boned chicken and grapes are the ingredients to make a spring salad de luxe.

Salad days are here again. The family will welcome big, meal-type salads packed with protein, vitamins and minerals galore. Such as this one:

Serve a "medley" of deviled ham, cubed from the refrigerator, boned chicken and luscious white grapes for a very special spring luncheon salad. Chopped celery and walnuts add just the right "crunch." The taste of deviled ham, cut into cubes (after it's been chilled) gives this salad novelty.

Line the bowl with a bed of crisp romaine lettuce before adding the ingredients. Serve tart mayonnaise (to which a little French dressing is added) on the side.

Savory Summer Salad Medley

1 4½-ounce can deviled ham
1 6-ounce can boned chicken
½ cup chopped celery
¼ cup chopped walnuts
¼ cup French dressing
¾ cup halved white grapes
French Romaine mayonnaise

Place deviled ham in freezer compartment for 2 hours before serving. Cut chicken into chunks and mix with celery, nuts and French dressing. Just before serving on romaine, remove ham from freezer; cut into cubes and add to salad with grapes. Garnish with small bunches of whole grapes.

French Mayonnaise

Combine 2 tablespoons sharp French dressing with ¼ cup mayonnaise.

Upstate Radio Sold For $4.5 Million

PORTSMOUTH, Va. (AP)—The Gannett Co., Inc., of Rochester, N.Y., has purchased WAVY AM-TV for $4.5 million, subject to approval by the Federal Communications Commission.

Vincent S. Jones, executive editor of the Gannett newspaper, radio and television group, and J. Glenn Taylor, president of Tidewater Teleradio Inc., formed the sale after a meeting of Tidewater shareholders.

Jones, who also is a member of the Gannett board of directors, and Taylor said the sale was completed Monday.

WAVY radio was founded in 1942. The television station began broadcasting in 1957 after a fight of several years for Channel 10.

Other Gannett operations include 17 newspapers in New York, New Jersey, Connecticut and Illinois, radio stations in Rochester, Binghamton and Elmira, N.Y., and Danville, Ill., and television stations in Rochester, Binghamton and Danville.

Governor Vetoes Ignition Key, Other Car Bills

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Gov. Rockefeller has vetoed a number of bills dealing with motor vehicles, including a measure that would have required motorists to hide ignition keys left in unattended vehicles.

The governor noted Monday that the bill would have become effective immediately, had he signed it. "It is essential that the public be given adequate time to be made aware that severe penalties are to be attached to the failure to follow a specific course of conduct."

The ignition-key bill was passed after a Steuben County Court questioned the constitutionality of a state law requiring that the key be removed from the ignition when a vehicle was left unattended.

Rockefeller also vetoed, generally on the ground the bills would relax present safeguards, measures that would have:

Authorized limited licenses, to be used only in their work, for drivers whose regular licenses had been suspended or revoked because of repeated infractions.

Permitted exemptions to present height and length restrictions on trucks to allow them to transport racing shells used in rowing regattas. Rockefeller said special permits could be obtained and he was opposed to any general exclusions.

Exempted farm vehicles traveling between farms under common ownerships from requirements that trucks be equipped with mud flaps or stone deflectors.

The governor approved a bill allowing one individual to register an unlimited number of agricultural trucks, for which fees are lower than other trucks. The bill, effective Oct. 1, removes the present limit of three trucks.

Rockefeller also signed legislation granting migrant workers who come into the state a one-week grace period in which to show proof of liability insurance for any vehicles they own and plan to operate in New York.

Living With CP Basis of Booklet

CHICAGO—To help take the mystery out of cerebral palsy to enable children to live with it comfortably is the objective of a new pamphlet published by the National Society for Crippled Children and Adults.

Some of the means of achieving this end are practical everyday ones of eating, dressing and grooming, and are described by Mrs. Mildred Shriner in her booklet "Growing Up—Cerebral Palsied Children Learn to Help Themselves."

Mrs. Shriner, a well-known teacher of special education, seeks in the pamphlet to give definition to proper, healthy parental attitudes and provide guide posts to a happy day-by-day relationship between parent and child during the youngster's vital formative years.

The wife of a California physician, Mrs. Shriner draws upon techniques and methods utilized successfully in clinic and special classroom to provide concrete advice and guidance for parents. She is now a teacher in Sunset School for physically handicapped children in San Lorenzo and has taught at the University of California, at Berkeley, in Oakland, and San Francisco.

Mrs. Shriner directed the first workshop in cerebral palsy for teachers at the University and conducted two other similar sessions at Teachers College, Columbia University, New York. She also aided hundreds of patients and their advisors as former consultant in special education for the Easter Seal Society.

Copies of "Growing Up—Cerebral Palsied Children Learn to Help Themselves" are available through the National Society for Crippled Children and Adults 2023 West Ogden Avenue, Chicago 12, Ill., at a nominal price.

Two Flags Going Back

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP)—Virginia will get back two battle flags captured by New York State units during the Civil War.

Gov. Rockefeller signed a bill Monday authorizing the return, as part of the observance of the 100th anniversary of the war, a flag of the State of Virginia and a guidon of the Fifth Virginia Cavalry.

The flags now are in the State Bureau of War Records.

Kennedy Plans More Help for Economy Boost

By FRANK CORMIER

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Kennedy administration is planning additional aid for the economy even though some government experts now expect business to regain its pre-recession peak by early summer.

The new moves will be designed to help ensure a solid recovery and a broader attack on the persistent unemployment problem. They will grow out of a full-scale economic review now being directed by Dr. Walter Heller, chairman of President Kennedy's Council of Economic Advisers.

Kennedy told his Friday news conference that the results will be made public soon.

There is a widespread feeling among the officials involved that further steps will be required if the administration's economic goals are to be achieved. Although most agree that the recession reached a basic turning point last month, they are fearful the upturn might run out of steam unless given an additional boost.

The recovery after the 1958 recession was quite sharp at the start but, in the view of most experts, ended prematurely.

Secretary of the Treasury Douglas Dillon told a news conference Monday that a definite attack must be mounted against structural unemployment — joblessness caused by automation and the steady decline in such industries as coal mining.

He gave a broad hint that this would be one result of the Heller review.

Chairman William McChesney Martin of the Federal Reserve Board has repeatedly emphasized the seriousness of structural unemployment. Suggested remedies have included the retraining of displaced workers and subsidies to help them move to communities where they could get work.

Railway construction in the United States reached its peak in 1886, when a total of 12,879 miles of railways was built. This was enough to span the continent four times between New York and San Francisco.

"NEWSPAPERS HAVE PLAYED A MAJOR ROLE IN RAMBLER'S SUCCESS"

so says Roy Abernethy, Executive Vice President, American Motors Corporation.

To compete effectively in today's selling market many important companies are choosing the daily newspaper as their prime advertising medium.

"Newspaper advertising has proved a powerful force to support the sales efforts of our dealers," states Roy Abernethy, American Motors' dynamic sales leader. "We allot the largest part of our advertising budget to newspapers, and our dealers approve unanimously of our newspaper campaign. It has been the real backbone of our advertising program."

Nearly 2700 newspapers regularly carry Rambler sales messages to 64,000,000 readers, all living in the dealers' home communities. And, as Rambler sales records show, this use of newspaper advertising has helped increase sales substantially.

American Motors' decision to concentrate their advertising in newspapers is being echoed today by many other important companies wanting maximum frequency, continuity and impact from every advertising dollar spent. Newspapers prompt buying action. That's why in 1960 advertisers spent more money in newspaper advertising than in radio, television, magazine and outdoor advertising combined!

Upstate Radio Sold For $4.5 Million

PORTSMOUTH, Va. (AP)—The Gannett Co., Inc., of Rochester, N.Y., has purchased WAVY AM-TV for $4.5 million, subject to approval by the Federal Communications Commission.

Vincent S. Jones, executive editor of the Gannett newspaper, radio and television group, and J. Glenn Taylor, president of Tidewater Teleradio Inc., formed the sale after a meeting of Tidewater shareholders.

Jones, who also is a member of the Gannett board of directors, and Taylor said the sale was completed Monday.

WAVY radio was founded in 1942. The television station began broadcasting in 1957 after a fight of several years for Channel 10.

Other Gannett operations include 17 newspapers in New York, New Jersey, Connecticut and Illinois, radio stations in Rochester, Binghamton and Elmira, N.Y., and Danville, Ill., and television stations in Rochester, Binghamton and Danville.

Governor Vetoes Ignition Key, Other Car Bills

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Gov. Rockefeller has vetoed a number of bills dealing with motor vehicles, including a measure that would have required motorists to hide ignition keys left in unattended vehicles.

The governor noted Monday that the bill would have become effective immediately, had he signed it. "It is essential that the public be given adequate time to be made aware that severe penalties are to be attached to the failure to follow a specific course of conduct."

The ignition-key bill was passed after a Steuben County Court questioned the constitutionality of a state law requiring that the key be removed from the ignition when a vehicle was left unattended.

Rockefeller also vetoed, generally on the ground the bills would relax present safeguards, measures that would have:

Authorized limited licenses, to be used only in their work, for drivers whose regular licenses had been suspended or revoked because of repeated infractions.

Permitted exemptions to present height and length restrictions on trucks to allow them to transport racing shells used in rowing regattas. Rockefeller said special permits could be obtained and he was opposed to any general exclusions.

Exempted farm vehicles traveling between farms under common ownerships from requirements that trucks be equipped with mud flaps or stone deflectors.

The governor approved a bill allowing one individual to register an unlimited number of agricultural trucks, for which fees are lower than other trucks. The bill, effective Oct. 1, removes the present limit of three trucks.

Rockefeller also signed legislation granting migrant workers who come into the state a one-week grace period in which to show proof of liability insurance for any vehicles they own and plan to operate in New York.

Living With CP Basis of Booklet

CHICAGO—To help take the mystery out of cerebral palsy to enable children to live with it comfortably is the objective of a new pamphlet published by the National Society for Crippled Children and Adults.

Some of the means of achieving this end are practical everyday ones of eating, dressing and grooming, and are described by Mrs. Mildred Shriner in her booklet "Growing Up—Cerebral Palsied Children Learn to Help Themselves."

Mrs. Shriner, a well-known teacher of special education, seeks in the pamphlet to give definition to proper, healthy parental attitudes and provide guide posts to a happy day-by-day relationship between parent and child during the youngster's vital formative years.

The wife of a California physician, Mrs. Shriner draws upon techniques and methods utilized successfully in clinic and special classroom to provide concrete advice and guidance for parents. She is now a teacher in Sunset School for physically handicapped children in San Lorenzo and has taught at the University of California, at Berkeley, in Oakland, and San Francisco.

Mrs. Shriner directed the first workshop in cerebral palsy for teachers at the University and conducted two other similar sessions at Teachers College, Columbia University, New York. She also aided hundreds of patients and their advisors as former consultant in special education for the Easter Seal Society.

Copies of "Growing Up—Cerebral Palsied Children Learn to Help Themselves" are available through the National Society for Crippled Children and Adults 2023 West Ogden Avenue, Chicago 12, Ill., at a nominal price.

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP)—Virginia will get back two battle flags captured by New York State units during the Civil War.

Gov. Rockefeller signed a bill Monday authorizing the return, as part of the observance of the 100th anniversary of the war, a flag of the State of Virginia and a guidon of the Fifth Virginia Cavalry.

The flags now are in the State Bureau of War Records.

Kennedy Plans More Help for Economy Boost

By FRANK CORMIER

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Kennedy administration is planning additional aid for the economy even though some government experts now expect business to regain its pre-recession peak by early summer.

The new moves will be designed to help ensure a solid recovery and a broader attack on the persistent unemployment problem. They will grow out of a full-scale economic review now being directed by Dr. Walter Heller, chairman of President Kennedy's Council of Economic Advisers.

Kennedy told his Friday news conference that the results will be made public soon.

There is a widespread feeling among the officials involved that further steps will be required if the administration's economic goals are to be achieved. Although most agree that the recession reached a basic turning point last month, they are fearful the upturn might run out of steam unless given an additional boost.

The recovery after the 1958 recession was quite sharp at the start but, in the view of most experts, ended prematurely.

Secretary of the Treasury Douglas Dillon told a news conference Monday that a definite attack must be mounted against structural unemployment — joblessness caused by automation and the steady decline in such industries as coal mining.

He gave a broad hint that this would be one result of the Heller review.

Chairman William McChesney Martin of the Federal Reserve Board has repeatedly emphasized the seriousness of structural unemployment. Suggested remedies have included the retraining of displaced workers and subsidies to help them move to communities where they could get work.

Railway construction in the United States reached its peak in 1886, when a total of 12,879 miles of railways was built. This was enough to span the continent four times between New York and San Francisco.

"NEWSPAPERS HAVE PLAYED A MAJOR ROLE IN RAMBLER'S SUCCESS"

so says Roy Abernethy, Executive Vice President, American Motors Corporation.

To compete effectively in today's selling market many important companies are choosing the daily newspaper as their prime advertising medium.

"Newspaper advertising has proved a powerful force to support the sales efforts of our dealers," states Roy Abernethy, American Motors' dynamic sales leader. "We allot the largest part of our advertising budget to newspapers, and our dealers approve unanimously of our newspaper campaign. It has been the real backbone of our advertising program."

Nearly 2700 newspapers regularly carry Rambler sales messages to 64,000,000 readers, all living in the dealers' home communities. And, as Rambler sales records show, this use of newspaper advertising has helped increase sales substantially.

American Motors' decision to concentrate their advertising in newspapers is being echoed today by many other important companies wanting maximum frequency, continuity and impact from every advertising dollar spent. Newspapers prompt buying action. That's why in 1960 advertisers spent more money in newspaper advertising than in radio, television, magazine and outdoor advertising combined!

Carey Issues Regulations Governing First Class Mail

During the past few weeks, the town superintendent of highways has erected temporary road signs in order to expedite signs to go up. However, these mail delivery. There are still 12 are made and must be up before delivery starts, Postmaster Leon Carey said today.

Another requirement of the Post Office Department is that the houses on the Foot Route and Mounted Route must be numbered.

Due to the increase of the number of houses built and roads taken over by the town in the last three years, it is necessary for the Post Office to resurvey the town. Most of this has been done.

The plan as laid out now will affect the whole mail delivery system emanating from the Woodstock post office. Taking some patrons off the rural route (which is overburdened with 800 boxes now) and placing them on a mounted route, also adding areas which have not had delivery before and in the village giving door to door delivery.

Initially, but subject to change the following area will be covered by foot route:

A.) Beginning at the bridge west of the Woodstock Motel on Tinker Street to the Village Green then on Mill Hill Road to the intersection of 212 and 375. Also on all town approved streets in the village proper, namely Brook Road, Elwyn Lane to as far as the McGrath residence, Sled Hill Road, Pine Grove Street, Deming Street, Maple Lane, Rock City Road as far as the Brass Rail, Old Forge Road, Tannery Brook Road, Neher Street, Hillcrest Road, Library Lane as far as Paul Arndt's residence and Orchard Lane.

Residents in above area and living on town-owned streets may place their mail receptacles on their homes or install an approved mail slot in their front door. Those residents, in the above area, not on town-owned streets, may place a rural type mail box on the corner of the nearest town road.

Mounted Route

B.) The Mounted Route will cover the following areas: Mountain View Avenue, Rock City road from the Brass Rail to Glasco Turnpike, Lower Byrdcliffe Road from Parnassus Square, the Glasco Turnpike and Glasco Turnpike from Lower Byrdcliffe Road to Rock City Road, also Bellows Lane, Wiley Lane, Juniper Lane, Cedar Way and Simmons Drive. All of the above areas are being changed from the rural route or have not had any delivery before. Also west on Tinker Street beginning at the bridge by the Woodstock Motel, including most town roads as Schoonmaker Lane, Manor Drive, Forest Drive and Elwyn Drive. The above are on the Star Route or do not have any delivery at present. Also on the following roads now on the rural route will be served by the Mounted Route: Meadow Lane, Meadow Court, Dixon Avenue, Overlook Drive, Harder Road, Yerry Hill Road, Broadview Road, Ohayo Mt. Road from Broadview to Sully's Bridge, Millstream Road, Ratterman Road, Country Club Lane, Plochman Lane from Saugerties Road to Jordon Residence, Play House Lane, Evergreen Lane and Edgewood Lane.

All residents in above area, except as noted will place approved type rural boxes in front or across the road from the house on the edge of the street and on the side of the road that the carrier travels. Those residents in above area not living on town roads or not listed in this area may place rural type mail boxes on the corner of the nearest road the carrier travels.

General Rules

1. All houses must be numbered. If you do not know your number, you may obtain it from either the Town Clerk or the post office. PLEASE NOTE: In some of the developments patrons have numbers on their houses which are lot numbers, these cannot be used, they must use the official town number.

2. All houses on foot carrier route must have a mail receptacle on the house convenient to the carrier or an approved mail slot in the front door.

Rural Boxes

All apartment houses with three or more apartments, must have approved apartment house boxes. Business establishments, open during hours of delivery, are exempt from this rule.

3. Patrons required to have rural-type mail boxes must inscribes in neat letters not less than one inch high, on the side of the box that is visible to the carrier as he regularly approches or on the door if boxes are grouped, the street number and name of person. Please note—the complete address (street number and name) and name of patron must be inscribed on these rural type boxes not located in front of the patrons house. Boxes should be approximately 3½ feet to 4 feet above the roadway and so located that the carrier need not leave his vehicle to deliver mail.

4. Special Delivery, Parcel Post, Insured, COD, and Registered mail will be delivered to the residences of all delivery service patrons regardless of whether or not they live on town roads, provided the road is not impassible and not more than three blocks from regular route, otherwise, a notice will be left in the box requesting the patron to call at the office. Post Office boxholders will continue to receive Special Delivery Service to their homes if they live within one mile of the office.

5. Carrier service is not compulsory. Those persons desiring to maintain their box in the post office may do so. With the beginning of carrier service post office box rents will be increased to the following rates: Small Boxes $1.20. Medium Boxes $1.50. Large Boxes $2.25.

6 When carrier service starts all patrons will be required to use a complete address such as RFD Box No.... PO Box No:.. General Delivery or street addresses according to where they receive their mail. Change of address cards to send to publishers, correspondents and business firms are available at the Post Office.

The date that this service is to go into effect will be published when all street signs are up and houses are numbered. Carey said. For further information contact the Woodstock post office.

Christian Science Theme: Punishment

Man's god-given freedom from sin and temptation will be explained at Christian Science services this Sunday in Woodstock.

Keynoting the Lesson-Sermon on the subject "Everlasting Punishment" is the Golden Text from Ezekiel (18): "Repent, and turn yourselves from all your transgressions; so iniquity shall not be your ruin."

From "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy will be read (p. 315): "The likeness of God we lose sight of through sin, which beclouds the spiritual sense of Truth; and we realize this likeness only when we subdue sin and prove man's heritage, the liberty of the sons of God."

A selection to be read from the Bible states: "For it is God which worketh in you both to will and to do of his good pleasure. Do all things without murmurings and disputings: That ye may be blameless and harmless, the sons of God, without rebuke, in the midst of a crooked and perverse nation, among whom ye shine as lights in the world" (Philippians 2).

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "Burt Lancaster wants to talk to you about a movie," said Shirley Jones' manager. "I don't know what the role is, but it might be a shady lady. So dress sexy and look old."

From just such beginnings are Oscars won. That's the way it started for the winsome Miss Jones, whose film career was dragging until she played the racy Lulu Baines in "Elmer Gantry."

"When I went to talk about doing the part," she recalls, "I wore a dress that was cut down to here and fit tight around the hips. I also wore my hair up, so I wouldn't look so young.

"Burt and the producer, Bernie Smith, were for me from the start; they had seen me do a TV drama with Red Skelton, in which I played a couple of drunk scenes and committed suicide. Richard Brooks, the director, wasn't so sold on me; I think he had someone else in mind.

"But Burt was insistent and I got the role without making a test, though I would have been willing to make one. Brooks still wasn't for me until after the first day of shooting."

She convinced him — and the Academy voters. It was one of the notable switch-castings of recent times, her turning from musical comedy heroine to fallen woman. It also gave her a whole new film career to replace one that had been drifting.

Not that she is going to specialize in portraying tainted butterflies. Matter of fact, she is now back in the musical comedy dodge, playing Marian the librarian in "Music Man."

The musicals almost did her in, as far as films. She won immediate fame by being chosen by Rodgers and Hammerstein as their film Laurie in "Oklahoma!"

When she finished "Carousel," her studio, 20th Century-Fox, told her it had no films for her—"because we aren't planning any musicals." She protested that she could do non-musicals, but to no avail.

Those Elected

Elected were:

Wright Bryan, of the Cleveland (Ohio) Plain Dealer; William Dwight, of the Holyoke (Mass.) Transcript-Telegram; Eugene C. Pulliam, of the Phoenix (Ariz.) Gazette; and, for cities of less than 50,000 population, Harry F. Byrd Jr., of the Winchester (Va.) Evening Star.

The votes for winners were: McKelway, 8,405; Bradley, 6,988; Byrd, 8,301; Bryan, 7,627; Dwight, 6,811; and Pulliam, 6,547.

H. Cowles, of the Spokane (Wash.) Spokesman-Review; John R. Reitemeyer, of the Hartford (Conn.) Courant; and Raymond L. Spangler, of the Redwood City (Calif.) Tribune. Spangler represented cities of less than 50,000 population.

Carey Issues Regulations Governing First Class Mail

During the past few weeks, the town superintendent of highways has erected temporary road signs in order to expedite signs to go up. However, these mail delivery. There are still 12 are made and must be up before delivery starts, Postmaster Leon Carey said today.

Another requirement of the Post Office Department is that the houses on the Foot Route and Mounted Route must be numbered.

Due to the increase of the number of houses built and roads taken over by the town in the last three years, it is necessary for the Post Office to resurvey the town. Most of this has been done.

The plan as laid out now will affect the whole mail delivery system emanating from the Woodstock post office. Taking some patrons off the rural route (which is overburdened with 800 boxes now) and placing them on a mounted route, also adding areas which have not had delivery before and in the village giving door to door delivery.

Initially, but subject to change the following area will be covered by foot route:

A.) Beginning at the bridge west of the Woodstock Motel on Tinker Street to the Village Green then on Mill Hill Road to the intersection of 212 and 375. Also on all town approved streets in the village proper, namely Brook Road, Elwyn Lane to as far as the McGrath residence, Sled Hill Road, Pine Grove Street, Deming Street, Maple Lane, Rock City Road as far as the Brass Rail, Old Forge Road, Tannery Brook Road, Neher Street, Hillcrest Road, Library Lane as far as Paul Arndt's residence and Orchard Lane.

Residents in above area and living on town-owned streets may place their mail receptacles on their homes or install an approved mail slot in their front door. Those residents, in the above area, not on town-owned streets, may place a rural type mail box on the corner of the nearest town road.

Mounted Route

B.) The Mounted Route will cover the following areas: Mountain View Avenue, Rock City road from the Brass Rail to Glasco Turnpike, Lower Byrdcliffe Road from Parnassus Square, the Glasco Turnpike and Glasco Turnpike from Lower Byrdcliffe Road to Rock City Road, also Bellows Lane, Wiley Lane, Juniper Lane, Cedar Way and Simmons Drive. All of the above areas are being changed from the rural route or have not had any delivery before. Also west on Tinker Street beginning at the bridge by the Woodstock Motel, including most town roads as Schoonmaker Lane, Manor Drive, Forest Drive and Elwyn Drive. The above are on the Star Route or do not have any delivery at present. Also on the following roads now on the rural route will be served by the Mounted Route: Meadow Lane, Meadow Court, Dixon Avenue, Overlook Drive, Harder Road, Yerry Hill Road, Broadview Road, Ohayo Mt. Road from Broadview to Sully's Bridge, Millstream Road, Ratterman Road, Country Club Lane, Plochman Lane from Saugerties Road to Jordon Residence, Play House Lane, Evergreen Lane and Edgewood Lane.

All residents in above area, except as noted will place approved type rural boxes in front or across the road from the house on the edge of the street and on the side of the road that the carrier travels. Those residents in above area not living on town roads or not listed in this area may place rural type mail boxes on the corner of the nearest road the carrier travels.

General Rules

1. All houses must be numbered. If you do not know your number, you may obtain it from either the Town Clerk or the post office. PLEASE NOTE: In some of the developments patrons have numbers on their houses which are lot numbers, these cannot be used, they must use the official town number.

2. All houses on foot carrier route must have a mail receptacle on the house convenient to the carrier or an approved mail slot in the front door.

Rural Boxes

All apartment houses with three or more apartments, must have approved apartment house boxes. Business establishments, open during hours of delivery, are exempt from this rule.

3. Patrons required to have rural-type mail boxes must inscribes in neat letters not less than one inch high, on the side of the box that is visible to the carrier as he regularly approches or on the door if boxes are grouped, the street number and name of person. Please note—the complete address (street number and name) and name of patron must be inscribed on these rural type boxes not located in front of the patrons house. Boxes should be approximately 3½ feet to 4 feet above the roadway and so located that the carrier need not leave his vehicle to deliver mail.

4. Special Delivery, Parcel Post, Insured, COD, and Registered mail will be delivered to the residences of all delivery service patrons regardless of whether or not they live on town roads, provided the road is not impassible and not more than three blocks from regular route, otherwise, a notice will be left in the box requesting the patron to call at the office. Post Office boxholders will continue to receive Special Delivery Service to their homes if they live within one mile of the office.

5. Carrier service is not compulsory. Those persons desiring to maintain their box in the post office may do so. With the beginning of carrier service post office box rents will be increased to the following rates: Small Boxes $1.20. Medium Boxes $1.50. Large Boxes $2.25.

6 When carrier service starts all patrons will be required to use a complete address such as RFD Box No.... PO Box No:., General Delivery or street addresses according to where they receive their mail. Change of address cards to send to publishers, correspondents and business firms are available at the Post Office.

The date that this service is to go into effect will be published when all street signs are up and houses are numbered, Carey said. For further information contact the Woodstock post office.

Christian Science Theme: Punishment

Man's god-given freedom from sin and temptation will be explained at Christian Science services this Sunday in Woodstock.

Keynoting the Lesson-Sermon on the subject "Everlasting Punishment" is the Golden Text from Ezekiel (18): "Repent, and turn yourselves from all your transgressions; so iniquity shall not be your ruin."

From "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy will be read (p. 315): "The likeness of God we lose sight of through sin, which beclouds the spiritual sense of Truth; and we realize this likeness only when we subdue sin and prove man's heritage, the liberty of the sons of God."

A selection to be read from the Bible states: "For it is God which worketh in you both to will and to do of his good pleasure. Do all things without murmurings and disputings: That ye may be blameless and harmless, the sons of God, without rebuke, in the midst of a crooked and perverse nation, among whom ye shine as lights in the world" (Philippians 2).

Wilson Dinner Set Saturday

The Woodstock Square Club postponed "Citizen of the Year" dinner honoring Assemblyman Kenneth L. Wilson will be held on Saturday, April 29, at 7 p. m. at Deanie's in Woodstock.

Lt. Gov. Malcolm Wilson of Yonkers will be the principal speaker.

The annual event also honors the Square Club's retiring president, Milton Houst, and welcomes into office the new president Elbert Varney.

Assemblyman Wilson will be presented with a citation as an outstanding citizen of the Town of Woodstock. The scroll was created by Woodstock artist and illustrator, John Pike.

A cocktail hour is scheduled from 6:30 p. m. when a roast beef dinner will be served. There will be entertainment during the evening and dancing from 9 p. m. to midnight.

The P-TA part of the meeting will go on first. Two candidates for the Board of Education—David R. Fox of West Hurley and R. C. Cruthers of West Shokan—will appear before the meeting to outline their educational plilosophy and answer questions from the floor.

Fox is completing the unexpired term of John Haggerty, resigned, and is a candidate for re-election. Cruthers was a candidate for the post which went to Fox.

The hearing on the $1,708,034 school budget will follow the candidates' discussion.

FBI Is Seeking 7 More in Gigantic InsuranceSwindle

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The FBI hunted seven more persons today after arresting a score of civilians and servicemen on charges of perpetrating a $14.5-million insurance swindle.

Twenty persons were arrested in six states Monday, and the FBI said about 1,700 fraudulent authorizations for insurance premium allotments had been discovered at the Army Finance Center here. The center processes payrolls for the entire Army.

Insurance companies apparently were the heavy losers, because of commissions paid to salesmen.

Allan Gillies, FBI special agent said the forged authorizations were slipped past finance officers at Ft. Jackson, S.C., and Ft. Dix, N.J.

The fraud involved forging soldiers' names and serial numbers to an Army form authorizing deduction of allotments for families, insurance premiums and other purposes. It can be initiated at the company level or at the post finance office.

Gillies said the government has recovered $70,000 which had been paid to "seven or eight well-established insurance companies" as monthly premiums on insurance with a face value of $14.5 million.

Shokan

SHOKAN—John and Michael Kelly, New York City, were callers in the village center Friday. John is a member of the Brooklyn Fire Department. The brothers have bought 27 acres of woodland on Ohayo Mountain where they are putting up a summer home.

Local canvassers for the current cancer fund drive are Mrs. Robert Adsit, Shokan, and Mrs. Ernest Bode of Ashokan.

Mr. and Mrs. Willard Squiers, Watson Hollow Road, were in Shokan Wednesday. The couple report their well was frozen up nearly all winter and they had to haul water from the West Shokan Firehouse.

Fred Cabana, 73, who reportedly died last week at Springfield, Mass., was known here and at Samsonville. Mrs. Cabana, the former Dora Collins, resided for a time in the old village of Shokan.

Friday, water was beginning to run over the spillway of the Ashokan Reservoir for the first time this year. With the west basin also overflowing, it is not unlikely that some of the big trout which lurk near, the dividing weir will try to work their way up into the Esopus Creek where brown trout up to two feet long were caught in days before the waterworks.

James Carpenter Sr., Richmond Hill resident who with his family formerly rented a summer bungalow in Shokan for 15 years, is reported seriously ill in a Jamaica, L. I., hospital.

Barney Kane, East 37th Street, New York City, was a Shokan caller Saturday.

Louis Thiel, one of Shokan's few octogenarians, is again at his place on Route 28 following a sojourn of several months at the home of his daughter, Louise Armstrong, in Bound Brook, N. J.

The Freeman photo of that 31-inch trout lifted from the reservoir deeps earlier in April has been added to the wall exhibits at the Winchell's Corner free museum, where many visiting Izaak Waltons and their wives stop to browse around. One of the interested visitors Thursday was Edward Ryan, Hyde Park, who is director of racing at Onteora Speedway Park. He collects Civil War data and lives in a stone house of the Revolutionary War period.

Group Dental Insurance Can Save Many Dollars

The nation's annual dental bill totals around $2 billion. It takes about 11 cents out of each of our medical dollars. And yet the growth of dental insurance has lagged behind that of hospital and medical insurance.

Most of the existing coverage is union-sponsored, but there are some community-wide plans. Usually they are group arrangements open to workers of a specific company.

In New York City, a family can join Group Health Dental Insurance, Inc. and pay a premium of $6.88 a month regardless of how many children they have. For this they receive allowances for such basic services as X-rays, prophylaxis (professional cleaning), fillings, inlays, gold crowns and extractions.

If a family enrolls before its children are six years old, each child is entitled to up to $405 worth of orthodontic work. If higher premiums are paid, the family is covered for part of the cost of dentures and bridgework.

But most Americans still have to handle the cost of their dental work on a person-to-person level with their dentists. The May issue of Redbook magazine presents some useful tips on meeting the dental health problem as an individual. Here are some highlights:

Discuss all costs with your dentist, asking when necessary, whether he might be able to substitute a less expensive material or method. But remember that the cheapest way of repairing teeth is seldom the best.

If you discuss your finances frankly with your dentist, you're likely to find that his fee varies according to your ability to pay. Most dentists—like most doctors—feel that this is as it should be.

Dental costs vary widely by geography. Bills can be considerably higher if you live in a western or southwestern state, lower in New England or the deep South. You'll pay more if you live in a city or a suburb, less if your home is in a rural area.

A dentist starting his career generally charges less than one at the peak.

The key to dental health and lower bills is preventive dentistry. This means regular X-rays and prophylaxis. Fortunately these are among the least expensive of dental procedures. The magazine estimates the cost of such care should average around $100 a year for a family of two adults and two children.

Sessions Resume Today in Strike Of Supermarkets

SYRACUSE, N. Y. (AP)—Bargaining sessions in a supermarket labor dispute resume today against a background of union charges that management refused to reopen the stores while talks continued.

A union officer, Samuel J. Talarico, told workers in Rochester Monday night that management of the approximately 275 stores refused the union's plan to reopen while talks progressed.

Negotiations broke off Monday in Syracuse and a federal mediator reported the parties were as far apart as they were 10 days ago.

The union, the amalgamated Meatcutters, Butchers and Affliated Crafts Union, struck 75 Loblaw stores April 7. Four other chains, A&P, Acme, P&C and Victory-Johnson, closed in sympathy. The stores generally are between Rochester and Schenectady and in Northern Pennsylvania.

More than 8,000 union members have been idled.

Job security, particularly for 4,000 union members who work weekends in the stores, is the main stumbling block in the negotiations.

Orange Home Is Destroyed by Fire, Blamed on Storm

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y. (AP)—Pasquale Durante of suburban Mechanicstown watched his house burn down early today—after he thought he'd put out the lightning-ignited fire.

He told Asst. Fire Chief Ed Moulton a socket caught fire when lightning struck the house during a rainstorm. He said he quenched the blaze and, as an added measure, cut off the power.

He said he and his small son went to the nearby home of his father and when they returned flames were pouring from the roof.

Firemen officially listed it as a lightning-started fire.

Federal Gasoline Tax of 4 Cents Likely to Remain

WASHINGTON (AP)—The federal tax on your gasoline will continue at 4 cents a gallon if Congress follows the lead of the House Ways and Means Committee. And Congress usually does.

The committee Monday approved a compromise bill to send an additional $900 million a year into the fund which finances the pay-as-you-go federal superhighway program.

Without such a boost, Congress was told, the program might stretch out as much as five years beyond 1972, when the 41,000-mile network of superhighways is scheduled to be finished.

Beside extending the one-cent "temporary" part of the gasoline tax scheduled to expire July 1, the tax-writing committee approved a series of tax increases on truck operations and voted to divert from the general fund to the highway fund the proceeds of half the excise tax on trucks and buses.

At present the two funds divide the 10 per cent tax. Under the committee plan the highway fund would get it all. Passenger automobile excises would not be affected.

Spokesmen for truck management and labor, who complained that President Kennedy's original recommendations would have dealt their industry a cruel blow, won substantial points in the final compromise.

John Hanson, who served under the Articles of Confederation in 1781-1782, was first president of the United States.

U2 Spy Case, Cuban Invasion Glaring Examples

Intelligence Changes Loom After New U.S. Disaster Within a Year

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — The finger points at the Central Intelligence Agency as a big factor in two American disasters within less than a year: The Cuban invasion and the U2 spy plane.

Bit by bit the CIA, most hush-hush of all government agencies and therefore the one about which the public knows the least, is being criticized. The result will be a good look at its operations.

President Kennedy took the initiative in this by appointing Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, former Army chief of staff, to head a study of intelligence and guerrilla warfare tactics.

Nixon Suggests Shift

Former Vice President Richard M. Nixon is reported to believe —and to have told Kennedy so— the Cuban disaster shows there should be a division of responsibility in the CIA.

This means separating its gathering of information — it's the American super-spy agency — from any part in carrying out the actions based on the information it collects.

Last May 1, just 15 days before President Eisenhower was to have had his summit meeting in Paris with Premier Khrushchev, the CIA sent the U2 spy plane over Russia where it was shot down.

The result:

1. American spying was revealed to the world at the worst possible time — when Eisenhower and Khrushchev were to meet in search of peaceful solutions.

2. The subsequent revelation that this was only the latest in a series of spy flights humiliated Khrushchev since the others had been successful.

Timing Was Bad

3. The humiliated Khrushchev reacted as might have been predicted. He burst into international rage and indignation, called off the summit meeting, and insulted Eisenhower.

Although the U2 program in general had been approved by Eisenhower and Secretary of State Christian A. Herter, apparently the CIA did not consult with them about the timing of the specific flight that ran into trouble in that very delicate period.

It shouldn't have required much astuteness to figure out beforehand that if the plane was caught and brought down it would give the Russians enormous anti-American propaganda at the worst possible time—just before the summit.

As for Cuba—the CIA reportedly was up to its neck in the invasion.

Sen. Mike Mansfield of Montana leader of the Senate Democrats, called Monday night for prompt and thorough overhaul of U.S. intelligence machinery.

Late Monday one of the highest officials in the Kennedy administration acknowledged this country had helped to train and equip the Cuba exiles who hit the Cuban beaches last week.

He also admitted there was considerable miscalculation both by the Cuban underground and U.S. intelligence on two points:

1. Whether there would be extensive anti-Castro reaction inside Cuba when the landings were made. There wasn't.

2. The extent to which the Communists already had supplied Castro with arms. It turned out to be much greater than expected.

Dulles at Helm

There have been various reports that the CIA helped in training the rebels and in providing overly optimistic appraisals on the degree of anti-Castro feeling in Cuba, a factor of real significance in deciding whether to invade.

The CIA is headed by Allen Dulles, brother of the late Secretary of State John Foster Dulles. When Kennedy took office and began replacing key men appointed by Eisenhower with men of his own choosing, he retained Dulles.

The same high official who admitted American intelligence on Cuba was off-base, said Monday the revolt of the retired French generals in Algeria was a surprise to both the French government in Paris and to us, too.

Our intelligence, he said, didn't alert us to this.

How an exclusive discovery whips extra smoothness into Schenley whisky

This is a glass of unusual whisky. It is Schenley. Its extraordinary smoothness is the result of the greatest advance in whisky making in the last twenty-five years.

Taking the same fine whiskies and grain neutral spirits reserved for Schenley, we now put them through a costly new step. The whiskies are whirled in special vats by stainless steel blades and literally whipped into a smoothness never before attainable.

The result can only be realized by tasting Schenley whisky. We think you'll agree: smoothness in a whisky now takes on a new meaning. So start enjoying Schenley, the only whisky with extra smoothness whipped in. $4.79 4/5 Qt. $3.00 Pt. $5.90 Qt.

Federal Gasoline Tax of 4 Cents Likely to Remain

WASHINGTON (AP)—The federal tax on your gasoline will continue at 4 cents a gallon if Congress follows the lead of the House Ways and Means Committee. And Congress usually does.

The committee Monday approved a compromise bill to send an additional $900 million a year into the fund which finances the pay-as-you-go federal superhighway program.

Without such a boost, Congress was told, the program might stretch out as much as five years beyond 1972, when the 41,000-mile network of superhighways is scheduled to be finished.

Beside extending the one-cent "temporary" part of the gasoline tax scheduled to expire July 1, the tax-writing committee approved a series of tax increases on truck operations and voted to divert from the general fund to the highway fund the proceeds of half the excise tax on trucks and buses.

At present the two funds divide the 10 per cent tax. Under the committee plan the highway fund would get it all. Passenger automobile excises would not be affected.

Spokesmen for truck management and labor, who complained that President Kennedy's original recommendations would have dealt their industry a cruel blow, won substantial points in the final compromise.

John Hanson, who served under the Articles of Confederation in 1781-1782, was first president of the United States.

U2 Spy Case, Cuban Invasion Glaring Examples

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — The finger points at the Central Intelligence Agency as a big factor in two American disasters within less than a year: The Cuban invasion and the U2 spy plane.

Bit by bit the CIA, most hush-hush of all government agencies and therefore the one about which the public knows the least, is being criticized. The result will be a good look at its operations.

President Kennedy took the initiative in this by appointing Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, former Army chief of staff, to head a study of intelligence and guerrilla warfare tactics.

Nixon Suggests Shift

Former Vice President Richard M. Nixon is reported to believe —and to have told Kennedy so— the Cuban disaster shows there should be a division of responsibility in the CIA.

This means separating its gathering of information — it's the American super-spy agency — from any part in carrying out the actions based on the information it collects.

Last May 1, just 15 days before President Eisenhower was to have had his summit meeting in Paris with Premier Khrushchev, the CIA sent the U2 spy plane over Russia where it was shot down.

The result:

1. American spying was revealed to the world at the worst possible time — when Eisenhower and Khrushchev were to meet in search of peaceful solutions.

2. The subsequent revelation that this was only the latest in a series of spy flights humiliated Khrushchev since the others had been successful.

Timing Was Bad

3. The humiliated Khrushchev reacted as might have been predicted. He burst into international rage and indignation, called off the summit meeting, and insulted Eisenhower.

Although the U2 program in general had been approved by Eisenhower and Secretary of State Christian A. Herter, apparently the CIA did not consult with them about the timing of the specific flight that ran into trouble in that very delicate period.

Good Taste Today

Author of "Children Are People" and "Etiquette," etc.

Tracing an Unacknowledged Present

Q—Three months ago, we sent quite an expensive wedding gift to a bride whose parents are only acquaintances of ours; the bride and groom, as well as his family, are total strangers. To date we have not received any acknowledgement. Is there anything we can do to find out what has happened? Perhaps the card was lost. If these people were friends, I would not hesitate to write frankly, but I can't bring myself to do it with these people.

A: The only thing you can do is write to the bride and ask her if she received the present. Describe it to her and say that you are writing because you would like to have it traced in case it has been lost. This is a perfectly conventional thing to do and quite proper.

Brother and Sister Are Also Bereaved

Q: Will you please answer the following question and put an end to an argument going on between my sister and her brother-in-law? My sister's husband passed away two months ago, and while I know they are not correct, she printed acknowledgement cards which read: "The wife of the late John Jones, etc." Her brother-in-law, her husband's brother, claims that they should have read, "The family of the late John Jones, etc." Her husband had one sister and one brother. She claims she is right as she had no children. Who is right?

A: The printed cards were wrong and changing them to "The family of . . . " would have made little difference, but would have been better because it would have recognized the brother and sister as well as the widow, as those bereaved.

Asking a Blessing in Silence

Q: When out in a public restaurant, is it wrong for one to bow one's head in silent grace? I have a friend who says it would be too conspicuous and therefore not in good taste.

A: I can't understand how bowing your head and asking a blessing, in silence need be conspicuous or out of place anywhere.

The Emily Post Institute is sorry it cannot answer personal mail.

Mrs.MacKinnon,Mrs.O'ReillyAreDelegates To Annual Junior League Conference, Texas

O'Reilly, chairman of the public relations committee will represent their League at the 39th annual conference of the Association of Junior Leagues of America to be held in Dallas, Texas May 1 through May 5. "The purpose of the Association is to unite the member Leagues and to promote their individual purposes by offering them leadership and assistance. It is an advisory, not a supervisory organization." The annual conference provides the only time during the year when the Association meets to conduct its business.

The conference will be attended by more than 500 delegates, representing 199 Junior Leagues in the United States, Canada, and Mexico with a total membership of 79,500 women performing over 100,000 volunteer jobs. A series of business meetings, workshops and addresses in the fields of education and civic affairs, the arts, health, welfare and recreation, children's theatre and puppetry, radio and television will be held. Fourteen workshops, covering the five project areas in which Junior Leagues work, will be given at the conference by members of the AJLA consultant staff. The theme of the conference will be "The Will and the Way of the Volunteer."

Presiding at the conference business meeting will be Mrs. H. Edmund Lunken of Cincinnati, Ohio, president of AJLA. The delegate body will include representatives of two Junior Leagues: York, Pennsylvania and Evansville, Indiana, which were admitted to the Association this year. During the week, the delegates will elect a first vice-president and treasurer for the Association as well as seven regional directors.

Highlighting the week-long meeting will be a panel discussion on "New Goals for Women" in which Dr. Willis M. Tate, President of Southern Methodist University and Dr. Edward Stainbrook, Chairman of the Psychiatry Department of the University of Southern California will take part. The keynote address will be delivered by H. Christian Sonne, Chairman of the National Planning Association.

Good Taste Today

By EMILY POST

Author of "Children Are People" and "Etiquette," etc.

Tracing an Unacknowledged Present

Q—Three months ago, we sent quite an expensive wedding gift to a bride whose parents are only acquaintances of ours; the bride and groom, as well as his family, are total strangers. To date we have not received any acknowledgement. Is there anything we can do to find out what has happened? Perhaps the card was lost. If these people were friends, I would not hesitate to write frankly, but I can't bring myself to do it with these people.

A: The only thing you can do is write to the bride and ask her if she received the present. Describe it to her and say that you are writing because you would like to have it traced in case it has been lost. This is a perfectly conventional thing to do and quite proper.

Brother and Sister Are Also Bereaved

Q: Will you please answer the following question and put an end to an argument going on between my sister and her brother-in-law? My sister's husband passed away two months ago, and while I know they are not correct, she printed acknowledgement cards which read: "The wife of the late John Jones, etc." Her brother-in-law, her husband's brother, claims that they should have read, "The family of the late John Jones, etc." Her husband had one sister and one brother. She claims she is right as she had no children. Who is right?

A: The printed cards were wrong and changing them to "The family of . . ." would have made little difference, but would have been better because it would have recognized the brother and sister as well as the widow, as those bereaved.

Asking a Blessing in Silence

Q: When out in a public restaurant, is it wrong for one to bow one's head in silent grace? I have a friend who says it would be too conspicuous and therefore not in good taste.

A: I can't understand how bowing your head and asking a blessing, in silence need be conspicuous or out of place anywhere.

The Emily Post Institute is sorry it cannot answer personal mail.

The amount of the fortune left to Betty Fedyn, 47, was disclosed Monday when the will of Dr. James J. Lewis, an eye specialist, was filed in Probate Court.

Dr. Lewis, who died April 19 at the age of 81, identified Mrs. Fedyn in his will as "my trusted friend" and provided she should receive all except $30,000 of the net estate. Attorney Eugene A. Tappy, who filed the will, estimated the estate at $250,000.

Mrs. Fedyn said she started working for Dr. Lewis in 1941 after she had gone to him for treatment of an eye ailment. She said she plans to "take it easy" and write lyrics for songs, which she said always has been her ambition.

The portrait of any living person is barred from appearing on any U. S. postage stamp by federal law.

Fine Idea — Help Revive The Art of Conversation

An attorney in Memphis, Tenn., has set out to bring back the art of conversation in his city.

In a letter he sent to 50 persons, he wrote:

"It seems to me that there ought to be somewhere in the community where people who have diverse and even conflicting interests but curiosity about the ideas and opinions of other people and like to talk could do so.

"It is very good for an older mind to have to exercise itself to defend its opinions and to have the opportunity occasionally to learn that which it regards as truth is only opinion long and firmly held. It is good for the young mind to collide with caution and experience. . . ."

Isn't there an idea here for towns and cities all over the country? There isn't enough conversation today . . . especially conversation among those who don't think alike and between the old and the young.

We have plenty of clubs and organizations that "do things," plenty that meet to listen to a speaker, plenty of purely social get-togethers such as cocktail parties where the talk is all small talk. But very few of us spend much time in thoughtful conversation.

Conversation once flourished in the home. But that was before TV, and before we got so age-conscious that we put children, teen-agers, the middle aged, and the old folks in separate groups.

Maybe conversation clubs ARE the answer. Anyway, they are worth a try. And since most of us are getting a little bit tired of being talked AT all the time, there's a chance that the opportunity to talk WITH a group might prove irresistible.

How To Use Water To END YOUR CONSTIPATION WORRIES

Here's how to get to the basic root of your constipation problem. Bring enough moisture to your lower colon every day. As soon as food wastes are normally moistened, they will "move" as they should and you will enjoy daily elimination.

So do this to end your constipation worries. Take SERUTAN every day with plenty of water. SERUTAN is a pure vegetable gel which carries twenty times its weight in water to your lower digestive tract where it is needed to promote more normal regularity.

SERUTAN provides the proper moisture, bulk and peristaltic action to help keep you regular. This is utterly different from chemical laxatives which cause diarrhea and may dry you out.

Get SERUTAN today. Use it faithfully as directed for at least one week. You must enjoy daily regularity or your money back from the maker.

Big Cab Turns Over on Rte. 209

Monday afternoon a tractor-trailer loaded with 17 tons of clay pipe tipped over on Route 209 near Riverside Park, Hurley. The driver was not injured.

John M. Norris, 56, of 538½ Maple Street, Reading, Pa., driver, said he had been forced off the road by an unknown car as he proceded north. His vehicle ran along a ditch for 200 feet and then tipped over when the load shifted. The truck was owned by Samuel E. Small of Pottstown, Pa.

Training for Other Work Is Key to Jobs for Aged

Retraining. Shifting. In the opinion of Ewan Clague, commissioner of labor statistics for the Department of Labor, those are important keys to job success for older workers.

"In general, many workers in our economy, both men and women, are in occupations and jobs which will require substantial readjustment when the workers are about age 45," Clague told the National Council on the Aging "The type of work in which they are successful in their younger years won't be available to them after they have reached their physical peak.

"This age is crucial in determining the future work potential of older people. These workers may need to take training, retraining or further education and make other adjustments to enable them to hold down a new job or occupation."

How about the worker over 65? In Clague's opinion, the fact that he is 65 or over doesn't mean he can't work successfully.

But the fact remains that his declining capacities are always narrowing the field in which he can work.

"One of the pressures for early retirement of older people comes from the fact that a worker has stayed too long in a job which is fading out from under him," Clague said. "He is doing what he always did but doing it less well.

"He finally reaches the point where he is no longer worth his wage or salary. It is cheaper to retire him on pension.

"The story might have been different had he switched to a job which he could fulfill adequately at his age. Yet to do this means periodic shifting of men and jobs, a type of turnover which is resisted by workers and employers.

"Managements tend to retain the older worker in his job until retirement rather than experiment in periodic readjustments, since it is so much easier to experiment with younger workers."

Clague pointed out that sometimes you become "obsolescent" in a job very early in life.

The average ballplayer who is through with his occupation at age 40 has a life expectancy of 35 more years. He has to develop a new job for his second working life.

By contrast, a doctor, or some one else in a profession that takes long preparation, would scarcely be started in his career at age 30.

Q—I will be 65 on Sept. 12, 1961. How soon may I make application for social security benefits? —W. D. McL.

A—Three months before your 65th birthday.

Q—My husband died recently. I will be 62 in April. I have been working under social security. Will I receive both widow's and worker's benefits at this time?—Mrs. C. B.

A—No, you will receive the widows' benefit or the benefit based on your own earnings, whichever is the larger.

HOW WONDERFUL!

I do believe the people at Kingston Savings Bank had me in mind when they designed their new building.

That ground level banking floor, no more steps to climb . . . and automatic opening doors, how nice for any woman laden with packages after a shopping tour! And, say, won't that new sidewalk-side walkup teller window be great convenience when I have the baby uptown in his carriage?

I hear it will be opening April 29th.

The amount of the fortune left to Betty Fedyn, 47, was disclosed Monday when the will of Dr. James J. Lewis, an eye specialist, was filed in Probate Court.

Dr. Lewis, who died April 19 at the age of 81, identified Mrs. Fedyn in his will as "my trusted friend" and provided she should receive all except $30,000 of the net estate. Attorney Eugene A. Tappy, who filed the will, estimated the estate at $250,000.

Mrs. Fedyn said she started working for Dr. Lewis in 1941 after she had gone to him for treatment of an eye ailment. She said she plans to "take it easy" and write lyrics for songs, which she said always has been her ambition.

Fine Idea — Help Revive The Art of Conversation

An attorney in Memphis, Tenn., has set out to bring back the art of conversation in his city.

In a letter he sent to 50 persons, he wrote:

"It seems to me that there ought to be somewhere in the community where people who have diverse and even conflicting interests but curiosity about the ideas and opinions of other people and like to talk could do so.

"It is very good for an older mind to have to exercise itself to defend its opinions and to have the opportunity occasionally to learn that which it regards as truth is only opinion long and firmly held. It is good for the young mind to collide with caution and experience. . . ."

Isn't there an idea here for towns and cities all over the country? There isn't enough conversation today . . . especially conversation among those who don't think alike and between the old and the young.

We have plenty of clubs and organizations that "do things," plenty that meet to listen to a speaker, plenty of purely social get-togethers such as cocktail parties where the talk is all small talk. But very few of us spend much time in thoughtful conversation.

Conversation once flourished in the home. But that was before TV, and before we got so age-conscious that we put children, teen-agers, the middle aged, and the old folks in separate groups.

Maybe conversation clubs ARE the answer. Anyway, they are worth a try. And since most of us are getting a little bit tired of being talked AT all the time, there's a chance that the opportunity to talk WITH a group might prove irresistible.

Big Cab Turns Over on Rte. 209

Monday afternoon a tractor-trailer loaded with 17 tons of clay pipe tipped over on Route 209 near Riverside Park, Hurley. The driver was not injured.

John M. Norris, 56, of 538½ Maple Street, Reading, Pa., driver, said he had been forced off the road by an unknown car as he proceeded north. His vehicle ran along a ditch for 200 feet and then tipped over when the load shifted. The truck was owned by Samuel E. Small of Pottstown, Pa.

The truck and cab were badly wrecked when the pipe shifted. A tow truck was summoned to haul it from the ditch and another truck was dispatched to take over the load.

Deputy Sheriffs Fred Bronkman and John Tuey investigated.

Training for Other Work Is Key to Jobs for Aged

Retraining. Shifting. In the opinion of Ewan Clague, commissioner of labor statistics for the Department of Labor, those are important keys to job success for older workers.

"In general, many workers in our economy, both men and women, are in occupations and jobs which will require substantial readjustment when the workers are about age 45," Clague told the National Council on the Aging. "The type of work in which they are successful in their younger years won't be available to them after they have reached their physical peak.

"This age is crucial in determining the future work potential of older people. These workers may need to take training, retraining or further education and make other adjustments to enable them to hold down a new job or occupation."

How about the worker over 65? In Clague's opinion, the fact that he is 65 or over doesn't mean he can't work successfully.

But the fact remains that his declining capacities are always narrowing the field in which he can work.

"One of the pressures for early retirement of older people comes from the fact that a worker has stayed too long in a job which is fading out from under him," Clague said. "He is doing what he always did but doing it less well.

"He finally reaches the point where he is no longer worth his wage or salary. It is cheaper to retire him on pension.

"The story might have been different had he switched to a job which he could fulfill adequately at his age. Yet to do this means periodic shifting of men and jobs, a type of turnover which is resisted by workers and employers.

"Managements tend to retain the older worker in his job until retirement rather than experiment in periodic readjustments, since it is so much easier to experiment with younger workers."

Clague pointed out that sometimes you become "obsolescent" in a job very early in life.

The average ballplayer who is through with his occupation at age 40 has a life expectancy of 35 more years. He has to develop a new job for his second working life.

By contrast, a doctor, or some one else in a profession that takes long preparation, would scarcely be started in his career at age 30.

Q—I will be 65 on Sept. 12, 1961. How soon may I make application for social security benefits? —W. D. McL.

A—Three months before your 65th birthday.

Q—My husband died recently. I will be 62 in April. I have been working under social security. Will I receive both widow's and worker's benefits at this time?—Mrs. C. B.

A—No, you will receive the widows' benefit or the benefit based on your own earnings, whichever is the larger.

END YOUR CONSTIPATION WORRIES

Here's how to get to the basic root of your constipation problem. Bring enough moisture to your lower colon every day. As soon as food wastes are normally moistened, they will "move" as they should and you will enjoy daily elimination.

So do this to end your constipation worries. Take SERUTAN every day with plenty of water. SERUTAN is a pure vegetable gel which carries twenty times its weight in water to your lower digestive tract where it is needed to promote more normal regularity.

SERUTAN provides the proper moisture, bulk and peristaltic action to help keep you regular. This is utterly different from chemical laxatives which cause diarrhea and may dry you out.

Get SERUTAN today. Use it faithfully as directed for at least one week. You must enjoy daily regularity or your money back from the maker.

High School Golfers Rout Middies, 12-0, in DUSO Opener

Costello Posts 1-Under-Par 69 On Home Links

The Kingston High School varsity golf squad has launched its 1961 season with a 12-0 victory over Middletown High to extend its carryover winning streak to nine straight dual victories in DUSO League competition.

William (Buzzy) Costello, the Maroon's crack No. 1 performer, carved out a 1-under-par 69 to pace Coach Harold Hathaway's swingers to their initial victory of the season Monday at The Twaalfskill Club links.

The Kingston team, which captured both the DUSO League and Section 9 titles last year, completed the 1960 season with eight straight wins.

Costello made the turn with a 1-under-par 34 and matched par figures on the second swing around, as the Maroons wrapped up the rout with a gross score of 294, some 51 less than the Middie swingers needed.

Barthel Posts 73

Harold Mabee, the Middies No. 1 player against Costello, was the only visitor to break 80 on the venerable Twaalfskill layout. He barely made it with 39-40-79.

One of the most important tests of the season is ahead of the Maroon Thursday when they play Newburgh Academy at the Powelton links in Newburgh.

Tiger's 8th in Row Tops Yanks

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

The Detroit Tigers extended their winning streak to eight straight Monday defeating the New York Yankees 4-3. The triumph enabled the Tigers to retain their first place margin in the American League by half a game over the Minnesota Twins who took a 10-inning, 10-6 decision from Kansas City.

In the only other American League game, Cleveland defeated Baltimore 5-1. Rain washed out the scheduled game between Los Angles and the White Sox in Chicago. Boston and Washington were not scheduled.

Minnesota rallied for three runs in top of the ninth to overcome a 6-3 Kansas City lead furnished by Marv Throneberry's three-run homer in the bottom of the eighth. Catcher Earl Battey's leadoff single ignited the tying rally. Two Athletic errors and Bob Allison's single filled the bases in the tenth against loser Bud Daley and set the stage for Battey's game-winning blow. Ray Moore, in relief, was the winner.

Lary Wins Again

The Tigers extended their winning streak to eight straight as Frank Lary continued his hex over the Yankees. The stocky little right-hander hurled a seven-hitter to lift his lifetime mark against the Yankees to 24 victories and only 8 defeats.

Rookie Steve Boros and first baseman Norm Cash led a 10-hit attack against loser Bob Turley and two relievers. Boros cracked three hits and drove in two runs. Cash put his team in front with a fourth inning home run.

Bubba Phillips hit his first grand slam home run in eight major league seasons to spark the Indians' victory over the Orioles. The blow came in the sixth with the score tied at 1-1. The victim was Milt Pappas, who failed to finish for the second straight time. Jim Perry was the winner although he needed eighth inning help from Frank Funk when the Orioles loaded the bases.

The Jones squad compiled a 2805 gross, with 30 pins handicap. Best doubles was the 1145 rolled by Buster Ferraro (610) and Larry Petersen (535).

Basilio Retires From Boxing, To Become Gentleman Farmer

SYRACUSE, N. Y. (AP)—Carmen Basilio, his battle-marked face showing the effects of almost 13 years in the ring, started a new life as a gentleman farmer today.

The craggy-jawed former world welterweight and middleweight champion announced Monday night that he was finished with boxing for good.

"Right now," said the 34-year-old Basilio, "I'm going to rest for about a week, think things over and take care of my apple trees."

He started out as an onion farmer and barely eked out a living before he turned to fighting. Now he has about eight acres of apple trees on his suburban Chittenango farm.

"I've done a lot of work on it, but there's plenty more to do," he said. "I'm moving slowly and getting help from experts. You might say I know my onions, but I still don't want my apples."

A Bad Beating

Basilio took a bad beating from Paul Pender last Saturday in Boston. Pender, defending his New York-Massachusetts - Europe version of the world middleweight championship, not only won a decisive decision, but had Basilio off his feet for the first time in his career.

While he wouldn't come right out and say so, that undoubtedly helped Basilio—an ex-Marine who always was willing to take two punches to land one—make up his mind.

"I've had a couple of good job offers," Carmen said, "but I don't want to talk about them until I make up my mind which one I'll take. I'm in no hurry."

He added that his left arm, which he injured in a bout against Don Jordan a month ago, then re-injured against Pender, still hurt.

"It's still a little painful now," he said, "but it should be all right after a few days' rest. Actually, it probably will be months before it is really strong again, but at least the soreness is dying down."

Had 79 Fights

Basilio was born in nearby Canastota, N. Y. He fought 79 times and 11 of his bouts were for world championships. He won his first title, the welterweight, when he knocked out Tony DeMarco on June 10, 1955. He knocked out DeMarco in a return, then lost the crown to Johnny Saxton on a controversial decision in Chicago.

But he made up for that by knocking out Saxton twice, on Sept. 12, 1956, and Feb 27, 1957.

Then on Sept. 23, 1957, he moved into the middleweight class and promptly dethroned Sugar Ray Robinson. Sugar Ray won the title back on a decision in Chicago on March 25, 1958, then was stripped of the championship by the National Boxing Association for refusing to defend.

Basilio and Gene Fullmer were matched for the vacant title—and that started Carmen's downfall. Fullmer won on a 14th round TKO, administering a fearful beating to Basilio on Aug. 28, 1959. He stopped Basilio again in 12 rounds on June 29, 1960. Both times Carmen stayed on his feet to the end.

By then, Basilio was considering quitting, but as he put it at the time:

"Where can I make $20,000 a year?"

Now his thinking has changed.

NL Chase Is Between Five Clubs

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

At the start of the season, the National League managers predicted a five-team race with a sixth team, the Cincinnati Reds, having an outside chance. The league standings today make the pilots look like geniuses in the guessing department.

Only one game separates the first four teams after two weeks play. Another game separates the seventh-place Milwaukee Braves from the first-place Los Angeles Dodgers. San Francisco, St. Louis and Pittsburgh, the other three in the top-rated five, are tied for second place.

In the only game played Monday Pittsburgh edged Milwaukee 7-6 to drop the Braves one game out of the cellar. To further illustrate the closeness of the National League race, had the Braves won, they would have bolted into second place.

Bob Friend won his third without a defeat for the Pirates but he needed ninth inning help from Clem Labine. The veteran right-hander allowed only five hits through eight innings and went into the final frame leading 7-4.

Wes Covington's single, an error and a sacrifice produced one Milwaukee run. Friend got John Demerit to fly out but when Johnny Logan singled in a run, Manager Danny Murtaugh summoned Labine from the bullpen. The sinker ball specialist got Roy McMillan on a grounder to end the game.

Jerseys Rained Out Once More

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Rain and the Jersey City Jerseys apparently have become bosom buddies during this young International League baseball season.

Twice in the last three games, the rains came just in time to save the Jerseys from defeat at the hands of Toronto's Maple Leafs. Toronto held commanding advantages on both occasions.

Monday night the Leafs erupted for five runs in the top of the 10th inning. Rain promptly stepped in and washed out the five tallies, leaving the teams tied at 2-2. The umpired called the action off after waiting 49 minutes.

Saturday night Toronto held a 4-1 lead in the fourth frame when a rainstorm came to Jersey City's rescue and forced postponement of the game.

After spotting the Jerseys a 2-0 advantage in the night's only International League activity, the Leafs came up with single runs in the eighth and ninth to tie the score at 2-2 after nine.

All eight clubs are scheduled for action tonight with Toronto at Columbus, Buffalo at Richmond, Rochester at San Juan and Syracuse at Jersey City.

Robert Briggs' Hit 70 Per Cent In Bridge Game

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Briggs of Newburgh posted an exceptionally high 70 percent game to take honors on the North-South side of the Glenerie Bridge Club's Fractional point game.

Tied for first place on the East-West side with 57 percent games were the teams of Mrs. Wheatcroft and Norman Wheatcroft of Kingston and Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Ettlinger of Poughkeepsie. Twenty one boards were in play in a 7-table Mitchell movement.

Runnersup on the North-South side were Miss Marie Degenhardt of Poughkeepsie and Milton Daskal of Kerhonkson with 58 percent. Dr. Habeeb Maroon and Dr. John Olivet placed third with 47 per cent.

Third place winners on the East-West side were Mrs. Myra Condon and Mrs. Elizabeth Boedecker of Poughkeepsie with 56 per cent.

The monthly Master Point game is slated at the Stuyvesant Kingston Hotel at 8 o'clock.

High School Golfers Rout Middies, 12-0, in DUSO Opener

BEAUTIFUL SPECIMEN — Phillip VanDeBogart, 13-year-old Wittenberg youth, displays the beautiful 7-pound, 27-inch German brown trout he caught last Saturday at the dividing weir of the Ashokan Reservoir. Costello Posts 1-Under-Par 69 On Home Links

The Kingston High School varsity golf squad has launched its 1961 season with a 12-0 victory over Middletown High to extend its carryover winning streak to nine straight dual victories in DUSO League competition.

William (Buzzy) Costello, the Maroon's crack No. 1 performer, carved out a 1-under-par 69 to pace Coach Harold Hathaway's swingers to their initial victory of the season Monday at The Twaalfskill Club links.

The Kingston team, which captured both the DUSO League and Section 9 titles last year, completed the 1960 season with eight straight wins.

Costello made the turn with a 1-under-par 34 and matched par figures on the second swing around, as the Maroons wrapped up the rout with a gross score of 294, some 51 less than the Middie swingers needed.

Barthel Posts 73

Ricky Barthel justified his No. 2 rating with 73 on nines of 39 and 34. Lauren Beaver furnished 36-38-74 and Robert Bechtold matched a pair of 39's for 78 in the No. 4 slot.

Harold Mabee, the Middies No. 1 player against Costello, was the only visitor to break 80 on the venerable Twaalfskill layout. He barely made it with 39-40-79.

One of the most important tests of the season is ahead of the Maroon Thursday when they play Newburgh Academy at the Powelton links in Newburgh.

Tiger's 8th in Row TopsYanks

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

The Detroit Tigers extended their winning streak to eight straight Monday defeating the New York Yankees 4-3. The triumph enabled the Tigers to retain their first place margin in the American League by half a game over the Minnesota Twins who took a 10-inning, 10-6 decision from Kansas City.

In the only other American League game, Cleveland defeated Baltimore 5-1. Rain washed out the scheduled game between Los Angles and the White Sox in Chicago. Boston and Washington were not scheduled.

Minnesota rallied for three runs in top of the ninth to overcome a 6-3 Kansas City lead furnished by Marv Throneberry's three-run homer in the bottom of the eighth. Catcher Earl Battey's leadoff single ignited the tying rally. Two Athletic errors and Bob Allison's single filled the bases in the tenth against loser Bud Daley and set the stage for Battey's game-winning blow. Ray Moore, in relief, was the winner.

Lary Wins Again

The Tigers extended their winning streak to eight straight as Frank Lary continued his hex over the Yankees. The stocky little right-hander hurled a seven-hitter to lift his lifetime mark against the Yankees to 24 victories and only 8 defeats.

Rookie Steve Boros and first baseman Norm Cash led a 10-hit attack against loser Bob Turley and two relievers. Boros cracked three hits and drove in two runs. Cash put his team in front with a fourth inning home run.

Bubba Phillips hit his first grand slam home run in eight major league seasons to spark the Indians' victory over the Orioles. The blow came in the sixth with the score tied at 1-1. The victim was Milt Pappas, who failed to finish for the second straight time. Jim Perry was the winner although he needed eighth inning help from Frank Funk when the Orioles loaded the bases.

Basilio Retires From Boxing, ToBecomeGentlemanFarmer

SYRACUSE, N. Y. (AP)—Carmen Basilio, his battle-marked face showing the effects of almost 13 years in the ring, started a new life as a gentleman farmer today.

The craggy-jawed former world welterweight and middleweight champion announced Monday night that he was finished with boxing for good.

"Right now," said the 34-year-old Basilio, "I'm going to rest for about a week, think things over and take care of my apple trees."

He started out as an onion farmer and barely eked out a living before he turned to fighting. Now he has about eight acres of apple trees on his suburban Chittenango farm.

"I've done a lot of work on it, but there's plenty more to do," he said. "I'm moving slowly and getting help from experts. You might say I know my onions, but I still don't want my apples."

A Bad Beating

Basilio took a bad beating from Paul Pender last Saturday in Boston. Pender, defending his New York-Massachusetts - Europe version of the world middleweight championship, not only won a decisive decision, but had Basilio off his feet for the first time in his career.

While he wouldn't come right out and say so, that undoubtedly helped Basilio—an ex-Marine who always was willing to take two punches to land one—make up his mind.

"I've had a couple of good job offers," Carmen said, "but I don't want to talk about them until I make up my mind which one I'll take. I'm in no hurry."

He added that his left arm, which he injured in a bout against Don Jordan a month ago, then re-injured against Pender, still hurt.

"It's still a little painful now," he said, "but it should be all right after a few days' rest. Actually, it probably will be months before it is really strong again, but at least the soreness is dying down."

Had 79 Fights

Basilio was born in nearby Canastota, N. Y. He fought 79 times and 11 of his bouts were for world championships. He won his first title, the welterweight, when he knocked out Tony DeMarco on June 10, 1955. He knocked out DeMarco in a return, then lost the crown to Johnny Saxton on a controversial decision in Chicago.

But he made up for that by knocking out Saxton twice, on Sept. 12, 1956, and Feb 27, 1957.

Then on Sept. 23, 1957, he moved into the middleweight class and promptly dethroned Sugar Ray Robinson. Sugar Ray won the title back on a decision in Chicago on March 25, 1958, then was stripped of the championship by the National Boxing Association for refusing to defend.

Basilio and Gene Fullmer were matched for the vacant title—and that started Carmen's downfall. Fullmer won on a 14th round TKO, administering a fearful beating to Basilio on Aug. 28, 1959. He stopped Basilio again in 12 rounds on June 29, 1960. Both times Carmen stayed on his feet to the end.

By then, Basilio was considering quitting, but as he put it at the time:

"Where can I make $20,000 a year?"

Now his thinking has changed.

NL Chase Is Between Five Clubs

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

At the start of the season, the National League managers predicted a five-team race with a sixth team, the Cincinnati Reds, having an outside chance. The league standings today make the pilots look like geniuses in the guessing department.

Only one game separates the first four teams after two weeks play. Another game separates the seventh-place Milwaukee Braves from the first-place Los Angeles Dodgers. San Francisco, St. Louis and Pittsburgh, the other three in the top-rated five, are tied for second place.

In the only game played Monday Pittsburgh edged Milwaukee 7-6 to drop the Braves one game out of the cellar. To further illustrate the closeness of the National League race, had the Braves won, they would have bolted into second place.

Bob Friend won his third without a defeat for the Pirates but he needed ninth inning help from Clem Labine. The veteran right-hander allowed only five hits through eight innings and went into the final frame leading 7-4.

Wes Covington's single, an error and a sacrifice produced one Milwaukee run. Friend got John Demerit to fly out but when Johnny Logan singled in a run, Manager Danny Murtaugh summoned Labine from the bullpen. The sinker ball specialist got Roy McMillan on a grounder to end the game.

Jerseys Rained Out Once More

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Rain and the Jersey City Jerseys apparently have become bosom buddies during this young International League baseball season.

Twice in the last three games, the rains came just in time to save the Jerseys from defeat at the hands of Toronto's Maple Leafs. Toronto held commanding advantages on both occasions.

Monday night the Leafs erupted for five runs in the top of the 10th inning. Rain promptly stepped in and washed out the five tallies, leaving the teams tied at 2-2. The umpired called the action off after waiting 49 minutes.

Saturday night Toronto held a 4-1 lead in the fourth frame when a rainstorm came to Jersey City's rescue and forced postponement of the game.

After spotting the Jerseys a 2-0 advantage in the night's only International League activity, the Leafs came up with single runs in the eighth and ninth to tie the score at 2-2 after nine.

All eight clubs are scheduled for action tonight with Toronto at Columbus, Buffalo at Richmond, Rochester at San Juan and Syracuse at Jersey City.

SPORTS

By CHARLES J. TIANO

Freeman Sports Editor

The old cliche that nothing is deader than yesterday's newspaper can be misleading.

For example, have you ever tried to plow through one of those metropolitan Sunday editions in one day? More than often there is sufficient material to tide you over a week's reading. By that time the next issue has arrived.

When you apply this cliche to yesterday's sports heroes, it comes out a bit different. How long do most of them really retain the glamor and magic of their heydey?

Which brings us around to a conversation we had with Jackie Farrell, of the New York Yankees public relations staff a few nights ago in Poughkeepsie.

We got around to the inevitable question: What gives with Casey Stengel these days?

"I don't know," replied the erudite Mighty Mite whose wit has made him one of the most sought after speakers on the rubber chicken circuit. "I think he's out in Glendale (Calif.) counting his money."

"Do you get many inquiries about Casey?" we prodded. "Not too many," was the answer. "You'd be surprised how fast this sports crowd forgets." Farrell supported his statement with the observation that in the Yankee dugout these days you don't ever hear the name of Stengel even mentioned.

• About Mickey Mantle:

The talk veered another inevitable topic — the early season batting surge by Mickey Mantle. Would it last and could Mickey break the Babe's record.

"Well, with that 10-team setup and those extra games, the chances are much better now than before," said Farrell. "But that's not breaking the Babe's record, it's only setting a new kind of home run mark.

Would Casey Stengel's departure make Mickey Mantle a better ball player is a question Farrell has to answer quite often these days. The question is not rhetorical because the image was created that Mantle rebelled under the third person treatment to which Stengel constantly subjected the Kid from Oklahoma. You recall that when Old Case got peeved at Mickey, he would corral a friendly sportswriter and unleash a tirade about "my big guy" which always meant Mantle. He would never mention Mickey by name in that delightful fractured syntax which convulsed writers.

There are baseball historians who will insist that Casey Stengel left baseball broken hearted because Mickey Mantle failed to develop into a superior star under his tutelage.

Stengel inherited Joe DiMaggio, who was Joe McCarthy's creation, just like Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig belonged to Miller Huggins. Stengel always felt that Mickey had the equipment and skill to join the super stars. Somehow it never quite came off.

"Nobody can make Mickey Mantle any better or any worse," Farrell observed. "He's a personality unto himself."

Somebody in the crowd suggested that Leo Durocher might have made Mickey Mantle over into the big star, if Mickey had come up under The Lip.

The man was trying to make a case and it sounded logical. Didn't Durocher help make Willie Mays the super star of the Giants? Didn't Leo constantly refer to Mays as "my boy" and tell the world that Willie was the greatest? And didn't Willie Mays go out and try to prove it to the world and come close on many occasions?

Farrell nodded in assent and then wrinkles creased his forehead.

"Maybe Durocher made Willie Mays a big ball player," he said quietly, "but Mantle wouldn't take Durocher's treatment for five minutes."

• The Silent Trio:

Farrell has a bag full of Yankee stories and anecdotes. The one about the three "silent" Italians in Yankee history — Frank Crosetti, Tony Lazzeri and the rookie Joe DiMaggio — heading from Frisco to New York is one of his best. Without elaboration it goes like this:

When the trio boarded the train in Frisco, Lazzeri looked out the window and said: "Looks like a nice day." Not another word until the train reached Chicago. Crosetti looked out the window and blurted: "Does look like a nice day."

The train pulled into Grand Central. DiMaggio looked around and said: "I think you're both right."

Hebert Beats Ken Venturi in 'Sudden Death'

By CHARLES GREEN

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—Jay Hebert moved on to the Texas Open today after winning $7,000 in a sudden-death playoff with Ken Venturi in the Houston Classic to move up to fifth place among golf's 1961 money winners.

Hebert, Lafayette, La., native, sank an eight-foot birdie putt to beat Venturi after the Californian had tied an 18-hold playoff by picking up three strokes on the last four holes.

Venturi won $3,600 for his second-place finish to move up to seventh place among money winners. Tournament officials said each player would get at least $600 more as his part of Monday's gate.

Hebert arrived in Houston in 17th place on the money list. He left with an official PGA total of $14,457.50 for the year. Venturi now has won $13,767.50.

Venturi's 18-hole finish reversed Sunday's final round of the 72-hole tournament. Hebert picked up five strokes on the last five holes Sunday to tie Venturi at 276 and send the Classic into its third straight playoff.

Both drove into the rough on the sudden death hole but recovered well and made the green. Venturi's drive hit a spectator, but no serious damage was done.

Hebert chipped two feet inside Venturi — about eight feet from the cup — and watched Ken miss his birdie putt.

Hebert took three practice swings, shifted his feet twice and sent the ball into the cup to end the Classic's first sudden death playoff.

No Changes Made In ABC Tourney

DETROIT (AP) — The 58th annual American Bowling Congress has slacked off into another 'quiet spell.' There wasn't a change anywhere in the top 10 standings of the nine categories Monday. The Classic Division team entries, Rupert Knickerbocker Beers of New York and Ridge Bowl of New York, rolled far out of the money with respective six game scores of 5,586 and 5,475.

Len Mal and Don Whalen of Buffalo held fifth place in the Classic Division doubles with 1,300.

Arthur Schwass Jr., also of Buffalo, held third place in the all events category of the regular division with 1,937.

KHS Track Team Season Opens Tomorrow Against Arlington

Trying to put together a winning track team with a host of new boys and some rough weather is the job facing coaches G. Warren Kias and Bill Hurley as they send the Maroon runners into action for the first time tomorrow against Arlington at Dietz Stadium.

Between 90 and 100 boys answered the initial call for candidates and about 75 track suits have been issued by the coaches. Kias handles the track events while Hurley coaches the field events.

Ulster winners and outstanding candidates returning include captain Frank Fabiano in the sprints and broad jump; Bill Tomaseski in the 220 and the relay; John Kelly, mile; Joe Barr, 440; John Swallback, Richard Cyr and Bruce Eyman, half mile; Richard Sermier, mile; Clarence Brodhead, sprint; Larry LaGuardia, 440; Phil McDonald, William Winter and Glen McLeod, high jump; Bill Dickson, pole vault; Ken Zerbst, shot put; McDonald, discus and Barr and Dickson, hop, step and jump.

The big loss to the team is that of Jim Sims, the great distance runner. Now at Cornell, Sims set league and school marks in the half mile and also broke the mile mark at the New Paltz relays. However, a host of other letter winners will not be back and this promises to be a questionable year for the squad. Kias said that the spirit of the boys is good and that they're working hard.

The schedule:

Apr. 26, Arlington; May 4, at Middletown; May 11, at Poughkeepsie; May 13, New Paltz Relays; May 17, Colonie; May 23 at Port Jervis; May 27, DUSO meet at Middletown; June 3, Section 9 meet at New Paltz; May 10, Intersectional meet at New Hartford, N. Y.

Rock Brewer beat favorite Ace of Spades by a length Monday night to take the Mohansic Pace at Yonkers Raceway.

The eight-year-old son of Direct Brewer, driven by Ken Cartnal, did the mile in 2:04 3-5, returning $17.70. Jan Hanover finished third.

At Buffalo Raceway, Beat Me romped over a rainy track to win the featured $1,300 handicap trot. He returned $24.70, $9.90 and $4.20. The favorite, Shy Scott took second place and Essie Gallon third. Beat Me, driven by Tom Dufford, covered the mile in 2:25 2-5.

The State Racing Commission, meanwhile, suspended owner Mrs. Anna Prisco of Albertson, L.I., pending further investigation. Mrs. Prisco is listed as the owner of Kiki Stables Inc. Her husband, Raymond, was arrested in a gambling raid conducted last week by New York City police and the Internal Revenue Service.

Bye Bye Byrd and Mr. Budlong today entered the $50,000 International Pace at Yonkers Raceway on May 4.

They are the first two United States entries for the mile and a half pace—the first of a series of three international paces which will pit American horses against False Step and Arania of New Zealand and Apmat of Australia.

Bye Bye Byrd already has rned $492,346. This will mark s first outing of the year.

Johnson Kayoes Clay in the 2nd To Keep Title

By RALPH BERNSTEIN
Associated Press Sports Writer

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Harold Johnson, fresh from a successful defense of his National Boxing Association light heavyweight championship today found himself in the same old rut—waiting for Archie Moore.

Johnson, 174, scored a second-round technical knock-out over Von Clay, 175, a fellow Philadelphian, Monday night.

Clay, 21, with a 13-3-2 record before the scheduled 15-rounder, never had a chance. Johnson, 32, veteran of 16 years in the ring, knocked him down once in the first round and three times in the second.

Referee Dave Beloff stopped the uneven match at 2:28 of the second with Clay a badly beaten young man.

Johnson said he knew this first defense of the title he won Feb. 7 with a kayo of Jesse Boudry at Miami Beach, wasn't going to last long.

"He (Clay) is a good puncher but a very slow puncher," said Johnson. "I could see his left jab coming. I knew then all I had to do was let him lead that left and cross with my right and it wouldn't be long."

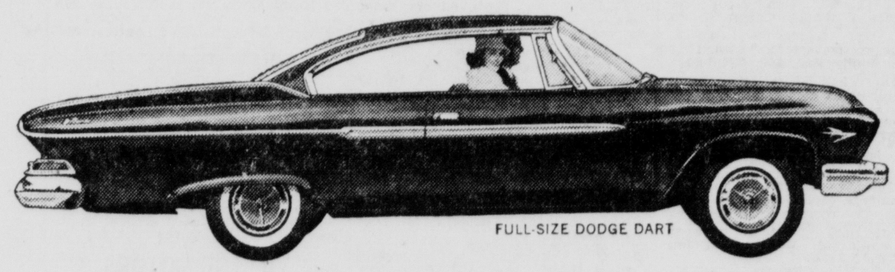

Beloff stopped the fight in the second after Clay went down for the third time. Under Pennsylvania rules, three knockdowns in one round automatically ends a fight.

Where does Johnson go from here? He has to wait and see whether Moore, who is recognized as light heavy champ in New York, Massachusetts and Europe, can make the weight for a title defense June 10—against Guilio Rinaldi. If Moore doesn't get down to 175—there is doubt he can—Johnson may substitute for him.

SPORTS

By CHARLES J. TIANO

Freeman Sports Editor

The old cliche that nothing is deader than yesterday's newspaper can be misleading.

For example, have you ever tried to plow through one of those metropolitan Sunday editions in one day? More than often there is sufficient material to tide you over a week's reading. By that time the next issue has arrived.

When you apply this cliche to yesterday's sports heroes, it comes out a bit different. How long do most of them really retain the glamor and magic of their heydey?

Which brings us around to a conversation we had with Jackie Farrell, of the New York Yankees public relations staff a few nights ago in Poughkeepsie.

We got around to the inevitable question: What gives with Casey Stengel these days?

"I don't know," replied the erudite Mighty Mite whose wit has made him one of the most sought after speakers on the rubber chicken circuit. "I think he's out in Glendale (Calif.) counting his money."

"Do you get many inquiries about Casey?" we prodded. "Not too many," was the answer. "You'd be surprised how fast this sports crowd forgets." Farrell supported his statement with the observation that in the Yankee dugout these days you don't ever hear the name of Stengel even mentioned.

• About Mickey Mantle:

The talk veered another inevitable topic — the early season batting surge by Mickey Mantle. Would it last and could Mickey break the Babe's record.

"Well, with that 10-team setup and those extra games, the chances are much better now than before," said Farrell. "But that's not breaking the Babe's record, it's only setting a new kind of home run mark.

Would Casey Stengel's departure make Mickey Mantle a better ball player is a question Farrell has to answer quite often these days. The question is not rhetorical because the image was created that Mantle rebelled under the third person treatment to which Stengel constantly subjected the Kid from Oklahoma. You recall that when Old Case got peeved at Mickey, he would corral a friendly sportswriter and unleash a tirade about "my big guy" which always meant Mantle. He would never mention Mickey by name in that delightful fractured syntax which convulsed writers.

There are baseball historians who will insist that Casey Stengel left baseball broken hearted because Mickey Mantle failed to develop into a superior star under his tutelage.

Stengel inherited Joe DiMaggio, who was Joe McCarthy's creation, just like Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig belonged to Miller Huggins. Stengel always felt that Mickey had the equipment and skill to join the super stars. Somehow it never quite came off.

"Nobody can make Mickey Mantle any better or any worse," Farrell observed. "He's a personality unto himself."

Somebody in the crowd suggested that Leo Durocher might have made Mickey Mantle over into the big star, if Mickey had come up under The Lip.

The man was trying to make a case and it sounded logical. Didn't Durocher help make Willie Mays the super star of the Giants? Didn't Leo constantly refer to Mays as "my boy" and tell the world that Willie was the greatest? And didn't Willie Mays go out and try to prove it to the world and come close on many occasions?

Farrell nodded in assent and then wrinkles creased his forehead.

"Maybe Durocher made Willie Mays a big ball player," he said quietly, "but Mantle wouldn't take Durocher's treatment for five minutes."

• The Silent Trio:

Farrell has a bag full of Yankee stories and anecdotes. The one about the three "silent" Italians in Yankee history — Frank Crosetti, Tony Lazzeri and the rookie Joe DiMaggio — heading from Frisco to New York is one of his best. Without elaboration it goes like this:

When the trio boarded the train in Frisco, Lazzeri looked out the window and said: "Looks like a nice day." Not another word until the train reached Chicago. Crosetti looked out the window and blurted: "Does look like a nice day."

The train pulled into Grand Central. DiMaggio looked around and said: "I think you're both right."

By CHARLES GREEN

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—Jay Hebert moved on to the Texas Open today after winning $7,000 in a sudden-death playoff with Ken Venturi in the Houston Classic to move up to fifth place among golf's 1961 money winners.

Hebert, Lafayette, La., native, sank an eight-foot birdie putt to beat Venturi after the Californian had tied an 18-hold playoff by picking up three strokes on the last four holes.

Venturi won $3,600 for his second-place finish to move up to seventh place among money winners. Tournament officials said each player would get at least $600 more as his part of Monday's gate.

Hebert arrived in Houston in 17th place on the money list. He left with an official PGA total of $14,457.50 for the year. Venturi now has won $13,767.50.

Venturi's 18-hole finish reversed Sunday's final round of the 72-hole tournament. Hebert picked up five strokes on the last five holes Sunday to tie Venturi at 276 and send the Classic into its third straight playoff.

Both drove into the rough on the sudden death hole but recovered well and made the green. Venturi's drive hit a spectator, but no serious damage was done.

Hebert chipped two feet inside Venturi — about eight feet from the cup — and watched Ken miss his birdie putt.

Hebert took three practice swings, shifted his feet twice and sent the ball into the cup to end the Classic's first sudden death playoff.

No Changes Made In ABC Tourney

DETROIT (AP) — The 58th annual American Bowling Congress has slacked off into another 'quiet spell. There wasn't a change anywhere in the top 10 standings of the nine categories Monday. The Classic Division team entries, Rupert Knickerbocker Beers of New York and Ridge Bowl of New York, rolled far out of the money with respective six game scores of 5,586 and 5,475.

Len Mal and Don Whalen of Buffalo held fifth place in the Classic Division doubles with 1,300.

Arthur Schwass Jr., also of Buffalo, held third place in the all events category of the regular division with 1,937.

Lou Ferraro of the Independent Tavern league joined the "double pinochle" Hall of Fame last night. He cleaned up the difficult 4-6-7-10 split commonly known as the "double pinochle."

KHS Track Team Season Opens Tomorrow Against Arlington

Trying to put together a winning track team with a host of new boys and some rough weather is the job facing coaches G. Warren Kias and Bill Hurley as they send the Maroon runners into action for the first time tomorrow against Arlington at Dietz Stadium.

Between 90 and 100 boys answered the initial call for candidates and about 75 track suits have been issued by the coaches. Kias handles the track events while Hurley coaches the field events.

Letter winners and outstanding candidates returning include captain Frank Fabiano in the sprints and broad jump; Bill Tomaseski in the 220 and the relay; John Kelly, mile; Joe Barr, 440; John Swallback, Richard Cyr and Bruce Eyman, half mile; Richard Sermer, mile; Clarence Brodhead, sprint; Larry LaGuardia, 440; Phil McDonald, William Winter and Glen McLeod, high jump; Bill Dickson, pole vault; Ken Zerbst, shot put; McDonald, discus and Barr and Dickson, hop, step and jump.

The big loss to the team is that of Jim Sims, the great distance runner. Now at Cornell, Sims set league and school marks in the half mile and also broke the mile mark at the New Paltz relays. However, a host of other letter winners will not be back and this promises to be a questionable year for the squad. Kias said that the spirit of the boys is good and that they're working hard.

The schedule:

Apr. 26, Arlington; May 4, at Middletown; May 11, at Poughkeepsie; May 13, New Paltz Relays; May 17, Colonie; May 23 at Port Jervis; May 27, DUSO meet at Middletown; June 3, Section 9 meet at New Paltz; May 10, Intersectional meet at New Hartford, N. Y.

Rock Brewer Is Winner at Yonkers

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Rock Brewer beat favorite Ace of Spades by a length Monday night to take the Mohansic Pace at Yonkers Raceway.

The eight-year-old son of Direct Brewer, driven by Ken Cartnal, did the mile in 2:04 3-5, returning $17.70. Jan Hanover finished third.

At Buffalo Raceway, Beat Me romped over a rainy track to win the featured $1,300 handicap trot. He returned $24.70, $9.90 and $4.20. The favorite, Shy Scott took second place and Essie Galion third. Beat Me, driven by Tom Dufford, covered the mile in 2:25 2-5.

The State Racing Commission, meanwhile, suspended owner Mrs. Anna Prisco of Albertson, L.I., pending further investigation. Mrs. Prisco is listed as the owner of Kiki Stables Inc. Her husband, Raymond, was arrested in a gambling raid conducted last week by New York City police and the Internal Revenue Service.

Bye Bye Byrd and Mr. Budlong today entered the $50,000 International Pace at Yonkers Raceway on May 4.

They are the first two United States entries for the mile and a half pace—the first of a series of three international paces which will pit American horses against False Step and Arania of New Zealand and Apmat of Australia.

Racing secretary Ted Gibbons also announced that Bye Bye Byrd can become the first horse in the history of harness racing to go over a half million dollars in earnings if he wins the $16,000 tuneup, a mile pace, Saturday night.

Bye Bye Byrd already has earned $492,346. This will mark his first outing of the year.

Moose Bowlers Feted at Dinner

Paul Natale, president of the Moose Youth Bowling league, was awarded the circuit's high average trophy at the annual dinner Sunday at the Kingston Moose club. Natale finished with a mark of 170.

City Judge Aaron Klein traced the history of bowling, going back to 1870. The guest speaker praised Joseph Fabiano, director of the league, and the Moose Lodge for a job well done.

Others at the speakers' table were Gov. Elect John L. Slizewski, Jake Chichelsky, Vince Brooks, the master of ceremonies; Joseph Fabiano, Natale, secretary Lonny McAndrew and vice president Lou Gallo.

The trophy presentations were made by Chichelsky and McAndrew.

The Women of the Moose, headed by Peggy Slizewski, were in charge of the waitresses. The dinner committee consisted of Anthony J. Erena, chairman; Charles Amato, Joe Myers, Elmer and Harry Williams, Charles Tucker, Edward Quick, Edward Cline, Fred Uhl, Slizewski and Lloyd Markle.

Johnson Kayoes Clay in the 2nd To Keep Title

By RALPH BERNSTEIN
Associated Press Sports Writer

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Harold Johnson, fresh from a successful defense of his National Boxing Association light heavyweight championship today found himself in the same old rut—waiting for Archie Moore.

Johnson, 174, scored a second-round technical knock-out over Von Clay, 175, a fellow Philadelphian, Monday night.

Clay, 21, with a 13-3-2 record before the scheduled 15-rounder, never had a chance. Johnson, 32, veteran of 16 years in the ring, knocked him down once in the first round and three times in the second.

Referee Dave Beloff stopped the uneven match at 2:28 of the second with Clay a badly beaten young man.

Johnson said he knew this first defense of the title he won Feb. 7 with a kayo of Jesse Boudry at Miami Beach, wasn't going to last long.

"He (Clay) is a good puncher but a very slow puncher," said Johnson. "I could see his left jab coming. I knew then all I had to do was let him lead that left and cross with my right and it wouldn't be long."

Beloff stopped the fight in the second after Clay went down for the third time. Under Pennsylvania rules, three knockdowns in one round automatically ends a fight.

Where does Johnson go from here? He has to wait and see whether Moore, who is recognized as light heavy champ in New York, Massachusetts and Europe, can make the weight for a title defense June 10—against Guillo Rinaldi. If Moore doesn't get down to 175—there is doubt he can—Johnson may substitute for him.

School Plan Is Adopted, But Under Protest

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y. (AP) —The New Rochelle Board of Education has adopted "under protest" a plan for desegregating the community's public school system.

The plan was adopted by a 6-3 vote Monday night in accordance with an order last Jan. 24 from Federal Judge Irving R. Kaufman. The judge ruled the plan must be submitted by May 3.

The plan provides that any pupil attending the predominantly Negro Lincoln School may register in any elementary school in New Rochelle.

However, several conditions were attached, these included:

Seats must be available; transfers must not make classes in other schools too big; permission to transfer must be renewed every year, and parents must agree in writing to pay any necessary transportation of former Lincoln School pupils to new schools.

The plan also provides that each pupil who transfers must have a recommendation from a Lincoln School teacher and must be able to perform academically at the level to which he is assigned.

The board reserved the right of "flexibility in the administration of the transfer plan in keeping with the overall administration of the school system. . ."

The board said in its resolution that the presentation of the plan to Kaufman would be made "under protest without prejudice to the right to appeal the final judgment" of the court.

Kaufman had ruled in New York City that the board of education violated the constitutional rights of Negro children by not allowing them to register at schools of their choice.

During 1960, USO (United Service Organizations) — YWCA clubs served 1,341,459 military personnel and their dependents, averaging 20 years of age.

Stock-Option Up For IBM Voting; Gore Scores Plan

YORKTOWN HEIGHTS, N.Y. (AP) — Stockholders of the giant International Business Machines Corp. meet today to vote on a stock-option plan that has drawn the fire of Sen. Albert Gore, D-Tenn.

The annual stockholders meeting of the electronics firm is being held at its new research center.

Gore, in a Senate speech yesterday, charged that the president of IBM could realize a profit of almost $4.5 million out of his company's present stock option plan.

Gore noted that another stock-option plan involving 100,000 shares was on today's agenda.

In New York City, an IBM spokesman said the company was studying Gore's remarks.

Gore said Thomas J. Watson Jr. would have to pay taxes only on the capital gains rate of a maximum of 25 per cent when he exercised the option.

Gore made the speech in support of his bill to end stock options.

He is a member of the tax-writing Senate Finance Committee.

Under stock-option plans, corporation executives are given the right to buy stock, usually at a price slightly under the market price when the option is granted.

Gore said an option plan involving 130,000 shares adopted by IBM in 1956 would give Watson, in addition to his regular annual compensation of more than $300,000, almost $4.5 million.

CAB Hearing Is To Study Shift Of EAL Routes

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Civil Aeronautics Board opens a hearing today into the proposed transfer to Mohawk Airlines of part of Eastern Airlines' routes in New York and Vermont.

The hearing, however, could also involve an application by Allegheny Airlines to fly between New York City and Albany, N. Y.

Attorneys for Eastern and Mohawk contend that only their agreement should be aired at the hearing.

The board has rejected a proposal from the two lines to restrict the hearing only to one section of the Federal Aviation Act involving transfer of part of an airline certificate.

Eastern and Mohawk say their agreement will be cancelled if the transfer is not approved by the CAB by Sept. 1. CAB action is expected before that date.

Under the agreement, Mohawk would take over Eastern's routes between the New York metropolitan area and Rutland and Burlington, Vt., and Albany, Glens Falls, Plattsburgh, Saranac Lake, Lake Placid, Massena and Watertown, N. Y.

Eastern would also be freed of many of its local service responsibilities on its New York-Syracuse-Montreal-Ottawa runs which it would retain.

DEMONSTRATES ATOMIC DEVICE—Karl Puttlitz of 33 Van Gaasbeck Street, this city, a senior in chemical technology, demonstrates some of atomic energy equipment to be exhibited for the first time at State University's Agricultural and Technical Institute, Farmingdale, during open house April 28 and 29. Mr. Puttlitz is shown above plotting the gamma spectrum for Cesium 137 with a scintillation detector, a ratemeter and amplifier-analyzer. The equipment was purchased with a $11,000 grant to the Institute by the U. S. Atomic Energy Commission for research in radio isotopes for industry, agriculture, and biology.

Portable A-Bomb Is Speculated, France Unleashes 4th Test

PARIS (AP) — France staged her fourth atomic test blast in the Sahara today, and a government announcement aroused speculaton that she had succeeded in constructing a portable A-bomb.

The French scientists have been trying to achieve a bomb capable of being transported by air, thus giving France military atomic capability.

The announcement today said the explosion was the last of the above-ground atomic tests of the French program in North Africa. This was taken as an indication that the miniaturization program had been successful.

Government sources said the explosion at Reggane, deep in the Sahara, was another tower shot of "weak" power. They added that "all precautions have been taken so that radioactive fallout poses no danger to populations."

Announcement of the blast startled Frenchmen absorbed in the Algerian crisis. With France braced for possible conflict with forces following the insurgent generals who control Algiers, Oran and Constantine, the test struck a bizarre note. Reggane is 600 miles south of Algiers and easily accessible only by plane.

Since the first atomic test was carried out Feb. 13, 1960, President Charles de Gaulle has been pressing to develop for France an independent nuclear striking force. Each explosion has brought more and more criticism from other African nations, and the testing now may shift to another area. One possibility is the Kerguelen Islands, in the Indian Ocean 3,000 miles southeast of Madagascar.

Debate Squad Is Defeated in Albany Tourney

New York City schools dominated the overall debate championship tourney at Albany. Xaverian, St. John's and Sacred Heart determinately avenged their rout at the New York University classic by posting records of 8-0 and 7-1. Jamestown perennial Sawyer nemesis, defeated Saugerties again and finished fourth.

Robert Francello finished sixth in Boy's extemp to pace Sawyer spokesmen in the speech events. While Patricia Breen and Sharon Johnson both beat Candy Klampert of Utica, the State National Forensic League champion, neither finished among the state winners. Patricia Breen's final rank was eighth. Albert Giannotti and Robert Herb were among the also rans in oral interpretation.

Top Sawyer performance was turned in by the semi-experienced squad of Patricia Sasso, Ronald Smith, Patricia Mayone and Wayne Abbott with a record of four wins and 4 losses. Robert Francello and Frank Mauro gave this squad a big boost as substitutes for operetta members Friday night.

The other Saugerties teams evidenced a need for greater experience as they were routed in semi-experienced and novice divisions. Saugerties domination of the Mohawk-Hudson area permitted the Blue and White to set a new record for qualification to the state finale. Yet faced with the more extensive programs from New York City and the lower Hudson they were overwhelmed.

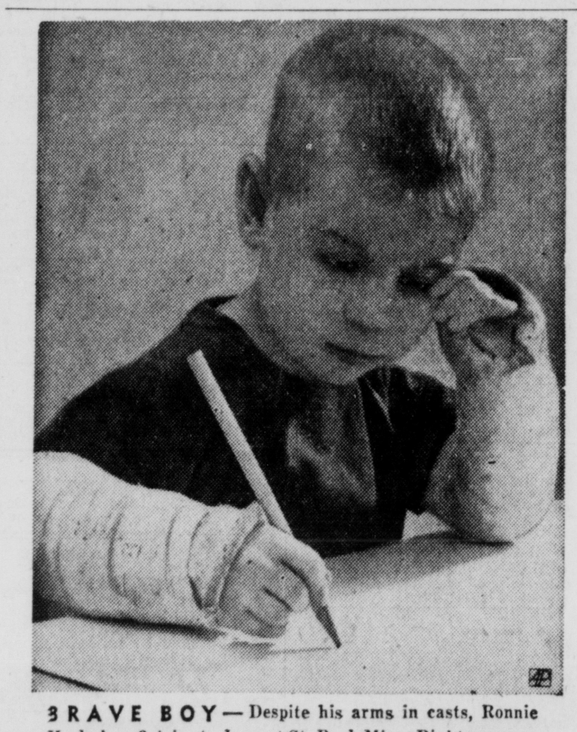

The State Championships at Albany climaxes the debate year. Next weekend a State NFL District Congress will be held in the capitol at Albany. May 20, Saugerties will host a model United Nations for about 20 high schools. The one remaining debate championship, Mid-Hudson, will be decided during early May.

8th Graders, Parents To Tour High School

Monday evening, May 1 at 7:30 p. m., the guidance department will sponsor an eighth grade parents' night in the auditorium of Saugerties High School. The purpose of the program is to assist eighth grade students and their parents in planning for high school.

There will be a short, formal program, during which Dr. Grant D. Morse, superintendent of schools, and David S. Cunningham, principal of the high school, will discuss the value of a high school education and opportunities available to students at Saugerties High School. David Jones, freshman advisor, will discuss some of the adjustments that freshmen must make when they enter senior high school. Miss A. Frances Larned, director of guidance, will discuss planning for advanced education, and Kenneth Lane, guidance counselor, will explain the different types of courses available for entering freshmen.

Time will be provided for questions. Tours of the high school, conducted by members of the Future Teachers Club, will be available for interested students and parents.

School Plan Is Adopted, But Under Protest

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y. (AP) —The New Rochelle Board of Education has adopted "under protest" a plan for desegregating the community's public school system.

The plan was adopted by a 6-3 vote Monday night in accordance with an order last Jan. 24 from Federal Judge Irving R. Kaufman. The judge ruled the plan must be submitted by May 3.

The plan provides that any pupil attending the predominantly Negro Lincoln School may register in any elementary school in New Rochelle.

However, several conditions were attached, these included:

Seats must be available; transfers must not make classes in other schools too big; permission to transfer must be renewed every year, and parents must agree in writing to pay any necessary transportation of former Lincoln School pupils to new schools.

The plan also provides that each pupil who transfers must have a recommendation from a Lincoln School teacher and must be able to perform academically at the level to which he is assigned.

The board reserved the right of "flexibility in the administration of the transfer plan in keeping with the overall administration of the school system. . ."

The board said in its resolution that the presentation of the plan to Kaufman would be made "under protest without prejudice to the right to appeal the final judgment" of the court.

Kaufman had ruled in New York City that the board of education violated the constitutional rights of Negro children by not allowing them to register at schools of their choice.

Stock-Option Up For IBM Voting; Gore Scores Plan

YORKTOWN HEIGHTS, N.Y. (AP) — Stockholders of the giant International Business Machines Corp. meet today to vote on a stock-option plan that has drawn the fire of Sen. Albert Gore, D-Tenn.

The annual stockholders meeting of the electronics firm is being held at its new research center.

Gore, in a Senate speech yesterday, charged that the president of IBM could realize a profit of almost $4.5 million out of his company's present stock option plan.

Gore noted that another stock-option plan involving 100,000 shares was on today's agenda.

In New York City, an IBM spokesman said the company was studying Gore's remarks.

Gore said Thomas J. Watson Jr. would have to pay taxes only on the capital gains rate of a maximum of 25 per cent when he exercised the option.

Gore made the speech in support of his bill to end stock options.

He is a member of the tax-writing Senate Finance Committee.

Under stock-option plans, corporation executives are given the right to buy stock, usually at a price slightly under the market price when the option is granted.

Gore said an option plan involving 130,000 shares adopted by IBM in 1956 would give Watson, in addition to his regular annual compensation of more than $300,000, almost $4.5 million.

CAB Hearing Is To Study Shift Of EAL Routes

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Civil Aeronautics Board opens a hearing today into the proposed transfer to Mohawk Airlines of part of Eastern Airlines' routes in New York and Vermont.

The hearing, however, could also involve an application by Allegheny Airlines to fly between New York City and Albany, N. Y.

Francis W. Brown, the CAB's chief hearing examiner, left undecided the question of Allegheny's application when he fixed a date for the Eastern-Mohawk hearing last month.

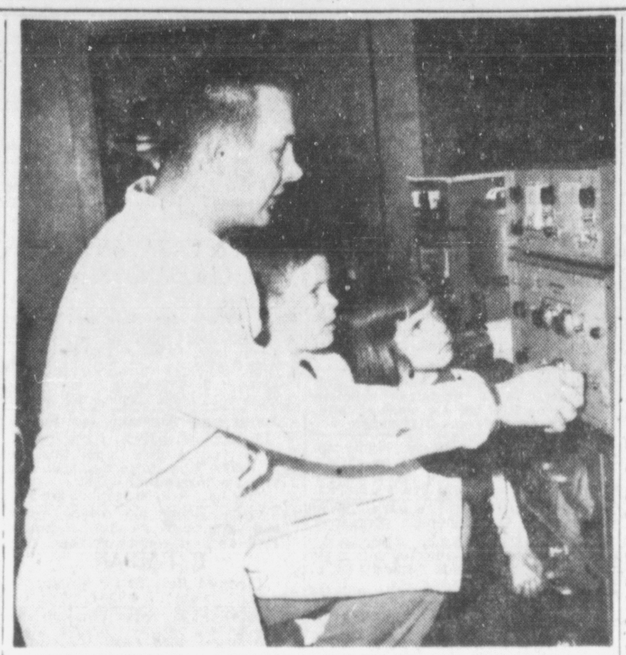

Attorneys for Eastern and Mohawk, contend that only their agreement should be aired at the hearing.

The board has rejected a proposal from the two lines to restrict the hearing only to one section of the Federal Aviation Act involving transfer of part of an airline certificate.

Eastern and Mohawk say their agreement will be cancelled if the transfer is not approved by the CAB by Sept. 1. CAB action is expected before that date.

Under the agreement, Mohawk would take over Eastern's routes between the New York metropolitan area and Rutland and Burlington, Vt., and Albany, Glens Falls, Plattsburgh, Saranac Lake, Lake Placid, Massena and Watertown, N. Y.

Eastern would also be freed of many of its local service responsibilities on its New York-Syracuse-Montreal-Ottawa runs which it would retain.
